[1] If your accounting system prohibits you from adjusting for increases in waste credits in the manner shown above, you may make the adjustment in any other manner normally used by you in your accounting procedure (e. g., by adjusting your weight of wool per finished yard): Provided, That you indicate in your report the method of adjustment used.

[2] To this price apply the provisions of section 15 (conditions of sale and classes of purchasers), e. g., the 2 percent discount.

and 5, the ceiling price of a unit of the comparable yarn or fabric selected in section 9. Divide its ceiling price by its "computed cost" and subtract 100% to obtain the percentage markup. Apply this percentage markup to the "computed" cost of a unit of the yarn or fabric you are pricing and add the result to such "computed cost." This gives you the ceiling price for a unit of that yarn or fabric to the same class of purchaser as you used to establish your base period price for the comparable yarn or fabric. To this ceiling price apply the provisions of section 15 (conditions of sale and classes of purchasers).

(b) Before you deliver a yarn or fabric at a ceiling price fixed by this section, you must file the report required by section 21.

CEILING PRICES FOR NEW YARNS OR FABRICS

SEC. 11. How to determine your ceiling prices for new yarns or fabrics if you were in business between July 1, 1949 and June 24, 1950—(a) Description of method of pricing. If you dealt in yarns or fabrics between July 1, 1949 and June 24, 1950, but you cannot use sections 5, 6 or 10 to fix a ceiling price for a yarn or fabric you now want to sell, your ceiling price for the yarn or fabric you now want to sell is determined by applying to the "computed cost" of the yarn or fabric you are pricing, the dollars-and-cents difference or the percentage markup between the "computed cost" and the ceiling price, under this revised regulation, of the yarn or fabric most nearly like the yarn or fabric you are pricing, in accordance with the following instructions:

(b) Computed cost. Find your "computed cost", by the method prescribed in section 8, of a unit of the yarn or fabric being priced.

(c) Selection of most nearly like yarn or fabric. From the yarns or fabrics for which you can establish a base period price under sections 3, 4 and 5, select the first of the following which is available to you:

(1) A yarn or fabric you are presently manufacturing which is most nearly like, and whose "computed cost" is the same as or lower than the "computed cost" of, the yarn or fabric you are pricing.

(2) A yarn or fabric you are presently manufacturing which is most nearly like, and whose "computed cost" is next higher than the "computed cost" of, the yarn or fabric you are pricing.

(3) A yarn or fabric you are no longer manufacturing which is most nearly like, and whose "computed cost" would be the same as or lower than the "computed cost" of, the yarn or fabric you are pricing.

(4) A yarn or fabric you are no longer manufacturing which is most nearly like, and whose "computed cost" would be next higher than the "computed cost" of, the yarn or fabric you are pricing.

(d) How to obtain your ceiling price. (1) Compute in accordance with the method prescribed in sections 3, 4 and 5 the ceiling price of a unit of the yarn or fabric selected in paragraph (c) of this section. If you used (c) (1) or (3) of this section to obtain your most nearly like yarn or fabric, subtract from its ceiling price its "computed cost". This gives you the "dollars-and-cents difference." If you used (c) (2) or (4) of this section to obtain your most nearly like yarn or fabric, divide its ceiling price by its computed cost, and subtract 100% to obtain its "percentage markup." Add the "dollars-and-cents difference" to the "computed cost" of a unit of the yarn or fabric being priced, or apply the "percentage markup" to the "computed cost" of a unit of the yarn or fabric being priced and add the result to such "computed cost." This gives you the ceiling price for a unit of that yarn or fabric to the same class of purchaser as you used to establish your base period price for the most nearly like yarn or fabric. To this ceiling price apply the provisions of section 15 (conditions of sale and classes of purchasers).

(2) Before you deliver a yarn or fabric at a ceiling price fixed by this section, you must file the report required by section 21.

NEW SELLERS AND NEW CLASSES OF PURCHASERS

SEC. 12. Ceiling prices for new sellers and for sales to an entirely new class of purchaser. (a) If you did not at any time between July 1, 1949, and June 24, 1950, contract in writing to sell, or make a written offer to sell, or distribute price lists for, yarns or fabrics, or if you wish to sell to a class of purchaser which is entirely different from any to which you sold prior to April 9, 1951, your ceiling price for a particular yarn or fabric is the same as the ceiling price of your most closely competitive seller of the same class selling that particular yarn or fabric to the same class of purchaser. Your ceiling price must carry the same price differentials as that of your most closely competitive seller. You cannot sell any yarn or fabric under this section, however, until 15 days after you have filed, by registered mail, return receipt requested (the date of filing is the date of receipt by the Office of Price Stabilization), the report required in paragraph (b) of this section, with the Consumer Soft Goods Division, Office of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C. Thereafter you may sell at your proposed ceiling price unless and until notified by the Director of Price Stabilization that your proposed price has been disapproved or that more information is required. If you are notified that additional information is required, you cannot sell at your proposed price until you have filed such additional information, by registered mail return receipt requested, or until such time (not to exceed 15 days after the filing of the additional information requested) as the request for information shall specify. The Director may disapprove or revise ceiling prices reported under this section, at any time, even after the 15-day period, so as to bring them into line with other ceiling prices fixed by this regulation.

(b) Your report shall contain the name and address of your company; the name, address and type of business of your most closely competitive seller of the same class; a statement of his ceiling price and his price differential to each of his classes of purchasers; your reasons for selecting him as your most closely competitive seller; a statement of your customary price differentials; and, if you are selling, to an entirely new class of purchaser, a description of such class of purchaser. If you are starting a new business you should include a statement of whether you or the principal owner of your business is now or during the past twelve months has been engaged in any capacity in the same or a similar business at any other establishment, and if so, the trade name and address of each such establishment. Your report shall also contain your proposed ceiling price and a description of the yarn or fabric you are pricing; the manufacturing processes involved; the computed cost (see section 8) for that yarn or fabric; the reason you believe the proposed ceiling price is in line with the level of ceiling prices otherwise established by this revised regulation; and the types of customers to whom you will be selling.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO CEILING PRICES

SEC. 13. Rounding ceiling prices. You may round off your ceiling prices determined under this revised regulation so that they will be expressed to the nearest $2\frac{1}{2}$ cents. If you do so for one yarn or fabric you must similarly round the ceiling prices for all of your yarns or fabrics, normally priced by you upon the same basis, to reflect decreases as well as increases. In no event may the increase be greater than 1 percent of your ceiling price prior to rounding.

SEC. 14. Excise, sales, and other similar taxes—(a) Where the tax is included in your base period price. If the base period price for a yarn or fabric you are using under any of the sections of this revised regulation for the purpose of determining your ceiling price either for that yarn or fabric or another yarn or fabric includes any excise, sales or other similar tax which is not separately stated, you must first ascertain the amount of any such tax and exclude it from the base period price. Your base period price, with any such tax so excluded, may then be used in connection with any appropriate computations to determine your ceiling price under this revised regulation. After completing the computations involved in determining your ceiling price, you may then add on the appropriate amount of any such tax for inclusion as part of your ceiling price. In the case of any increase in such a tax subsequent to the end of your base period, you may include the appropriate amount of any such increase as part of your ceiling price. Likewise, in the case of any similar tax first imposed subsequent to the end of your base period and included in your selling price thereafter, you may include the appropriate amount of such tax as part of your ceiling price.

(b) Where the tax is separately stated and collected. In addition to your ceiling price determined under this revised regulation, you may collect the amount of any excise, sales or other similar taxes paid by you as such only if it has been your practice to state and collect such taxes separately from your selling price for the same or similar yarns or fabrics. In the case of such a tax imposed by law which is not effective until after the effective date of this revised regulation, or of any increase in such a tax subsequent to such effective date, you may collect the amount of the tax actually paid as such by you, if not prohibited by the tax law. You must in all such cases state separately the amount of the tax.

SEC. 15. Conditions of sale and classes of purchasers. Your ceiling price must carry the same terms, discounts, and other conditions of sale as your base period price for the identical yarn or fabric (see section 5), the similar one (see section 6), the comparable one (see section 10), or the most nearly like one (see section 11), as the case may be. If you have classes of purchasers other than the class of purchaser you used in determining your base period price, your ceiling price for sales to such other classes of purchasers are fixed by applying your customary price differentials in effect during the base period. In the event that you made no base period sales to a particular class of purchaser, you apply your customary differentials last in effect prior to the base period, or, if none, then those first in effect after the base period but prior to April 9, 1951. You shall sell your seconds, irregulars, short pieces, and off-goods classified in the same manner and at the same discounts as during the base period.

SEC. 16. Decorations. If you add (or substitute) decorations to a fabric the ceiling price for which you determined under this revised regulation, and reported under section 21, the ceiling price for such fabric shall be increased or decreased by the same dollars-and-cents differential, for such decorations, which you customarily used between July 1, 1949 and June 24, 1950.

SEC. 17. Redetermination of ceiling price. (a) Once you have reported your ceiling price or a proposed ceiling price for a yarn or fabric as required by this revised regulation, you may not thereafter redetermine it except as required by paragraph (b) of this section. A purely arithmetical error may, however, be corrected, but the correction must be reported to the Consumer Soft Goods Division of the Office of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C.

(b) The Director of Price Stabilization expects in due course to issue an amendment to this revised regulation providing for a redetermination of your ceiling prices hereunder. The primary purpose of this redetermination would be to reflect more accurately the materials prices established by this and other ceiling price regulations. The Director of Price Stabilization may also from time to time announce "materials cost increase factors" for certain materials in order to provide greater uniformity in the calculation of their change in price since the end of your base period. These factors will be percentage figures based on studies of some categories of important basic materials. If such a factor is announced, it must be used in place of any change you have had in the price of the material covered by the factor, regardless of whether the factor is higher or lower. These "materials cost increase factors" may be announced by amendments or by supplementary regulations to this revised regulation.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

SEC. 18. Manufacturers who cannot price under other sections. If you claim that you are unable to determine your ceiling price for a yarn or fabric under any of the foregoing provisions of this revised regulation, you may apply in writing to the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., for the establishment of a ceiling price. This application shall contain an explanation of why you are unable to determine your ceiling price under any other provision of this revised regulation; all pertinent information describing the yarn or fabric and the nature of your business; your proposed ceiling price and the method used by you to determine it; and the reason you believe the proposed price is in line with the level of ceiling prices otherwise established by this regulation. You may not sell the yarn or fabric until the Director of Price Stabilization, in writing, notifies you of your ceiling price.

SEC. 19. Adjustment of ceiling prices where over-all loss in operations results. (a) This section permits you to apply for an upward adjustment of your ceiling prices for yarns and fabrics covered by this revised regulation, if, as a result of these ceiling prices you would operate at a loss.

(b) You may apply under this section if:

(1) Your total manufacturing operations have been conducted at a net loss for a period of operation under this revised regulation of at least one month, or would have been conducted at a loss if you had manufactured the yarns or fabrics covered by this revised regulation in your customary quantities and proportions;

(2) The loss was attributable to the level of prices established by this revised regulation, and not to any of the following:

(i) Seasonal, non-recurring or temporary factors affecting your operations; or

(ii) A reduction in volume of production below the normal economical capacity of your plant; or

(iii) The payment of unlawful wages or excessive salaries or of unlawful or excessive prices for materials; or

(iv) The incurring of factory overhead costs or of selling, administrative and general costs which are abnormally high relative to sales or other costs unless such excess is demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence to have been unavoidable in the exercise of sound business judgment and management; or

(v) Any transactions with affiliated corporations or businesses which either are of a kind which would not result from arm's-length bargaining or differ from the transactions which you have customarily had with such affiliated corporations or businesses; or

(vi) Reserves for contingencies.

(3) The adjusted prices for which you apply will not be substantially out-of-line with the ceiling prices for similar yarns or fabrics established for other sellers under this revised regulation.

(c) If you make application under this section, you must supply:

(1) Your name, address, a description of your manufacturing facilities and of the yarns or fabrics you manufacture, a statement of the principal types of customers to whom you sell;

(2) A detailed annual profit and loss statement for your firm for the years 1946 through 1949, and both an annual profit and loss statement, and if you regularly prepare them, quarterly profit and loss statements covering the year 1950 and each quarter since then;

(3) A detailed profit and loss statement covering a period of operations of one month more under this regulation, together with a careful explanation of how it was prepared, including particularly a justification of any estimating procedures used in its preparation;

(4) For yarns or fabrics covered by this revised regulation, either (i) a statement of your base period and ceiling prices to your largest class of purchaser (including delivery terms, cash, trade and volume discounts, allowances, premiums and extras, deductions, guarantees, servicing terms and other terms and conditions of sale), and a schedule of your price differentials to your other classes of purchasers; or (ii) a copy of the report required under sections 12 or 21 which you have previously prepared and submitted to the Office of Price Stabilization; together with (iii) a statement of the section or sections under which you established your ceiling prices.

(5) A showing that the loss in your current operations was not due to any of the six factors in paragraph (b) (2) of this section.

(6) A list of your principal competitors, and a statement of their ceiling prices under this regulation for yarns or fabrics similar to yours, together with data showing the past relationship of your prices to those they have charged for the same or similar yarns or fabrics.

(7) A proposed schedule of adjusted ceiling prices for yarns or fabrics covered by this revised regulation, and a demonstration that, if these prices were charged, your operations would be at a break-even position.

(8) The application must refer specifically to this section of this revised regulation, must be signed by a responsible officer of your company, and should be sent to the Consumer Soft Goods Division, Office of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C.

(d) Within thirty days of the receipt of your application, the Director will grant or deny your application in full or in part, or request further information. The Director may, as a condition of granting your application in full or in part, require you to submit reports of subsequent operations and may revoke or modify the adjustment at any time. If, thirty days after the acknowledgement of receipt of your application, none of the actions listed above has been taken, you may sell at your proposed ceiling prices until such time as the Director shall notify you that these prices have been disapproved.

SEC. 20. Records. (a) You must keep and make available for examination by the Office of Price Stabilization for the life of the Defense Production Act of 1950 and for a period of two years thereafter the records you customarily maintain showing the prices you charge for yarn or fabric sold or delivered after the effective date of this regulation. You must also preserve until two years after the expiration of the Defense Production Act of 1950 all of the data required to be reported by section 21, and in addition:

(1) All contracts of sale of yarn or fabric entered into between July 1, 1949 through June 24, 1950. For yarns or fabrics for which you had no contracts of sale but have established a base period price through a written offer to sell, preserve a copy of each such written offer to sell. If you have established base period prices through price lists, preserve a copy of each such price list.

(2) All invoices for, and written contracts to purchase, wool, wool waste and manufacturing material, received, or entered into, between July 1, 1949 through June 24, 1950. For materials which you import directly from sellers not subject to the regulations of the Office of Price Stabilization, preserve all written contracts to purchase, and invoices for such materials, entered into, or received, within 60 days prior to March 15, 1951. If you are establishing for the purpose of computations under this revised regulation a net invoice cost for such supplies through a supplier's delivery price, obtain and preserve a statement, signed by the principal owner or an officer of the supplying company, of the highest price at which this supplier delivered such supply, to a purchaser of the class in which you fall, and the date of such delivery. For wool waste, cashmere, vicuna, camels hair, wool used in the manufacture of carpet yarns, and manufacturing material preserve a statement of the name and address of the supplier whose ceiling price you used to determine your "terminal" cost under section 4 b) (2).

(3) If you use section 16 (Decorations) preserve a record showing the dollars-and-cents differentials for decorations which you applied during the year July 1, 1949 through June 24, 1950.

(b) With respect to any yarn or fabric covered by this revised regulation the provisions of section 16 of the General Ceiling Price Regulation are hereby continued in effect insofar as they apply to the preparation and preservation of "base period records" and such "current records" as have been made as a result of sales between January 26, 1951, and the effective date of this revised regulation.[1]

SEC. 21. Reports. Prior to making any deliveries of yarns or fabrics for which ceiling prices are established by section 5, 6, 10 or 11 of this revised regulation, you must file by registered mail, the report required by this section, with the Consumer Soft Goods Division, Office of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C. You may deliver, upon filing the required report, unless and until notified by the Director of Price Stabilization that your proposed price has been disapproved or that more information is required. If you are notified that additional information is required, you cannot sell at your proposed price until you have filed such additional information by registered mail, or until such time (not to exceed 15 days after the filing of the additional information requested) as the request for information shall specify. The Director of Price Stabilization may at any time disapprove or revise ceiling prices reported under this section so as to bring them into line with the level of ceiling prices otherwise established by this revised regulation.

Your report shall contain the following information:

(a) Your name and address;

(b) A description of the yarn or fabric and the category in which it falls;

(c) With respect to each yarn or fabric for which you are computing a ceiling price under section 5 or 6 of this revised regulation, your report should include the following:

(1) A statement of which permissible base period you have selected. If you have not used the same base period for this yarn or fabric as you have for other yarns or fabrics in the same category, state which permissible base period you have selected for the remaining yarns or fabrics in the same category;

(2) A description of the class of purchaser which bought the largest amount of yarns or fabrics in the category in which the yarn or fabric being priced falls, during the base period, and your customary differentials, if any, between that class of purchaser and your other classes of purchasers;

(3) The highest price at which you contracted to sell the yarn or fabric to that class of purchaser, including the name and address of the purchaser and the date of the contract. For a yarn or fabric for which you had no contract of sale but have established a base period price through a written offer to sell, your report should include the offering price, the date of the offer and the name and address of the recipient of the offer. For a yarn or fabric for which you have established a base period price through a price list, your report should include the price list, together with its date of issuance, and itemization of dates and amounts of deliveries thereunder;

(4) A computation sheet showing how you arrived at your ceiling price. This sheet shall be in the same form as that used in the example, set forth following section 6 of this revised regulation;

(d) With respect to each yarn or fabric which you are pricing under section 10 (or 11) of this revised regulation and with respect to the comparable (or most nearly like) yarn or fabric used in computing your ceiling prices, your report should include the following:

(1) A description of the yarn or fabric;

(2) A description of the types or grades, and amounts of each material used in the yarn or fabric, and the "terminal" cost of a unit of each such material;

(3) The cost of labor for a unit of that yarn or fabric calculated at your March 1, 1951 wage rates;

(4) The ceiling price under section 5 of this regulation of the comparable yarn or fabric (or the most nearly like yarn or fabric);

(5) The "percentage markup" as computed under section 10 of this revised regulation (or the "dollars-and-cents difference" or "percentage markup" as computed in section 11);

(6) The ceiling price for the yarn or fabric you are pricing;

(7) If the ceiling price is for a fabric which is being priced under section 10, supply the information called for in the following table:

	Fabric you are pricing	Comparable fabric found under sec. 9
Sum of end- and picks per finished inch
Weight per finished yard
Yarn sizes

SEC. 22. What acts are prohibited by this revised regulation. On and after June 11, 1951, regardless of any contract or other obligation, the following practices are forbidden:

(a) Charging more than ceiling prices. Except as provided in section 1 of this revised regulation, you are prohibited from selling or delivering yarn or fabric at a price higher than that permitted by this revised regulation. A lower price may, of course, be charged.

(b) Buying for more than ceiling price. All persons are prohibited from buying or receiving, in the course of trade or business, any yarn or fabric sold or delivered in violation of this revised regulation.

(c) Evasion. No person shall evade or circumvent this regulation by any direct or indirect methods in connection with the sale, purchase, delivery or transfer of yarn or fabric alone or in conjunction with any other commodity or material, or by way of commission, transportation charge, or other charge, or discount, premium, or other privilege, or by upgrading, tying-agreement, trade understanding, or otherwise.

(d) Attempts to violate. All persons are prohibited from agreeing, offering, soliciting, or attempting to do any of the acts prohibited by this regulation.

SEC. 23. Enforcement. If you violate any provision of this revised regulation, you are subject to the criminal penalties, civil enforcement actions, and suits for damages provided for by the Defense Production Act of 1950.

SEC. 24. Petitions to amend this revised regulation. Any person seeking an amendment of this revised regulation may file a petition for amendment in accordance with Price Procedural Regulation 1.

SEC. 25. Definitions. (a) "Manufacturer" means a person who for his own account sells yarn or fabric he produces or has produced for him. You are not a manufacturer unless you substantially change the form of some commodity or commodities, combine two or more commodities into a different one, or create a new commodity from existing ones. If you merely package, label, market, promote, or sell a yarn or fabric or combine yarns or fabrics without substantially changing their form, you are not a manufacturer. If you merely perform an industrial service for the account of others on a yarn or fabric you are not a manufacturer with respect to such yarn or fabric.

(b) "Wool" means the fibres from the fleece of the sheep or lamb, or the hair of the Angora or Cashmere goat or of the camel, alpaca, llama, or vicuna, and shall include tops and noils, but shall not include wool wastes.

(c) "Wool wastes" means waste made in the process of manufacturing any wool yarn or fabric including card wastes, laps and threads. It also includes reprocessed, reworked, and reused wool.

(d) "Fabric" means apparel fabrics, blankets, non-apparel fabrics other than blankets, and felts, if such fabric contains 25 percent or more wool or wool waste by fibre weight. Soft surface floor coverings subject to Supplementary Regulation 11 of the General Ceiling Price Regulation are not included.

(e) "Yarn" means yarn containing 25 percent or more wool or wool waste by fibre weight.

(f) "Class of purchaser or purchaser of the same class" is determined in the first instance by reference to your own practice of setting different prices for sales to different purchasers or groups of purchasers. The practice may (but need not) be based on characteristics or distribution level of the buyer (for instance, manufacturer, wholesaler, individual retail store, retail chain, mail order house, government agency, public institution). It may (but need not) be based on the location of the purchaser or the quantity purchased by him. If you have followed the practice of giving an individual customer a price differing from that charged others, that customer is a separate class of purchaser.

If in your industry a practice prevails of charging different prices for sales to groups of buyers based on their characteristics or distributive level, any such group to whom you did not make sales during your base period and for whom you did not have a customary differential in effect during or before your base period, is a separate class of purchaser as to you.

(g) "Most closely competitive seller of the same class" means the seller with whom you are in most direct competition. You are in direct competition with another seller who sells the same type of yarn or fabric to the same classes of purchasers in similar quantities, on similar terms, and with approximately the same amount of service.

(h) "Written offer to sell" means an offer in writing to a customer to sell a yarn or fabric at a specified price. It includes a written price list distributed to the trade or a substantial number of customers in the seller's customary manner. The term does not include an offer at a price intended to withhold a yarn or fabric from the market or used as a bargaining price by a seller who usually sells at a price lower than his asking price.

(i) "Delivered": A commodity shall be deemed to have been delivered if it was received by the purchaser or by any carrier, including a carrier owned or controlled by the seller, for shipment to the purchaser.

(j) "Decorations" means silk, synthetics, worsted or cotton threads added to a fabric to enhance its style value.

(k) "Person" means an individual, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of persons, or legal successor or representatives of any of the foregoing, and includes the United States or any other government and their political subdivisions or agencies.

(l) "Sell" includes sell, supply, dispose, barter, exchange, lease, transfer, and contracts and offers to do any of the foregoing. The terms "sale", "selling", "sold", "seller", "buy", "purchase", and "purchaser" shall be construed accordingly.

(m) The pronoun "you" as used in this regulation indicates the person subject to the regulation.

(n) All other trade terms used in this regulation have the meanings generally accepted in the trade.

Effective date. This revised regulation shall become effective on May 9, 1951.

NOTE: The record-keeping and reporting requirements of this revised regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

MICHAEL V. DISALLE,
Director of Price Stabilization.

[Ceiling Price Regulation 35]

CPR 35—CEILING PRICES FOR WOOL AND RELATED FIBRES

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Ceiling Price Regulation 35 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

The world-wide demand since 1945 for wool fibres of all qualities has created a situation in which consumption has exceeded current production at an annual rate of over 300 million clean pounds a year. During the period between the end of World War II and June 1950, the sharp price increases which would normally have resulted from such a situation, had been moderated by the existence of large stocks of wool accumulated during the Second World War, amounting in 1945 to 2.3 billion clean pounds. By the summer of 1950 however, these stocks were virtually exhausted, while world requirements had increased, due to the upward revision of military needs occasioned by the outbreak of hostilities in Korea. Although world production of wool has increased slightly since the end of the World War II, this increase has lagged far behind the surge of civilian and military demands. Furthermore, wool production in the United States has decreased 45 percent below the pre-World War II levels, and as a consequence about 70 percent of United States wool requirements must be imported.

When, in June 1950, the moderating influence of large supply stocks vanished, due to the depletion of these stocks, the disproportionate relationship between supply and demand led to a spiraling of world wool prices. The prices reached in the first week of April, 1951 were 210 percent of those prevailing in June 1950. American wool dealers, however, were required by the General Ceiling Price Regulation to charge prices no higher than the highest at which they had made deliveries between December 19, 1950 and January 25, 1951. The ceilings thus fixed not only varied from dealer to dealer but also represented, in many cases, a price distortion between different grades and types of wool resulting from the differing circumstances surrounding each delivery. Moreover, due to abnormally low United States wool production, the 1950 domestic clip had been virtually all sold and delivered to topmakers or mills by November or early December of that year. Except for insignificant amounts, shearing of the 1951 clip did not begin until the latter part of February. As a consequence, most dealers made no deliveries of domestic wool during the base period fixed by the General Ceiling Price Regulation, and because they were unable to compute ceiling prices under other methods prescribed in that regulation, they did not establish ceiling prices on many, if not all, of the grades and lengths of domestic wool. Dealers had begun contracting for the 1951 domestic clip in August and September of 1950. By February 1, 1951, about 80 percent of this clip had been contracted for in advance of shearing, and about 90 percent of this amount is still under contract for delivery to topmakers, and worsted and woolen mills. The many dealers who have not established ceiling prices for domestic wool under the General Ceiling Price Regulation are thus unable to deliver this wool, but, at the same time they are required to pay the grower in settlement of their contracts with him. This has placed a heavy financial burden upon the trade. In addition, it has resulted in a shortage of wool to those mills who have based production plans on the acquisition of wool for which they previously contracted from such dealers.

This regulation establishes dollar and cents ceilings on wool, alpaca, and mohair and on tops and noils, which are semimanufactures of wool used as raw material by woolen and worsted mills. The ceilings fixed under this regulation do not apply at the grower level, since there is presently insufficient information available upon which to predicate such ceilings. The prices fixed in this regulation will allow the delivery of wool under the majority of contracts previously made which it is believed are at prices lower than the ceiling prices established in this regulation. Moreover, this regulation will permit the marketing of that portion of the domestic clip still in producers' hands. The wool prices which are fixed by this regulation are at a level sufficiently high to allow the importation of wool at prices currently quoted in the world markets. Nevertheless, they represent a rollback of 9 to 12 percent from the highest sales made during the base period of the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

Prices now prevailing in foreign markets, and reflected in the price schedules of this regulation, are 21 percent lower than those reached in the first week of April, the peak of the post-Korean in-

[1] The portions of the General Ceiling Price Regulation here referred to applicable to manufacturers, are as follows:

SEC. 16. (a) Base period records. You must preserve and keep available for examination by the Director of Price Stabilization those records in your possession showing the prices charged by you for the commodities or services which you delivered or offered to deliver during the base period. • • •

(2) In addition, on or before March 22, 1951, you must prepare and preserve a statement showing the categories of commodities in which you made deliveries and offers for delivery during the base period. • • •

(3) On or before March 22, 1951, you must also prepare and preserve a ceiling price list, showing the commodities in each category (listing each model, type, style, and kind), or the services, delivered or offered for delivery by you during the base period together with a description or identification of each such commodity or service and a statement of the ceiling price. Your ceiling price list may refer to an attached price list or catalog. • • •

(4) You must also prepare and preserve a statement of your customary price differentials for terms and conditions of sale and classes of purchasers, which you had in effect during the base period.

• • • • •

(b) Current records. If you sell commodities or services covered by this regulation you must prepare and keep available for examination by the Director of Price Stabilization for a period of two years, records of the kind which you customarily keep showing the prices which you charge for the commodities or services. In addition, you must prepare and preserve records indicating clearly the basis upon which you have determined the ceiling price for any commodities or services not delivered by you or offered for delivery during the base period. • • •

"Base period" as used in section 16 of the General Ceiling Price Regulation means December 19, 1950, to January 25, 1951.

crease, and correspond to the levels attained in early January of this year. Although the ceiling prices established in this regulation reflect the price decline of recent weeks they are not intended to provide a level to be maintained for the indefinite future. Actually, the establishment of such prices is dictated by the necessity of freeing the movement of wool to mills threatened with suspension of operations due to lack of raw materials. Although lower than the levels reached in April of this year, these prices are above any attained in past years. Any modifications of wool price levels by other agencies of the United States Government acting alone, or in agreement with foreign governments, will be taken into account in future adjustments of this regulation. Moreover, the initial sales of the Southern Hemisphere clip during the middle of the summer of 1951 may offer a reasonable basis for a revision of the ceiling prices established by this regulation.

In the interim period, this regulation, although applicable only to sales within the United States of America, should prove effective in checking any further tendency toward spiraling prices in foreign markets where Americans have been among the strongest buyers, especially during the period between June 1950 and April 1951. This level of ceiling prices should enable American requirements to be imported on an orderly basis, without the unnecessary bidding up of prices by competitive pressure among American buyers at foreign auctions.

Although the principal grades and lengths of wool and similar fibres have been given definitive ceilings, the countless variety of different styles, types, and qualities prohibits the listing of each possible variation. Provision has been made, however, for wools or other fibres not listed on the schedule by requiring a seller of such wools and fibres to apply, to the nearest grade and length listed in this regulation, the differences in quoted cost to him between the listed and unlisted wool or other fibre. This method will establish ceiling prices for unlisted grades in line with the grades listed in this regulation, and at the same time will take account of current inter-grade differentials.

The price differentials between grades and lengths of wool listed in this regulation reflect the situation as it has developed during the past few months. During periods of scarcity the spread between the finer and coarser grades has a tendency to contract. In recent months this tendency has also been heightened by the large volume of purchases of military fabrics, many of which contain grades of wool lower than those found in the majority of civilian fabrics. Consequently, the intergrade differentials established by the listed prices in this regulation are narrower than those existing during the past two years when supplies were more closely correlated with demand and when military requirements were at a minimum. Such narrowing of differentials is necessary, however, in order to avoid the cessation or slowing down of imports of such coarser wools, forcing fabric and apparel manufacturers to discontinue their lower priced items.

The recent price history of fibres, other than wool, listed in the regulation is closely parallel to that of wool. Consequently, the same considerations involved in establishing the levels of prices and inter-grade differentials for wool are applicable to such other fibres.

The price schedules for tops and noils are based upon the level established for wool. An analysis of historical price relationships indicates that the levels which have been fixed for tops and noils are in line with prices established for wool. An analysis of the cost of converting wool into top substantiates the conclusion that the top prices provide a fair margin over costs. Although during a time of short supply there is always present the danger of up-grading a product whose ceiling price is fixed, it is believed that this regulation avoids much of that danger by providing that top containing blends of wool must be priced by a weighted average of the ceiling prices of the components.

Discounts for inferior qualities of wool, mohair, alpaca, tops, and noils have been provided. Allowances for scouring, carbonizing, and certain other processing charges have also been incorporated in the regulation. These discounts and premiums reflect the normal valuation of such off- and premium grades in line with their quality or with the cost of the additional processing.

In formulating this regulation the Director of Price Stabilization has consulted with representatives of the industry to the extent practicable under the circumstances and has given consideration to their recommendations.

He has also given due consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objectives of the Defense Production Act of 1950; to prices prevailing during the period from May 24, 1950, to June 24, 1950, inclusive; and to relevant factors of general applicability.

In the judgment of the Director, based upon an analysis of the presently available data, the provision of this regulation and the ceiling prices established are generally fair and equitable and will effectuate the purpose of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

(1) Find the ceiling price of a wool listed in Schedule A of this section having a style and character most nearly like that of the wool you want to price.

(2) Find the dollars-and-cents difference in cost between the most nearly like wool and the wool you are pricing, which your customary source of supply (e. g., an Australian auction or a domestic seller) quoted in its customary manner on the most recent day prior to the date of your computation under this section.

(3) Apply this dollars-and-cents difference in cost to the ceiling price for the most nearly like wool. The result is your ceiling price for each pound of that lot which you are pricing. REG. X—REAL ESTATE CREDIT

INT. 31—NONRESIDENTIAL STRUCTURE

Newspaper printing plant. It is the opinion of the Board that a newspaper is a "manufactured product" within the meaning of section 2 (r) (5) (i) of Regulation X. Accordingly, the definition of "nonresidential structure" in section 2 (r) does not include a structure more than 80 percent of the floor space of which is used or designed for use in the printing of newspapers and, therefore, credit for the financing of such construction is not subject to Regulation X.

TITLE 43—PUBLIC LANDS: INTERIOR

Chapter I—Bureau of Land Management, Department of the Interior

[Circular No. 1791]

PART 250—PUBLIC SALES

ACTION AFTER PURCHASER IS DECLARED

Paragraphs (b) and (c) of § 250.12 are amended to read as follows:

(b) (1) Unless he has previously done so, the purchaser must, within 10 days after he has been so declared, file with the manager a statement of his citizenship, or if a partnership, a statement of the citizenship of its members. If the purchaser is an unincorporated association, a statement must be filed showing the citizenship of each member. A corporation is required to file a certified copy of its articles of incorporation showing that it is organized under the laws of the United States, or of some State, Territory or possession thereof, and that it is authorized to acquire and hold real estate in the State or Territory in which the land is situated, and it must furnish a statement showing the percentage of each class of its stock, and the percentage of all of its stock, which is owned or controlled by or on behalf of persons whom the corporation knows to be or has reason to believe are aliens, or who have addresses outside of the United States, indicating which classes of stock have voting rights. If more than 10 percent of the voting stock, or of all of the stock, is owned or controlled by or on behalf of such persons, the corporation must give their names and addresses, the amount and class of stock held by each, and, to the extent known to the corporation or which can be reasonably ascertained by it, the facts as to the citizenship of each such person.

(2) If the purchaser declared by the manager is an alien individual, a partnership a member of which is an alien, an unincorporated association any appreciable number of the members of which are aliens, or a corporation, any appreciable percentage of the stock of which is held by aliens, and if the sale to such purchaser has not previously been approved by the Secretary, the declaration of the purchaser is subject to approval by the Secretary of the Interior, and the manager will withhold the cash certificate until such approval has been given. Such purchaser may submit a statement of reasons why the declaration should be approved despite the question of citizenship.

(c) When there has been full compliance with the regulations in this part, the manager will issue a cash certificate to the purchaser.

PROPOSED RULE MAKING

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

[47 CFR, Part 31]

[Docket No. 9958]

UNIFORM SYSTEM OF ACCOUNTS FOR CLASS A AND CLASS B TELEPHONE COMPANIES

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

In the matter of amendment of Part 31 (Uniform System of Accounts for Class A and Class B Telephone Companies) of the Commission's rules and regulations and related interpretation in Case 6-R-1 of Telephone Accounting Bulletin No. 1 (Appendix A to Part 31).

1. Notice is hereby given of proposed rule making in the above-entitled matter.

2. It is proposed to amend Part 31 of the Commission's rules and regulations and Case 6-R-1 of Telephone Accounting Bulletin No. 1 (Appendix A to Part 31) as set forth below to become effective six months after the adoption of the final order herein with the provision, however, if the order is adopted that any carrier may make these amendments effective at any date subsequent to the date of such adoption.

3. The proposed amendments provide administrative relief to Class A and Class B telephone companies with respect to their original cost accounting in the following two respects:

First, the text of account 100.4, "Telephone plant acquisition adjustment," is to be revised so as to permit carriers to write off certain debit or credit amounts in that account not exceeding $2,000 to operating expenses without prior approval of the Commission.

Secondly, Case 6-R-1 is to be revised so as to permit accounting on the basis of acquisition cost rather than original cost to predecessors with respect to acquisitions from non-affiliates where the purchase price is less than $25,000 for Class A and less than $5,000 for Class B companies. At present these dollar limits are $5,000 and $1,000, respectively.

4. The proposed amendments are issued under authority of sections 4 (i) and 220 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended.

5. Any interested party who is of the opinion that the proposed amendments should not be adopted, or should not be adopted in the manner proposed herein, may file with the Commission on or before June 1, 1951, a statement or brief setting forth his comments. At the same time persons favoring the amendments as proposed may file statements in support thereof. Comments or briefs in reply to the original comments or briefs may be filed on or before June 15, 1951. The Commission will consider all such comments that are presented before taking action in the matter and, if any comments are submitted which appear to warrant the holding of oral argument, notice of the time and place of such oral argument will be given.

6. In accordance with the provisions of § 1.764 of the Commission's rules and regulations, an original and fourteen copies of all statements, briefs, or comments filed shall be furnished to the Commission.

Adopted: May 2, 1951

Released: May 3, 1951.

b. Immediately following subparagraph (2) of § 31.100:4 (c), insert the following new subparagraph:

(3) Within one year from the date of inclusion in this account of a debit or credit amount with respect to a current acquisition, the company may dispose of the total amount (other than that portion relating to land) arising from an acquisition of telephone plant by a lump-sum charge or credit, as appropriate, to account 614, "Amortization of telephone plant acquisition adjustment," without further approval of the Commission, provided that such amount does not exceed $2,000 and that the plant was not acquired from an affiliated company.

c. In Telephone Accounting Bulletin No. 1 (Appendix A to Part 31), redesignate "Case 6–R–1 (Cancels Case 6)" issued on July 13, 1939, and amended on June 20, 1944, as "Case 6–R–2 (Cancels Case 6–R–1)." Delete the present note and amend the first paragraph of the "answer" to read as follows:

[Docket No. AO–72–A15–RO–1]

HANDLING OF MILK IN TOLEDO, OHIO, MARKETING AREA

NOTICE OF RECOMMENDED DECISION AND OPPORTUNITY TO FILE WRITTEN EXCEPTIONS WITH RESPECT TO A PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE TENTATIVE MARKETING AGREEMENT, AND TO THE ORDER, AS AMENDED

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.) and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), notice is hereby given of the filing with the Hearing Clerk of the recommended decision of the Assistant Administrator, Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, with respect to a proposed amendment to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Toledo, Ohio, marketing area. Interested parties may file written exceptions to this decision with the Hearing Clerk; United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., not later than the close of business the 10th day after publication of this decision in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Exceptions should be filed in quadruplicate.

Preliminary statement. The hearing, on the record of which the proposed amendment to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, as amended, was formulated, was conducted at Toledo, Ohio, on June 1, 1950, and reopened on November 30, 1950, pursuant to notices thereof which were issued on May 5, 1950 (15 F. R. 2804) and November 17, 1950 (15 F. R. 7980).

The material issues of record related to:

1. A revision of the marketing area to include certain parts of Monroe County, Michigan.

2. Provision of a procedure for handling milk under the regulation of another Federal Order.

3. A change in the Class I price differentials in certain months and in the Class II price differentials in all months, with provision that such differentials be at lower levels under certain market supply-demand conditions.

A recommended decision with respect to issue No. 3 was filed by the Assistant Administrator, Production and Marketing Administration, on January 9, 1951. Issues No. 1 and No. 2 are covered by the findings and conclusions made in this decision.

Findings and conclusions. The following findings and conclusions on the material issues decided herein are hereby made upon the basis of the record of the hearing:

(1) The marketing area should be revised to embrace the territory including incorporated cities and villages, within the townships of LaSalle, Monroe and Frenchtown in Monroe County, Michigan, in addition to the territory now in the marketing area.

Producers proposed that the marketing area be extended farther northward into Michigan to include the city of Monroe and surrounding areas. It was shown that a large proportion of the milk sold to consumers in this area is distributed by handlers under the Toledo order. Most of the milk supply of the area is produced on dairy farms within the Toledo milkshed. Dairy farmers supplying milk distributors who are not handlers under the Toledo order do not receive order prices and their milk is not paid for on a use classification basis. Part of these dairy farmers are members of the proponent marketing cooperative, and milk delivered by these member producers is paid for on a flat price basis which often results in a lower cost to these distributors for Class I milk than the cost of Class I milk to Toledo handlers.

It was shown that the same conditions affect the production of milk for this area and the Toledo area since most of the dairy farms are intermingled with those supplying milk to the Toledo market. The territory proposed to be added to the Toledo marketing area adjoins the present marketing area and is similar in all respects to the territory within the marketing area. Health requirements with respect to milk in this area are similar to those in effect in the present marketing area. The provisions of the Toledo order are therefore appropriate for regulation of the marketing of milk in this additional area. It is concluded that dairy farmers furnishing milk for this portion of Monroe County should be included in any benefits of the Toledo order and that orderly marketing will be promoted by including this area in the Toledo marketing area.

(2) A handler whose milk disposed of as Class I milk in the marketing area other than to another handler is subject to the classification and payment provisions of another Federal order should be exempt from all except the reporting and auditing provisions of the Toledo order. A handler who disposes of Class I milk within the marketing area of another Federal order which milk is not subject to the payment provisions of such order should be charged at the higher of the Class I prices under such order and the Toledo order.

Various proposals were made regarding the application of the Toledo order to persons distributing Class I milk in the Toledo marketing area and also in the marketing area of another Federal order. Testimony indicated that a primary object should be to bring about payment for milk at not lower than the price applicable in the area in which the milk is distributed. It was suggested that higher payments made because of higher class prices in other areas be prorated to all producers in some manner, and another suggestion was made that such payments be reflected in a higher blend price of the handler making such payments. Considering the nature of the nearby markets in which Toledo handlers may dispose of Class I milk, it appears that two provisions are necessary to make equitable charges for milk and to avoid conflict in the application of the provisions of two or more Federal orders. A handler whose milk disposed of in the Toledo marketing area is subject to the pricing provisions of another Federal order should be exempt from all of the provisions of the Toledo order except reporting and auditing. A handler disposing of Class I milk in the marketing area of another Federal order should be required to account for such milk at the Class I price of the other order or the Toledo order, whichever is higher, if such milk is not subject to the pricing and payment provisions of the other order. These provisions are not in conflict with corresponding provisions of Federal orders in nearby markets. They would result in charging equal prices to the various handlers involved for milk disposed of as Class I in the various markets. The proceeds of any charges at higher prices than provided by the Toledo order may equitably be distributed to producers supplying the handler making the sales in the higher priced market. This method of distributing such proceeds is appropriate in the Toledo market having an individual handler pool and no equalization fund whereby a distribution to all producers in the market may be made.

General findings. (a) The proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the marketing area and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest; and

(c) The proposed order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

(d) All milk and milk products handled by handlers as defined in the order, as amended, and as defined in the order as hereby proposed to be amended, are in the current of interstate commerce or directly burden, obstruct or affect interstate commerce in milk or its products.

Rulings on proposed findings and conclusions. Briefs were filed on behalf of producers and handlers. The briefs contained statements of fact, proposed findings and conclusions, and arguments with respect to the provisions of the proposed amendment. Every point covered in the briefs was carefully considered along with the evidence in the record in making the findings and reaching the conclusions hereinbefore set forth. To the extent that the findings and conclusions proposed in the briefs are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions contained herein, the request to make such findings or to reach such conclusions is denied on the basis of the facts found and stated in connection with the conclusions in this recommended decision.

Recommended marketing agreement and amendment to the order. The following amendment to the order, as amended, is recommended as the detailed and appropriate means by which the foregoing conclusions may be carried out. The recommended marketing agreement is not included in this decision because the regulatory provisions thereof would be identical with those contained in the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended.

[Docket No. AO-229]

HANDLING OF MILK IN CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA, MARKETING AREA

NOTICE OF RECOMMENDED DECISION AND OPPORTUNITY TO FILE WRITTEN EXCEPTIONS WITH RESPECT TO A PROPOSED MARKETING AGREEMENT AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the "act," and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR, Part 900), notice is hereby given of the filing with the Hearing Clerk of the recommended decision of the Assistant Administrator, Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, with respect to a proposed marketing agreement and order regulating the handling of milk in the Cedar Rapids, Iowa, marketing area. Interested parties may file written exceptions to this decision with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., not later than the close of business the 20th day after publication of this decision in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Exceptions should be filed in quadruplicate.

Preliminary statement. The hearing, on the record of which the proposed marketing agreement and order was formulated, was conducted at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, on December 11–14, 1950, pursuant to notice thereof which was issued on November 20, 1950 (15 F. R. 8084).

The material issues of record related to:

(1) Whether the handling of milk in the Cedar Rapids, Iowa, marketing area is in the current of interstate or foreign commerce or directly burdens, obstructs, or affects interstate or foreign commerce in milk or milk products;

(2) Whether the issuance of an order regulating the handling of milk in the Cedar Rapids, Iowa, marketing area will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act; and

(3) The appropriate terms and conditions to be included in an order with respect to:

(a) The scope of regulation,
(b) The classification of milk,
(c) Transfers,
(d) Class prices,
(e) Payments to producers,
(f) The administrative assessment,
(g) Marketing services, and
(h) Other administrative provisions.

Findings and conclusions. The following findings and conclusions on the material issues are based upon evidence in the record.

Interstate commerce. The handling of milk in the Cedar Rapids, Iowa, marketing area is in the current of interstate commerce or directly burdens, obstructs, or affects interstate commerce in milk or its products.

Substantial quantities of milk approved and available for use in the marketing area have been sold, and were regularly being sold at the time of the hearing, to markets outside the State of Iowa. Such outlets for milk will probably continue to be available. Milk approved and available for use in the marketing area has also been sold from time to time in the Quad Cities Marketing area where the handling of milk is regulated by a marketing order issued by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Producers supplying milk for the marketing area are interspersed among farmers supplying milk for other markets regulated by orders of the Secretary and among farmers selling milk which is utilized in milk products which are in the current of interstate commerce. Certain milk products which are distributed in the marketing area come from out-of-state sources or from handlers under other marketing orders issued by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Large quantities of milk approved and available for use in the marketing area are manufactured into milk products and sold in the current of interstate commerce. Such milk products have been sold in substantial amounts to Commodity Credit Corporation.

During the season when local milk supplies are lowest, supplemental supplies for the proposed marketing area or portions thereof have been acquired from sources outside of Iowa. Such supplemental supplies were being procured from sources in Wisconsin in November 1950.

In view of the conditions described above, it is concluded that the handling of milk in the proposed Cedar Rapids marketing area is in the current of and directly burdens, obstructs and affects interstate commerce in milk and milk products.

Need for an order. There is a need for an order to regulate the handling of milk in the Cedar Rapids, Iowa, marketing area, and such an order, with terms and conditions as described hereinafter, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

Certain conditions existing in the proposed marketing area cause or tend to cause instability and disorder in the marketing of milk produced for that area.

A large portion of the milk supply for the marketing area is sold directly to the processor or handler with the individual producer serving as his own marketing agent. Terms of sale are established to a large extent by the handler.

Prices received by producers delivering to different handlers vary widely. Averaging the last 12 months for which information is contained in the record, prices paid by the six largest handlers in the marketing area ranged from $3.15 to $3.88. Some handlers pay quality or quantity premiums but the conditions requisite to receiving such premiums and the amounts of such premiums vary among handlers. The record indicates that the maximum amount of any such premiums paid by any handler is about 20 cents.

Prices paid to producers by some of the larger handlers are not based upon utilization of their milk, and in some months producers delivering milk to these handlers have received prices which were only slightly higher than prices paid by manufacturing plants and were substantially lower than prices received by producers who supply milk for nearby markets, some of which are regulated by orders of the Secretary. In April, May, and June 1950 the average prices paid producers (exclusive of any quantity or quality premiums which might have been paid) by each of the four largest handlers in Cedar Rapids ranged from $2.80 to $3.15. For these same three months the prices paid dairy farmers delivering to the manufacturing plants used in the computation of prices in the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Quad Cities marketing area averaged $2.81 per hundredweight and the minimum prices paid producers supplying the Quad Cities market averaged $3.39.

Utilization of milk varies among handlers. Some use substantially all of their milk supply in the higher value fluid products while others use a large proportion in manufactured products.

The cooperative association which handles milk does not process and distribute milk. It supplies milk in bulk quantities to other handlers and disposes of Grade A milk which from time to time is not needed in the marketing area. Such surpluses of locally approved milk are normal in any market which is adequately supplied. These surpluses exist because of the different seasonal patterns of fluid milk consumption and production and because of the day-to-day fluctuations in sales and supply. Some method of distributing the burden of this surplus milk among all handlers and producers seems desirable. Issuance of an order appears to be the only way of effecting this distribution.

Producers and cooperative associations can exert considerable influence toward assuring an adequate but not excessive supply of milk for the market if information is available from which they can appraise market-wide conditions. Producers and cooperative associations can also market their milk more efficiently if such information is available. No such information has been available. Accurate and detailed information of this nature would be made public in the operation of a milk marketing order. The proposed order set forth hereinafter will also provide all producers with check-weighing, sampling, and testing services. Many of the producers have not been receiving such services.

Cooperative associations have attempted to correct the conditions in the market which contribute to instability and disorder, but have not been able to do so. Institution of a marketing program other than a marketing order which would correct these conditions would require cooperation between all handlers and cooperative associations. Such cooperation has not prevailed. Issuance of an order appears to be the only means of correcting these conditions. It is therefore concluded that an order regulating the handling of milk in the Cedar Rapids, Iowa, marketing area, with terms and conditions as described hereinafter, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

Terms and conditions; scope of regulation. The area within which the handling of milk should be regulated—that is, the Cedar Rapids, Iowa, marketing area—should include all of the territory within the corporate limits of the cities of Cedar Rapids and Iowa City, Iowa. This order would be applicable to "handlers." A handler would be (1) any person who operates a milk processing plant which is approved by and is under inspection of the appropriate health authorities and from which milk is disposed of in the marketing area, either directly or through a second plant, as Class I milk (as defined hereinafter) on wholesale or retail routes or from plant stores, or (2) any cooperative association with respect to milk of producers which it causes to be diverted from any milk processing plant as described above to a milk plant other than a milk processing plant as described above. The term "producer" is used to denote those dairy farmers who are engaged in the production of milk for the marketing area and who are entitled to receive the minimum prices prescribed in the order, and should include those farmers who produce milk in conformity with the requirements of the Cedar Rapids or Iowa City health authorities for the production of milk to be consumed as milk and who make such milk available for such use.

The marketing area proposed by both producers and handlers would have included practically the entire area within which Cedar Rapids and Iowa City handlers distribute milk. It would have included all of Benton, Cedar, Delaware, Iowa, Johnson, Jones, and Linn Counties. In many of the cities, towns, and communities in these counties local distributors also sell milk. In Benton and Delaware Counties milk processed in Waterloo is sold. In Cedar County milk from handlers subject to the Quad Cities marketing order is sold. Milk is sold in Delaware County by Dubuque handlers and in Jones County by a Clinton handler. These seven counties are therefore not an area wholly supplied by Cedar Rapids and Iowa City handlers.

The combined population of Cedar Rapids and Iowa City constitutes over 40 percent of the total population of the seven counties. Except for Cedar Rapids and Iowa City, there are in the seven counties only eleven towns and cities with populations greater than 1,000, only one of which has a population of more than 5,000.

In recent years there has been a tendency for milk dealers in the larger cities to extend their distribution into small cities and towns in surrounding areas. Cedar Rapids and Iowa City handlers distribute a very large proportion of the milk sold in surrounding areas out to the point where they encounter competition from other large cities such as Clinton, Dubuque, Quad Cities and Waterloo. A few small dairies distribute milk in small cities and towns near Cedar Rapids and Iowa City, but in view of the tendency mentioned above, it is doubtful if the omission of such areas from the marketing area would deter Cedar Rapids and Iowa City handlers from making sales outside of the marketing area.

Health requirements of the cities and towns surrounding Cedar Rapids and Iowa City and of the State of Iowa pertaining to milk vary in many different respects from those in effect in Cedar Rapids and Iowa City. Inclusion in the marketing area of any territory outside of Cedar Rapids and Iowa City would present many problems, such as (1) the possible necessity of establishing two or more grades of milk with separate prices for each grade and (2) for the regulation of handlers whose major business is elsewhere, but who dispose of some milk in the marketing area.

Iowa City is about 25 miles from Cedar Rapids and has a population about three-eighths that of Cedar Rapids. Iowa City handlers have from time to time obtained supplemental supplies of milk from Cedar Rapids handlers. The Iowa City handlers have limited facilities for disposing of surplus milk and have relied to some extent on Cedar Rapids handlers' facilities. Although none of the handlers is presently distributing milk in both cities, they do compete for sales in smaller cities and towns and communities surrounding Cedar Rapids and Iowa City. A potentiality exists for a handler in either Cedar Rapids or Iowa City to develop distribution outlets in both cities. The health requirements for milk are similar and the producers for the two cities are extensively intermingled. The handling of milk in Cedar Rapids and Iowa City is interrelated to the extent that both cities should be included in the marketing area.

Producers supplying the Iowa City market favored inclusion of that city in the marketing area. Cedar Rapids and Iowa City handlers were represented jointly at the hearing and no objection to including Iowa City in the marketing area was expressed by any of the handlers.

It is therefore concluded that the cities of Cedar Rapids and Iowa City should comprise the marketing area.

The term "handler" is used in milk marketing orders to denote persons engaged in the handling of milk, who are the persons to whom the orders are applicable. In Cedar Rapids and Iowa City any person engaged in the processing and distribution of milk must have his milk processing plant approved by the respective city health authorities. The proposed order defines a plant so approved as an "approved plant." Any person who operates an approved plant from which Class I milk is distributed should be a handler. Two companies, one of which is a cooperative association, operate approved plants from which milk is regularly disposed of to other handlers' approved plants from which Class I milk is distributed. These companies should be handlers.

In this market as in many others, a cooperative association may arrange for diversion of milk from farms to manufacturing plants when the market's own surplus disposal facilities become overburdened. Provision should be made for a cooperative association to be a handler with respect to any milk so diverted by it.

The proposed order contains definitions for "producer milk" and "other source milk." Producer milk is milk received from producers and the minimum prices prescribed in the order are applicable to such milk. Other source milk is not subject to prices and payments prescribed in the order except that other source milk classified as Class I is subject to the administrative assessment and may be subject to other payments if such other source milk is priced under another Federal order. All milk received by a handler including other source milk, must be reported, classified and verified in order to establish the classification of producer milk.

In order to indicate the exact meaning of certain other terms used throughout the order and to insure that such terms have the same meaning in each usage, the order also contains definitions for act, Secretary, Department, person, delivery period, cooperative association, and producer-handler. These definitions are standard in most marketing orders and occasioned no controversy, whatever, at the hearing.

The classification of milk. From the evidence it is clear that the Cedar Rapids-Iowa City market is closely related to the Clinton, Dubuque and Quad Cities markets. It has shown that the milksheds are contiguous, that there is an occasional shifting of producers between markets, and that handlers from Cedar Rapids or Iowa City are in active competition with handlers from one or another of the above-mentioned markets for the trade in many of the communities lying between these markets. Accordingly milk must be classified and priced under the proposed order in such a way as to return to producers, prices comparable to those received by producers in the other markets, and to permit handlers to compete without disadvantage with handlers from the other markets for the fluid trade in areas outside the marketing area.

It has been concluded that there should be three classes of milk defined in the proposed order. Class I would contain those products which are required to be made from Grade A milk such as fluid milk, milk drinks, cream and cream products containing less butterfat than the standard for cream, as well as unaccounted for skim milk and butterfat, and shrinkage in excess of the allowable maximum.

The remainder of the milk must be utilized in the manufacture of dairy products which are not required to be made from Grade A milk. Such manufacturing milk, however, should be broken down into two classes since the markets for these products are of two types. There is a local market for ice cream ingredients, cottage cheese, and aerated products in which, because these products are somewhat less concentrated than other surplus milk products, local producers have an advantage of location and milk used for these products may be priced at a somewhat higher level than milk used for the more concentrated products. A separate class for pricing these less concentrated products should therefore be established. Evaporated and condensed milk should be included in this class also because the degree of concentration of these products is similar to that of ice cream ingredients, and in fact, condensed milk is an important constituent of ice cream. These products should be grouped together and classified as Class II.

Such uses, however, will not provide an outlet for all the surplus milk on the market at all times of the year. It is necessary, therefore, that an additional surplus class be defined and designated as Class III to which a somewhat lower price than Class II should apply. This class would contain the more concentrated products such as butter, American cheddar cheese, casein, and nonfat dry milk solids which are produced for sale on the national market. It would also include skim milk used for animal feed which is a very low valued salvage use of skim milk and allowable shrinkage. Shrinkage up to 2 percent of producer receipts and all shrinkage on other source milk should be classified as Class III. An efficiently operated fluid milk plant should be able to keep its shrinkage within that figure which is the percentage of shrinkage permitted in other nearby markets under Federal regulation. The evidence indicates that a similar allowance would be reasonable for the Cedar Rapids markets.

Some of the handlers in the market, however, conduct manufacturing operations in connection with their fluid milk plants. Much of the milk used in these manufacturing operations is other source milk which is not permitted to be used as fluid milk or cream. The entire shrinkage on this milk should be classified as Class III. To classify any of it as Class I would place the handler at a competitive disadvantage with other plants not subject to the order.

A further provision relating to classification specifies that it is the responsibility of the handler who receives the milk from producers to account for his entire receipts and to prove to the market administrator that such receipts should not be utilized in Class I. The purpose of this provision is to provide for adequate reporting, verification and auditing. No opposition to the provision was offered by any party.

This proposed classification is virtually identical to that of the Clinton and Dubuque orders and differs from the Quad Cities order mainly in that the latter order provides a separate class for cream and milk drinks. Under the method of accounting and pricing used in that order the per unit cost of cream to handlers is only slightly less than it would be were it classified in Class I. The cost of milk drinks is 15 cents per hundredweight less than if these products were in Class I. The establishment in the proposed order of a single class for all products which are required to be produced from milk meeting the Grade A standards of the market will not place handlers at a competitive disadvantage, and it will result in reasonable returns to producers for that portion of their milk which is disposed of in the form of Grade A products.

The only items which occasioned any controversy with respect to their classification were aerated products such as Reddi-Wip. These are directly competitive with fluid cream for the consumer trade, but are not required to be made from Grade A cream. One of the handlers, who would be subject to the proposed order, manufactures such a product and distributes it over the entire state of Iowa and possibly into adjoining states. It is sold in competition with similar products which are produced from uninspected milk. It was suggested by both producers and handlers that this product be classified as Class I when sold in the marketing area and classified as Class II when sold outside the marketing area. In support of this proposal it was agreed that it competed with Grade A fluid cream when sold in the marketing area, and with uninspected milk when sold outside the area. It would not be feasible to attempt to classify this product differently depending on the location in which it sold. Since Grade A milk is not required for its manufacture either within or without the area, it has been concluded that it should be classified as Class II. To classify that portion of it which is sold within the marketing area as Class I, would not only increase the difficulties of accounting but would discriminate against the consumers of the marketing area.

Transfers. Specific rules are set forth in the proposed order for classifying or allocating milk which is transferred between handlers or between a handler and a nonhandler. These rules are the same as those governing transfers in the Clinton, Dubuque, and Quad Cities orders and occasioned no controversy.

They provide that all transfers of milk between handlers shall be Class I unless both handlers agree to a different classification in which case the milk shall be classified according to agreement. In either case the total value of the milk to producers would be the same, but the individual obligations of the handlers to the producer-settlement fund would vary depending on the ultimate classification of the milk each handler received.

With respect to milk transferred to a nonhandler it is provided that it shall be Class I unless the purchaser agrees that it was utilized otherwise and permits the market administrator to audit his books and records for the purpose of verification.

These provisions are designed to assure producers receiving the full utilization value for their milk if it is sold for use as a Class I product, and at the same time facilitate the movement of milk into manufacturing plants should the market receive more milk than can be readily disposed of through normal outlets.

In discussing the transfers provisions one witness pointed out that in many orders there is a provision that milk moved more than a specified distance from the market should be classified as Class I, and suggested that such a provision might be desirable in the Cedar Rapids market. However, no testimony was presented in support of this proposal and there is no evidence which would indicate the distance from the market which milk normally moves to manufacturing plant, or which would show how wide a radius would be necessary to include encompassing adequate facilities to absorb the seasonal surplus on the market.

The proposed order further provides that other source milk received by a handler shall be allocated to the lowest use in the handler's plant. This is to prevent other source milk from displacing the milk of producers who constitute its regular source of supply and on whom the market relies for a continuous supply of milk.

Class prices. As pointed out above under classification, it is necessary that milk be priced at a level which will return to producers prices comparable to those received in adjoining markets and which will permit handlers to compete with plants located in other markets.

It has been concluded that the proposed order should provide a specific Class I price, but that such price should be closely related to the prices fixed in the Quad Cities, Dubuque and Clinton orders. To accomplish this end it is necessary that the basic price to be used in determining the Class I price should be similar to that contained in the other markets. It has therefore been concluded that the Class I price should be based on the Class II price which would be the highest of the following: (a) The average price paid by a specified group of condenseries, (b) the price resulting from a formula based on the market values of butter and cheese, or (c) the Class III price which is a butter-nonfat-dry milk solids formula.

The first two alternatives are virtually the same as those provided in the other orders and would result in approximately the same price. The third alternative, the butter-nonfat-dry milk solids formula, is not included in the other orders at the present time. Normally the price resulting from the latter formula would be much lower than the price resulting from the other two formulae and it is unlikely that it will ever be the effective price. It has been included merely to preclude any possibility of a narrowing of the spread between fluid milk prices and manufacturing milk prices to a degree that would endanger the supply of fluid milk for the market. Use of these formulae, in addition to insuring that the Class I price will follow the pattern of the above mentioned markets, will maintain a proper relationship between the price of market milk and the value of milk used in the production of manufactured dairy products.

At the present time the Quad Cities and Clinton orders provide a Class I differential of 90 cents during January, February, and March; 70 cents during April, May, and June; and $1.15 during the remaining months. The Class I differential in the Dubuque order is 10 cents lower each month. In their brief handlers proposed that the differential in the proposed order be 15 cents less than that in the Quad Cities order and that a somewhat different seasonal pricing pattern be adopted. In support of the lower price it is argued that this is a surplus market and that supplies are adequate at all times. The evidence on this point, however, is conflicting. While it was asserted by certain witnesses that supplies were adequate, it was also shown by other witnesses, that during the period of short production at least some milk was imported from Wisconsin and other points into both Cedar Rapids and Iowa City.

It has been concluded that the Class I differential should be fixed 10 cents lower than the Class I differential in the Quad Cities market and should follow the same seasonal pattern. This would result in a price for Class I products identical to that in Dubuque and only slightly less than that in Quad Cities, since the Quad Cities order provides a separate classification for cream, milk drinks and skim milk, which is 5 cents per hundredweight less than the proposed Class I price.

It appears from the record that Cedar Rapids is more nearly similar to the Dubuque market from a supply situation and does not experience the extreme shortage of milk that has been characteristic of the Quad Cities. Likewise from the standpoint of procurement of milk from producers, there has been a much greater degree of competition with Dubuque than with Quad Cities. Shifting of producers between Cedar Rapids and Dubuque has occurred more frequently than between Cedar Rapids and Quad Cities.

The seasonal pattern of prices in the Cedar Rapids market should be the same as that followed in the adjoining markets. While there is some indication that the seasonal fluctuation in milk supplies is not identical, the evidence on this point is not conclusive, and whatever variation there may be is slight. Moreover because of the close interrelationship of these markets, it must be concluded that the Class I price must rise and fall simultaneously in all markets. Otherwise there could be recurring maladjustments between markets which could seriously disrupt the intermarket stability.

The proposed Class I price will permit handlers to compete outside the marketing area with other plants not subject to the regulation which are disposing of milk of a similar quality. Most of this competition at the present time is with plants subject to the Quad Cities, Dubuque and Clinton orders, and the price proposed for Cedar Rapids, as pointed out above, is fixed in direct relation to the prices in those markets. The only other major source of such competition is the Waterloo market. The record indicates that prices paid by Waterloo plants are competitive to the prices customarily paid in Cedar Rapids and in the nearby markets under regulation.

The basic price to be used in determining the Class I price should be fixed on the value of manufactured products during the preceding rather than during the current month. In addition to being necessary to maintain the proper price relationship between Cedar Rapids and nearby markets, it will permit handlers to know what they will be required to pay for milk at the beginning of the month in which it is sold. Use of the current month's manufacturing prices would prevent handlers from knowing the cost of their milk until the fourth or fifth day of the month following that in which it was sold.

Two classes should be established for milk used in the manufacture of dairy products which are not required to be made of approved milk. Class II which would contain cottage cheese, ice cream, ice cream mix, aerated products, condensed milk and similar products should be priced at the average price paid for milk by a group of midwestern condenseries, or on a butter-cheese formula whichever is higher. This butter-cheese formula was contained in the Federal marketing agreement and license for the evaporated milk industry and is the price which evaporating plants in the midwest were required to pay for milk for evaporating purposes under that instrument. It is generally used in other markets in the midwest under Federal regulations as an alternative to the actual paying prices of the condenseries. This is the level at which similar products are priced under the Dubuque, Clinton, and Quad Cities orders. As pointed out above under classification, local producers are in a preferred position with respect to the market for these products and milk so used should return a slightly higher price to them than milk used in the manufacture of the more concentrated products which must be sold on the national market. In order to prevent abnormal market changes in the prices of manufactured dairy products from endangering the supply of market milk by too great a narrowing the spread between fluid milk prices and manufacturing milk prices, it has been provided that the Class II price shall never be lower than the Class III price.

Class III which would include butter, cheese, nonfat dry milk solids, etc., should be priced on a formula based on the market values of butter and nonfat dry milk solids. The proposed formula would return to producers a somewhat higher price than milk similarly used in the Clinton, Dubuque or Quad Cities markets. In those markets the bulk of the surplus milk is manufactured into cheese or into butter and animal feed, outlets which normally yield somewhat lower returns than butter and nonfat dry milk solids. There are no drying facilities readily available to those markets.

There are three plants in Cedar Rapids, however, which have dryers and which are in a position to utilize the bulk of the surplus skim milk on the market. It appears reasonable, therefore, that Class III milk in the Cedar Rapids market should be priced on the value of butter and nonfat dry milk solids rather than at the lower price fixed in the adjoining Federal markets which are lacking in facilities.

The Class III formula which has been adopted is based on the normal yields of butter and nonfat dry milk solids in 100 pounds of milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content. It provides a manufacturing and handling allowance of approximately 78 cents per hundredweight. Of this amount 6 cents is allowed per pound of butterfat and 6.5 cents per pound of solids. The record indicates that there are the minimum costs incurred by plants in Cedar Rapids which operate on a rather small volume which is highly seasonal in character.

Under the proposed method of accounting it is necessary that class butterfat differentials be incorporated in the order. The Class I butterfat differential should be fixed at 1.4 times the market price of 92-score butter, the Class II differential at 1.2 times the market price of 92-score butter and the Class III differential at 1.2 times the butter price less 6 cents. These butterfat differentials reflect the approximate value of butterfat in milk when used in the various classes. In effect the use of butterfat differentials in each class provides separate pricing of the butterfat and skim milk, the price of the skim milk being equal to the difference between the class price and the butterfat value.

The proposed Class I differential is identical to that fixed in the Clinton, Dubuque, and Quad Cities orders. All of the evidence points up the necessity of maintaining the prices of milk and cream in the Cedar Rapids market at about the same level as that prevailing in the nearby markets under Federal regulation. This can be accomplished only through use of the same butterfat differential. It will have little effect on handlers' costs for milk to be disposed of as milk since the average butterfat content of the milk sold by handlers will approximate 3.5 percent.

Should handlers, however, distribute milk containing a higher butterfat percentage, producers should receive for the extra butterfat the same return that they would receive were it disposed of as fluid cream.

The butterfat differentials in Class II and Class III reflect the value of butterfat when used in manufactured dairy products, and should be priced at levels which will permit handlers to dispose of surplus milk in these outlets in competition with ungraded milk. The proposed Class II differential of 1.2 times the price of 92-score butter should provide a price for fat going into ice cream and similar products comparable to that which handlers would be required to pay for ungraded fat for the same uses. Likewise the proposed Class III butterfat differential would represent the value of butterfat used to produce butter, and is identical to the butterfat value used in arriving at the Class III price for milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content.

Payments to producers. The proposed order provides for a market-wide pool under which all producers supplying the market would receive the same prices for their milk regardless of its utilization by the handler who received the milk. The question of an individual-handler pool was raised by handlers but no direct evidence was presented in support thereof. The producers offered unanimous support to the proposal for a market-wide pool. The evidence indicates that a market-wide pool is best adapted to the needs of the market. Two plants, one cooperative and one proprietary, apparently carry the bulk of the surplus milk on the market, and serve as reserve supplies for the market as well as furnishing an outlet for the milk not needed by other handlers during the months of flush production. An individual-handler pool might work a hardship on these plants.

The order provides that producers be paid once a month, and specifies that in the case of a qualified cooperative association, the handler shall make payment to the cooperative association instead of the individual members, if the cooperative association has such authority in its membership contract and is desirous of exercising such privileges. The dates which have been fixed for these payments are justified on the record and are so spaced that ample time is provided the handlers and the market administrator for the filing of reports and the computations of the various prices.

The butterfat differential to be used in making payments to producers should be one-tenth of the price of 92-score butter on the Chicago market multiplied by 1.2. This is the same as the producer butterfat differential used in the Quad Cities, Clinton and Dubuque orders. Since local handlers compete with handlers in these markets for supplies of milk, it is necessary that the producer butterfat differentials be comparable. Otherwise there is a tendency for producers of very high or very low testing milk to shift markets even though the announced prices to producers at the nominal test are similar. Since under the proposed order, the butterfat differential is merely a means of prorating returns to producers, handlers' costs will not be affected by it.

The administrative assessment. It appears that an administrative assessment of 4 cents per hundredweight on all producer milk and on other source milk utilized in Class I will be required to defray the cost of administering the order, at least during its initial stages.

The market administrator is required to verify the utilization of all milk received, and therefore other source milk as well as producer milk should bear its proportionate share of the administrative cost. Other source milk apparently has been used in Class I at certain times during the year. An assessment on other source milk so used will apportion the expenses more equitably among handlers. The testimony indicates that some handlers receive substantial quantities of other source milk for their manufacturing operations and that application of the assessment to all the other source milk received by such a handler would place him at some disadvantage in disposing of manufactured dairy products in competition with persons not regulated by the order.

In view of the anticipated volume of milk to be regulated, a maximum of 4 cents per hundredweight should be adopted to guarantee a sufficient income to properly administer the order. A witness with experience in the administration of orders testified that the proposed rate was comparable to those provided for other markets of like size and indicated that office expenses are always relatively high at the beginning of a program. Should experience prove that a lesser sum were sufficient provision is made whereby the Secretary may reduce the assessment to whatever amount is necessary to meet the expenses of the office without amending the order.

Marketing services. Provision should be made for the performance by the market administrator of marketing services for producers who are not members of a cooperative association which is rendering similar services. These services should include sampling, testing, and checking the weights of milk delivered and the furnishing of market information. The testimony indicates that an assessment of 5 cents per hundredweight would probably be required to perform these services. This is the rate provided in the Clinton, Dubuque and Quad Cities orders. The actual cost of performing these services will vary with the volume of milk, the number of producers at a plant, etc., but it is unlikely that these services could be properly performed for less than the proposed rate. As in the case of the administrative assessment, the Secretary may reduce the amount of the assessment, should experience prove a lesser rate would provide sufficient funds to perform the required services.

In the case of producers who are members of a qualified cooperative association which is actually performing these services, handlers would be required to deduct from their payment whatever amount was provided in the contract between the cooperative association and such producers. This latter provision is in accordance with the act which exempts from the marketing service provision of orders, those producers who are members of a qualified cooperative association which the Secretary has determined is actually performing such services for its members.

Other administrative provisions. The other provisions of the order are of a general administrative nature. They define the powers and duties of the market administrator, prescribe the information to be reported by handlers and set forth the rules to be followed by the market administrator in making the computations required by the order. They also prescribe the length of time that records must be retained and provide a plan for the liquidation of the order in the event of its suspension or termination. They are similar to like provisions of other orders and except as set forth below require no explanation.

One provision of the order would exempt a producer-handler from all the regulatory provisions of the order except that requiring the filing of reports as requested by the market administrator. The producer-handler, since he is his own marketing agent is in a position to regulate his production to his sales and to completely control its disposition. He is in an entirely different position from the producer whose milk is marketed through a handler and should be exempt from the pricing and pooling provisions of the order. He should be required, however, to file reports when requested by the market administrator. Such reports are necessary to verify such person's continued status as a producer-handler as well as to supplement market information.

The order would also partially exempt a handler who, the Secretary has determined, is disposing of the greater portion of his milk in another area subject to another Federal marketing order. It would be impractical to attempt to regulate the same person under two different orders with respect to the same milk. The effective regulation should be that of the market in which such person has the greater portion of his sales. In order to insure equity, however, such person should not be permitted to purchase milk for sale in either marketing area at less than the price paid by other handlers in that marketing area. Therefore, it should be provided that if the price such handler is required to pay for Class I milk under the other order to which he is subject is less than the price provided in the proposed order, he should pay to the producer-settlement fund an amount equal to the difference between the two prices on all Class I milk disposed of within the marketing area. Such handler should also be required to report to the market administrator regularly so that he may ascertain the amount of milk disposed of within the area by such persons.

The order provides also for the retention of necessary records by handlers and for the ultimate termination of obligations. It is necessary for handlers to retain records in order to prove the utilization of milk and the payments made to producers. It is necessary that these records be kept for a substantial period of time since some transactions with respect to the handling of the producers' milk are not completed and audited until several months after producers have delivered the milk to handler's plant. Detailed records of this kind soon assume tremendous physical proportions and become burdensome for this reason. It is necessary that a definite time period be provided within which handlers must maintain their records and after which they will be relieved of so doing. The order should provide that handlers shall retain records for three years after the end of the delivery period or month to which such records relate. In terms of the volume of records which would be retained and the types of transactions involved in disposing of milk, the retention of records for three years is concluded to be a reasonable requirement. If litigation is in progress, it may be necessary to require records to be retained for a longer period and provision should be made for this contingency.

The order should provide for the termination of obligations to handlers after a reasonable period of time has elapsed. Without such a provision handlers may file claims which, because the period involved might extend back over many years, could be in substantial amounts. This creates uncertainties which could endanger the stability of the market and lead to serious inequities. The order should provide that any obligation to pay a handler shall terminate two years after the month in which the milk was received if an underpayment is claimed, or within two years after payment was made if a refund is claimed, unless within such period of time the handler files a petition, pursuant to section 8c (15) (A) of the act, claiming such money. Handlers also need the protection of provisions terminating their obligations to make payments. Since handlers cannot be forewarned always as to contingent liabilities, it is extremely difficult and burdensome for them to make adequate provision therefor by setting up reserves or by taking other precautionary measures. The obligation of any handler to pay money should, except under certain extraordinary conditions, such as litigation, terminate two years after the last day of the month during which the market administrator receives the handler's report of utilization of the milk involved in such obligation, unless within such two-year period the market administrator notifies the handler in writing that such money is due and payable. It is concluded that in general a period of two years is a reasonable time within which a market administrator should complete his auditing and inspection work and render any billings for money due under the order. Provisions are necessary also, as contained in the order included in this decision, to meet such contingencies as failure of the handler to submit required books and records and to deal with situations where fraud or willful concealment of information may be involved.

It was proposed that if a handler fails to make the required reports or payments, his name may be publicly announced by the market administrator, unless otherwise directed by the Secretary. Such a provision is provided for by the act and it is concluded that its adoption will facilitate the enforcement of the terms of the order.

General findings. (a) The proposed marketing agreement and the order and all of the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest; and

(c) The proposed order will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Proposed findings and conclusions. Briefs were filed on behalf of both the producers' associations and the majority of the handlers. The briefs contained proposed findings of fact, conclusions and argument with respect to the proposals discussed at the hearing. Every point covered in the briefs was carefully considered along with the evidence in the record in making the findings and reaching the conclusions hereinbefore set forth. To the extent that such suggested findings and conclusions contained in the briefs are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions contained herein the request to make such findings or to reach such conclusions are denied on the basis of the facts found and stated in connection with the conclusions in this decision.

Recommended marketing agreement and order. The following order is recommended as the detailed and appropriate means by which these conclusions may be carried out. The proposed marketing agreement is not included because the regulatory provisions thereof would be the same as those contained in the order:

(b) On or before the 20th day of each delivery period each handler shall submit to the market administrator such handler's producer payroll for the preceding delivery period which shall show:

(1) The total pounds of milk received from each producer and cooperative association and the total pounds of butterfat contained in such milk;

(2) The amount of payment to each producer and cooperative association; and

(3) The nature and amount of any deductions involved in such payments.

§ 931.32 Records and facilities. Each handler shall maintain and make available to the market administrator or to his representative during the usual hours of business such accounts and records of his operations and such facilities as are necessary for the market administrator to verify or to establish the correct data with respect to:

(b) The weights and tests for butterfat and other content of all milk, skim milk, cream and milk products handled;

(c) Payment to producers and cooperative associations; and

(d) The pounds of skim milk and butterfat contained in or represented by all milk, skim milk, cream, and milk products on hand at the beginning and end of each delivery period.

§ 931.33 Retention of records. All books and records required under this part to be made available to the market administrator shall be retained by the handler for a period of three years to begin at the end of the calendar month to which such books and records pertain: Provided, That if, within such three year period the market administrator notifies the handler in writing that the retention of such books and records or of specified books and records, is necessary in connection with a proceeding under section 8c (15) (A) of the act or a court action specified in such notice, the handler shall retain such books and records, or specified books and records, until further written notification from the market administrator. In either case the market administrator shall give further written notification to the handler promptly upon the termination of the litigation or when the records are no longer necessary in connection therewith.

CLASSIFICATION

§ 931.40 Skim milk and butterfat to be classified. All skim milk and butterfat in any form received by a handler during the delivery period and required to be reported pursuant to § 931.30 shall be classified by the market administrator pursuant to §§ 931.41 to 931.46, inclusive.

§ 931.41 Classes of utilization. Subject to the conditions set forth in §§ 931.43 and 931.44, the classes of utilization shall be as follows:

(a) Class I milk shall be all skim milk (including reconstituted skim milk) and butterfat disposed of in the form of milk, skim milk, buttermilk, flavored milk, flavored milk drinks, cream or any mixture (except those specified in paragraph (b) of this section) of cream and milk or skim milk containing more than 6 percent of butterfat and all skim milk and butterfat not specifically accounted for under paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section.

(b) Class II milk shall be all skim milk and butterfat used to produce evaporated milk, condensed milk, ice cream, ice cream mix, aerated products containing milk or cream or a combination thereof (such as "Reddi-Wip," "Instant Whip," etc.), cottage cheese, and any milk product other than those specified in paragraphs (a) and (c) of this section.

(c) Class III milk shall be all skim milk and butterfat used to produce butter, American type cheddar cheese, animal feed, casein and nonfat dry milk solids, and in shrinkage up to 2 percent of receipts from producers, and in shrinkage of other source milk.

§ 931.42 Shrinkage. The market administrator shall allocate shrinkage over a handler's receipts as follows:

(a) Compute the total shrinkage of skim milk and butterfat for each handler.

(b) Prorate the resulting amounts between the receipts of skim milk and butterfat received from producers and from other sources.

§ 931.43 Responsibility of handlers and reclassification of milk. (a) All skim milk and butterfat shall be Class I unless the handler who first receives such skim milk or butterfat can prove to the market administrator that such skim milk or butterfat should be classified otherwise.

(b) Any skim milk or butterfat (except that transferred to a producer-handler) shall be reclassified if verification by the market administrator discloses that the original classification was incorrect.

§ 931.44 Transfers. Skim milk or butterfat disposed of by a handler either by transfer or diversion shall be classified:

(a) As Class I milk if transferred or diverted in the form of milk, skim milk or cream to another handler, except a producer-handler, unless utilization in another class is mutually indicated in writing to the market administrator by both handlers on or before the 7th day after the end of the delivery period within which such transaction occurred, but in no event shall the amount classified in any class exceed the total use in such class by the transferee handler: Provided, That, if either or both handlers have received other source milk, the milk so transferred shall be classified at both plants so as to return the highest class utilization to producer milk.

(b) As Class I milk if transferred to a producer-handler in the form of milk, skim milk, or cream.

(c) As Class I milk if transferred or diverted in the form of milk, skim milk, or cream to a plant other than an approved plant, unless:

(1) The handler claims other classification on the basis of utilization mutually indicated in writing to the market administrator by both the handler and purchaser on or before the 7th day after the end of the delivery period within which such transfer or diversion occurred;

(2) Such purchaser maintains books and records showing the utilization of all skim milk and butterfat at his unapproved plant, which are made available if requested by the market administrator for the purpose of verification; and

(3) Such unapproved plant has actually used not less than an equivalent amount of skim milk and butterfat in the use indicated in such statement: Provided, That, if verification of such purchaser's records discloses that an equivalent amount of skim milk and butterfat has not been used in such indicated utilization, the remaining pounds shall be classified in series beginning with the next higher priced classification in which such purchaser had utilization.

§ 931.45 Computation of skim milk and butterfat in each class. For each delivery period, the market administrator shall correct for mathematical and other obvious errors the delivery period report submitted by each handler and shall compute the total pounds of skim milk and butterfat, respectively, in each class for such handler.

§ 931.46 Allocation of skim milk and butterfat classified. After computing pursuant to § 931.45 the classification of all skim milk and butterfat received by a handler, the market administrator shall determine the classification of milk received from producers as follows:

(a) Skim milk shall be allocated in the following manner:

(1) Subtract from the total pounds of skim milk in Class III the pounds of skim milk allocated to shrinkage of producer milk;

(2) Subtract from the remaining pounds of skim milk in each class in series beginning with the lowest price class in which the handler has use, the pounds of skim milk contained in other source milk;

(3) Subtract from the remaining pounds of skim milk in each class the pounds of skim milk contained in receipts from other handlers in accordance with its classification as determined pursuant to § 931.45;

(4) Add to the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class III the pounds of skim milk subtracted pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph; and

(5) If the remaining pounds of skim milk in all classes exceed the pounds of skim milk received from producers, an amount equal to the difference shall be subtracted from the pounds of skim milk in each class in series beginning with the lowest priced class in which the handler has use. Any amount so subtracted shall be called "overage."

(b) Butterfat shall be allocated in accordance with the same procedure outlined for skim milk in paragraph (a) of this section.

MINIMUM PRICES

§ 931.50 Subject to the provisions of § 931.51, the minimum prices per hundredweight to be paid by each handler for milk received from producers at his plant during the delivery period shall be as follows:

(a) Class I milk. The price for Class II milk for the previous delivery period plus the following premiums during the delivery periods indicated:

January, February, March	$0.80
April, May, June	.60
July through December	1.05

(b) Class II milk. The highest of the prices resulting from the computations made pursuant to subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph or to paragraph (c) of this section:

(1) The average of the basic or field prices reported to have been paid or to be paid for milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content received from farmers during the period beginning with the 16th day of the previous month and ending with the 15th day of the then current month at the following plants for which prices have been reported to the market administrator or to the Department:

Present Operator of Plant and Location of Plant
Amboy Milk Products Co., Amboy, Ill.
Borden Co., Dixon, Ill.
Borden Co., Sterling, Ill.
Carnation Co., Oregon, Ill.
Carnation Co., Morrison, Ill.
United Milk Products Co., Argo Bay, Ill.

(2) The price resulting from the following computations:

(i) Multiply by 6 the simple average as computed by the market administrator, of the daily wholesale selling prices (using the midpoint of any price range as one price) per pound of Grade A (92-score) bulk creamery butter as reported for the Chicago market during the delivery period by the Department;

(ii) Add an amount equal to 2.4 times the average as computed by the market administrator, of the daily wholesale prices of the cheese known as "Twine" as reported for the Chicago market during the delivery period by the Department;

(iii) Divide the resulting sum by 7;

(iv) Add 30 percent thereof; and

(v) Multiply the resulting sum by 3.5.

(c) Class III milk. The sum of the prices resulting from the following computations:

(1) Subtract 6 cents from the price per pound of butter computed pursuant to paragraph (b) (2) (i) of this section and multiply the result by 4.2, and

(2) From the simple average, as computed by the market administrator, of the weighted averages of carlot prices per pound of nonfat dry milk solids, spray and roller process, respectively, in barrels for human consumption, f. o. b. manufacturing plants in the Chicago area as published for the month by the Department, subtract 6½ cents, multiply the result by 8.2 and then multiply the resulting figure by 0.965. If the Department does not publish the above stated price for nonfat dry milk solids there shall be used in lieu thereof the midpoint between the simple averages (using in each price series the midpoint of any price range as one price) as computed by the market administrator, of the weekly Chicago wholesale carlot prices per pound of nonfat dry milk solids in barrels for human consumption, spray and roller process, respectively, as reported within the month by the Department and 8½ cents, rather than 6½ cents, shall be deducted in making this computation.

§ 931.51 Butterfat differentials to handlers. If the average butterfat content of the milk of any handler allocated to any class pursuant to § 931.46 is more or less than 3.5 percent there shall be added to the respective class price computed pursuant to § 931.50 for each one-tenth of 1 percent that the average butterfat content of such milk is above 3.5 percent or subtracted for each one-tenth of 1 percent that the average butterfat content of such milk is below 3.5 percent, an amount equal to the applicable butterfat differential computed as follows:

(a) Class I milk. Multiply by 1.40 the price per pound of butter computed pursuant to § 931.50 (b) (2) (i) for the delivery period and divide the result by 10.

(b) Class II milk. Multiply by 1.20 the price per pound of butter computed pursuant to § 931.50 (b) (2) (i) for the delivery period and divide the result by 10.

(c) Class III milk. Multiply by 1.20 the price per pound of butter computed pursuant to § 931.50 (b) (2) (i) for the delivery period, subtract 6 cents, and divide the result by 10.

§ 931.52 Emergency price provision. Whenever the provisions hereof require the market administrator to use a specific price (or prices) for milk or any milk product for the purpose of determining class prices or for any other purpose the market administrator shall add to the specified price the amount of any subsidy or other similar payment being made by any Federal agency, in connection with the milk or product associated with the price specified: Provided, That if for any reason the price specified is not reported or published as indicated, the market administrator shall use the applicable maximum uniform price established by regulations of any Federal agency plus the amount of any subsidy or other similar payment: Provided further, That if the specified price is not reported or published and there is no applicable maximum uniform price, or if the specified price is not reported or published and the Secretary determines that the market price is below the applicable maximum uniform price, the market administrator shall use a price determined by the Secretary to be equivalent to or comparable with the price specified.

APPLICATION OF PROVISIONS

§ 931.55 Producer-handler. Sections 931.40 through 931.52 and 931.60 through 931.76 shall not apply to a producer-handler.

§ 931.56 Handlers subject to other Federal orders. In the case of any handler who the Secretary determines, disposes of a greater portion of his milk as Class I milk in another marketing area regulated by another milk marketing agreement or order issued pursuant to the act, the provisions of this order shall not apply except as follows:

(a) The handler shall with respect to his total receipts of skim milk and butterfat make reports to the market administrator at such time and in such manner as the market administrator may require and allow verification of such reports by the market administrator.

(b) If the price which such handler is required to pay, under the other Federal order to which he is subject, for skim milk and butterfat which would be classified as Class I milk under this order is less than the price provided by this order, such handler shall pay to the market administrator for deposit into the producer-settlement fund (with respect to all skim milk and butterfat disposed of as Class I milk within the marketing area) an amount equal to the difference between the value of such skim milk or butterfat as computed pursuant to this part and its value as determined pursuant to the other order to which he is subject.

DETERMINATION OF UNIFORM PRICES

§ 931.60 Computation of value of milk. The value of milk received during each delivery period by each handler from producers shall be a sum of money computed by the market administrator by multiplying the pounds of such milk in each class by the applicable class prices and adding together the resulting amounts: Provided, That if the handler had overage of either skim milk or butterfat there shall be added to the above values an amount computed by multiplying the pounds of overage by the applicable class prices.

§ 931.61 Computation of uniform price. For each delivery period the market administrator shall compute the uniform price per hundredweight for milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content received from producers as follows:

(a) Combine into one total the values computed pursuant to § 931.60 for all handlers who made the reports prescribed by § 931.30 and who made the payments pursuant to § 931.65 for the preceding delivery period;

(b) Add not less than one-half of the cash balance on hand in the producer-settlement fund less the total amount of the contingent obligations to handlers pursuant to § 931.67.

(c) Subtract, if the average butterfat content of the milk included in these computations is greater than 3.5 percent, or add, if such average butterfat content is less than 3.5 percent an amount computed by: Multiplying the amount by which the average butterfat content of such milk varies from 3.5 percent by the butterfat differential computed pursuant to § 931.66 and multiplying the resulting figure by the total hundredweight of such milk;

(d) Divide the resulting amount by the total hundredweight of milk included in these computations; and

(e) Subtract not less than 4 cents nor more than 5 cents from the amount computed pursuant to paragraph (d) of this section. The resulting figure shall be the uniform price for milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content received from producers.

§ 931.62 Notification of handlers. On or before the 10th day after the end of each delivery period, the market administrator shall mail to each handler at his last known address, a statement showing:

(a) The classification and value of the milk received from producers by such handler.

(b) The applicable class prices and the uniform price; and

(c) The amount due such handler or the amount to be paid by such handler as the case may be pursuant to §§ 931.68 and 931.69.

PAYMENT FOR MILK

§ 931.65 Time and method of payment. Each handler shall make payment as follows:

(a) On or before the 15th day after the end of the delivery period during which the milk was received from each producer for milk, except that for which payment is made to a cooperative association pursuant to paragraph (b) of this section, at not less than the uniform price computed pursuant to § 931.61 subject to the butterfat differential computed pursuant to § 931.66.

(b) On or before the 12th day after the end of the delivery period during which the milk was received, to a cooperative association for milk caused to be delivered to such handler from producers by the cooperative association, if the cooperative association is authorized to collect payment for such milk and if it so requests, an amount equal to not less than the sum of the individual payments otherwise payable to such producers.

§ 931.66 Producer butterfat differential. In making payments pursuant to § 931.65 there shall be added to or subtracted from the uniform price for each one-tenth of one percent that the average butterfat content of the milk received from producers is above or below 3.5 percent, an amount computed by multiplying by 1.20 the price per pound of butter computed pursuant to § 931.50 (b) (2) (i) for the delivery period, dividing the resulting sum by 10, and adjusting to the nearest one-tenth cent.

§ 931.67 Producer-settlement fund. The market administrator shall establish and maintain a separate fund known as the producer-settlement fund into which he shall deposit all payments made by handlers pursuant to § 931.68 and out of which he shall make all payments to handlers pursuant to § 931.69.

§ 931.68 Payments to the producer-settlement fund. On or before the 12th day after the end of each delivery period, each handler shall pay to the market administrator the amount by which the utilization value of the milk received by such handler from producers during such delivery period is greater than the amount required to be paid producers by such handler pursuant to § 931.65.

§ 931.69 Payments out of the producer-settlement fund. On or before the 12th day after the end of each delivery period, the market administrator shall pay to each handler the amount by which the utilization value of the milk received by such handler from producers during the delivery period is less than the amount required to be paid producers by such handler pursuant to § 931.65: Provided, That if the balance in the producer-settlement fund is insufficient to make all payments pursuant to this section, the market administrator shall reduce uniformly the payments to all handlers and shall complete such payments as soon as the necessary funds are available. No handler who has not received the balance of such payments from the market administrator shall be considered in violation of § 931.65 if he reduces his payments to producers by not more than the amount of the reduction in payment from the producer-settlement fund.

§ 931.70 Adjustment of accounts. Whenever audit by the market administrator of any handler's reports, books, records or accounts discloses errors resulting in moneys due (a) the market administrator from such handler, (b) such handler from the market administrator, or (c) any producer or cooperative association from such handler, the market administrator shall promptly notify such handler of any amount so due, and payment thereof shall be made on or before the next date for making payment set forth in the provision under which such error occurred.

§ 931.71 Termination of obligations. The provisions of this section shall apply to any obligation under this part for the payment of money irrespective of when such obligation arose.

(a) The obligation of any handler to pay money required to be paid under the terms of this part shall, except as provided in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, terminate two years after the last day of the calendar month during which the market administrator receives the handler's utilization report on the milk involved in such obligation, unless within such two-year period the market administrator notifies the handler in writing that such money is due and payable. Service of such notice shall be complete upon mailing to the handler's last known address, and it shall contain, but need not be limited to, the following information:

(1) The amount of the obligation;

(2) The delivery period(s) during which the milk with respect to which the obligation exists was received or handled; and

(3) If the obligation is payable to one or more producers or to a cooperative association, the name of such producer(s) or cooperative association, or if the obligation is payable to the market administrator, the account for which it is to be paid.

(b) If a handler fails or refuses, with respect to any obligation under this part, to make available to the market administrator all books and records required by this order to be made available, the market administrator may, within the two-year period provided for in paragraph (a) of this section, notify the handler in writing of such failure or refusal. If the market administrator so notifies a handler, the said two-year period with respect to such obligation shall not begin to run until the first day of the calendar month following the delivery period during which all such books and records pertaining to such obligations are made available to the market administrator.

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, a handler's obligation under this part to pay money shall not be terminated with respect to any transaction involving fraud or willful concealment of a fact, material to the obligation on the part of the handler against whom the obligation is sought to be imposed.

(d) Any obligation on the part of the market administrator to pay a handler any money which such handler claims to be due him under the terms of this part shall terminate two years after the end of the calendar month, during which the milk involved in the claim was received if an underpayment is claimed, or two years after the end of the calendar month during which the payment (including deduction or set-off by the market administrator) was made by the handler if a refund on such payment is claimed unless the handler, within the applicable period of time, files, pursuant to section 8c (15) (A) of the act, a petition claiming such money.

OTHER PAYMENTS

§ 931.75 Expense of administration. As his pro rata share of the expense of administration hereof, each handler shall pay to the market administrator on or before the 12th day after the end of each delivery period, 4 cents per hundredweight, or such lesser amount as the Secretary from time to time may prescribe with respect to all milk received within the delivery period from producers (including such handler's own production) and with respect to all other source milk classified as Class I.

§ 931.76 Marketing services. (a) Except as set forth in paragraph (b) of this section each handler, in making payments to producers (other than himself) pursuant to § 931.65 shall deduct 5 cents per hundredweight or such lesser amount as the Secretary from time to time may prescribe, and shall pay such deductions to the market administrator on or before the 12th day after the end of such delivery period. Such moneys shall be used by the market administrator to check weights of, sample, and test milk received from producers and to provide producers with market information.

(b) In the case of producers for whom a cooperative association is actually performing the services set forth in paragraph (a) of this section, each handler shall make, in lieu of the deductions specified in paragraph (a) of this section, such deductions from the payments to be made to such producers as may be authorized by the membership agreement or marketing contract between such cooperative association and such producers and on or before the 12th day after the end of such delivery period pay such deductions to the cooperative association rendering such services.

EFFECTIVE TIME, SUSPENSION OR TERMINATION

§ 931.80 Effective time. The provisions of this part, or any amendment to this part, shall become effective at such time as the Secretary may declare and shall continue in force until suspended or terminated.

§ 931.81 Suspension or termination. The Secretary shall, whenever he finds that this part, or any provision of this part, obstructs or does not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act, terminate or suspend the operation of this part or any such provisions of this part.

§ 931.82 Continuing obligations. If upon the suspension or termination of any or all provisions of this part, there are any obligations hereunder the final accrual or ascertainment of which requires further acts by any person (including the market administrator), such further acts shall be performed notwithstanding such suspension or termination.

§ 931.83 Liquidation. Upon the suspension or termination of the provisions of this part, except this section, the liquidating agent shall, if so directed by the Secretary, liquidate the business of the market administrator's office, dispose of all property in his possession or control, including accounts receivable, and execute and deliver all assignments or other instruments necessary or appropriate to effectuate any such disposition. If a liquidating agent is so designated all assets, books and records of the market administrator shall be transferred promptly to such liquidating agent. If upon such liquidation, the funds on hand exceed the amounts required to pay outstanding obligations of the office of the market administrator and to pay necessary expenses of liquidation and distribution, such excess shall be distributed to contributing handlers and producers in an equitable manner.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

§ 931.90 Agents. The Secretary may, by designation in writing, name any officer or employee of the United States to act as his agent or representative in connection with any of the provisions of this part.

§ 931.91 Separability of provisions. If any provision of this part or its application to any person or circumstance, is held invalid, the application of such provision and of the remaining provisions of this part, to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected thereby.

[Docket No. AO 144-A3]

HANDLING OF LEMONS GROWN IN CALIFORNIA AND ARIZONA

NOTICE OF HEARING WITH RESPECT TO PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO AMENDED MARKETING AGREEMENT AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (48 Stat. 31 as amended; 7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.) and in accordance with the amended rules of practice and procedure governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900) notice is hereby given of a public hearing to be held with respect to proposed amendments to Marketing Agreement No. 94, as amended, and Order No. 53, as amended (7 CFR Part 953), hereinafter referred to as the "marketing agreement" and "order," respectively, regulating the handling of lemons grown in the States of California and Arizona. Such hearing will be held in Room 1118, 111 West Seventh Street, Los Angeles, California, beginning at 10:00 a. m., P. d. s. t., May 15, 1951. These proposals have not received the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture.

This public hearing will be held for the purpose of receiving evidence with respect (1) to the economic and marketing conditions relating to all aspects of the proposed amendments, which are hereinafter set forth, and appropriate modifications thereof, and (2) to whether such an emergency exists as would justify the omission of a recommended decision in connection with the issuance of said proposed amendments.

Petitions for a public hearing to be held to consider the following proposed amendment were submitted by the California Fruit Growers Exchange and the Mutual Orange Distributors. The Independent Citrus Growers and Shippers Association and the American Fruit Growers, Inc. have indicated that the proposed amendment is needed. These four organizations, or their members, market practically the entire tonnage of lemons grown in the States of California and Arizona.

1. Delete subparagraph (4) of section 4 (d) of the amended marketing agreement and subparagraph (4) of § 953.4 (d) of the amended order, and substitute therefor the following:

(4) In the event any handler has lemons which he desires to market in channels other than fresh-fruit channels in the United States and Canada, he may request the committee to compute the number of weeks that such lemons could be held in storage, under commercial storage conditions, and, at the expiration of such period, would meet the requirements for marketing under applicable laws. Any such lemons shall be in containers and shall be assembled at one or more of the central points which may be approved by the committee. If the said handler is satisfied with the committee's computation, he shall give the committee written notification thereof and shall dispose of such lemons in channels other than fresh-fruit channels in the United States and Canada. The committee shall include such lemons as a part of the available lemons of such handler for the number of weeks computed, and such lemons shall not be included thereafter in any computation made pursuant to subparagraph (3) of this paragraph.

The following amendments have been proposed by the Fruit and Vegetable Branch, Production and Marketing Administration:

2. Renumber the sections, paragraphs, subparagraphs, and subdivisions throughout the order, in accordance with the revised FEDERAL REGISTER regulations, and make similar conforming changes in the numbering of the provisions of the marketing agreement.

3. Make such other changes in the marketing agreement and order as may be necessary to make the entire marketing agreement and order conform with any amendments thereto that may result from this hearing.

Copies of this notice of hearing may be obtained from the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., or from the Fruit and Vegetable Branch, Production and Marketing Administration, 1206 Santee Street, 12th Floor, Los Angeles 15, California.

[Docket No. AO-179-A8]

HANDLING OF MILK IN CLEVELAND, OHIO MARKETING AREA

NOTICE OF RECOMMENDED DECISION AND OPPORTUNITY TO FILE WRITTEN EXCEPTIONS WITH RESPECT TO A PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE TENTATIVE MARKETING AGREEMENT, AND TO THE ORDER, AS AMENDED

Pursuant to the rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and orders (7 CFR, 900.1 et seq.), notice is hereby given of the filing with the Hearing Clerk of this recommended decision of the Assistant Administrator, Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, with respect to proposed amendments to the tentatively approved marketing agreement and to the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Cleveland, Ohio, marketing area, to be effective pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.).

Interested parties may file exceptions to this recommended decision with the Hearing Clerk, Room 1353, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., not later than the close of business on the 10th day after its publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Preliminary statement. A public hearing was called by the Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, on the request of the Milk Producers Federation of Cleveland, and was held on March 21, 1951. Proposed amendments were submitted by the Milk Producers Federation of Cleveland and the Dairy Branch, Production and Marketing Administration.

The material issues presented on the record of the hearing were whether the order should be amended to provide for:

(1) The classification of skim milk and butterfat in concentrated milk as Class I.

(2) Payment of the difference between the Class I and Class III prices of other source milk in Class I under certain conditions by the operator of the bottling plant handling such milk.

Findings and conclusions. The following findings and conclusions on the issues decided herein are hereby made on the basis of the record of the hearing:

(1) Skim milk and butterfat disposed of as concentrated milk, other than in bulk or in hermetically sealed cans, should be classified as Class I.

Producers stated that a new product, concentrated milk, is being produced from Cleveland pool milk and sold to consumers in the same containers and through the same distribution outlets as fluid milk and cream. It was shown that this product is promoted as a substitute in household use for both fluid milk and cream. An official of the health department testified that milk used to produce concentrated milk for distribution to consumers must meet the same sanitary requirements as milk to be distributed for fluid consumption.

Objection was made by a handler to classifying and pricing milk used in concentrated milk as Class I, on the grounds that the product is used as a substitute for cream and evaporated milk as well as fluid milk, and that a price incentive appears to be necessary to insure consumer acceptance. A price 45 cents per hundredweight below Class I was suggested to allow about one cent per quart lower cost to handlers than Class I milk.

The quality of milk required for concentrated milk is the same as that required for other products now included in Class I. Concentrated milk appears to be largely used as a replacement for fluid milk which is the principal Class I product. All products which must be made from approved milk should contribute equally to the returns to producers necessary to attract a sufficient supply of approved milk. It is concluded, therefore, that skim milk and butterfat used to produce concentrated milk should be classified as Class I milk. Such classification should apply only when this product is distributed for fluid consumption. If used or disposed of in bulk for use in ice cream or other manufactured products, or put up in hermetically sealed cans, it should be considered as included in the Class III listing of bulk condensed milk or evaporated or condensed milk in hermetically sealed cans.

The transfer provisions (§ 975.53 and paragraph (a) (2) of § 975.51) should apply to transfers of concentrated milk in the same manner as to other products named in Class I, and the application of these provisions is based on movement in the form of concentrated milk.

(2) A handler operating a bottling plant receiving less than 50 percent of its milk supply as producer milk should be required to pay to the producer-settlement fund the difference between the highest Class III and the Class I prices on other source skim milk and butterfat allocated to Class I.

Section 975.72 (b) of the order provides for a payment similar to that recommended above but the obligation to make the payment is placed on the operator of the non-pool plant from which the milk is shipped rather than the operator of the pool bottling plant at which the milk is received. It was proposed by the Dairy Branch to put this obligation on the operator of the bottling plant to simplify and make more effective the administration of the provision. The bottling plant handler makes monthly reports to the market administrator, monthly payments are made to or received from the producer-settlement fund, regular audits are made of the plant operations and the plant is located in or near the marketing area. The market administrator normally has no contact with the non-pool plant and it may be located at a great distance from Cleveland. Also the operator of the pool plant can usually avoid the situation in which such payment is required while the non-pool plant operator usually has no control over or no knowledge of this situation.

Producers and handlers approved the change proposed, but producers suggested also changing the percentage of producer milk received from less than 50 percent to less than 90 percent. Handlers objected to such a change for several reasons, including the lack of consideration by interested parties because no proposal for such a change was included in the notice of hearing. It is concluded that no change should be made in the percentage at this time and that any such change should be based on more thorough consideration at a future hearing.

Another small change proposed provides for computing the difference in prices between the highest Class III butterfat and skim milk prices and the Class I prices. This provision is necessary because there are now 2 butterfat and 2 skim milk prices in Class III. Use of the higher of these prices preserves the relationship originally established by use of the single Class III butterfat and skim milk prices then in effect.

General findings. (a) The proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the marketing area and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest; and

(c) The proposed order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Rulings on proposed findings and conclusions. Briefs were filed on behalf of producers and handlers. The briefs contained statements of fact, proposed findings and conclusions, and arguments with respect to the provisions of the proposed amendment. Every point covered in the briefs was carefully considered along with the evidence in the record in making the findings and reaching the conclusions hereinbefore set forth. To the extent that the findings and conclusions proposed in the briefs are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions contained herein, the request to make such findings or to reach such conclusions is denied on the basis of the facts found and stated in connection with the conclusions in this recommended decision.

Recommended marketing agreement and amendments to the order. The following amendments to the order, as amended, are recommended as the detailed and appropriate means by which these conclusions may be carried out. The proposed marketing agreement is not included because the regulatory provisions thereof would be the same as those contained in the order, as amended, and as proposed to be further amended:

1. Delete § 975.51 (a) (1) and substitute therefor the following:

(1) Disposed of for fluid consumption as milk, skim milk, buttermilk, flavored milk or flavored milk drinks, or used to produce concentrated milk or eggnog disposed of for fluid consumption;

2. Delete § 975.72 (b) and substitute therefor the following:

(b) For each delivery period, the pool value pursuant to § 975.70 for each handler who operates a pool plant designated pursuant to paragraph (a) of § 975.30 which received within such delivery period less than 50 percent of its total receipts of skim milk and butterfat from producers or from other pool plants shall be increased by an amount computed by multiplying the amount of skim milk and butterfat in other source milk received which is classified as Class I milk by the difference between the price for skim milk and for butterfat in Class I milk and the highest price for skim milk and for butterfat, respectively, in Class III milk.

DUQUESNE LIGHT CO., AND PHILADELPHIA CO.

NOTICE OF FILING

At the regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 4th day of May 1951.

Notice is hereby given that a joint application-declaration and amendments thereto have been filed with this Commission, pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act"), by Duquesne Light Company ("Duquesne"), a public utility company, and its parent Philadelphia Company ("Philadelphia"), a registered holding company. Applicants-declarants have designated sections 6 (a), 7, 9 (a), 10, 12 (c), 12 (d), 12 (f) and 12 (g) of the act and Rules U-42, U-43, and U-44 promulgated thereunder as applicable to the proposed transactions.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than May 21, 1951, at 5:30 p. m., request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the reasons for such request, the nature of his interest and the issues of fact or law raised by said application-declaration, as amended, which he desires to controvert, or may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C. At any time after May 21, 1951, said application-declaration, as filed or as further amended, may be granted and permitted to become effective as provided in Rule U-23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act, or the Commission may exempt such transactions as provided in Rule U-20 (a) and Rule U-100 thereof.

All interested persons are referred to said application-declaration, as amended, which is on file in the offices of this Commission, for a statement of the transactions therein proposed, which are summarized as follows:

Duquesne has outstanding 2,152,828 shares of common stock, without par value, stated at $56,813,120. Its authorized common stock aggregates 4,500,000 shares stated at $112,500,000. All of the outstanding shares are owned by Philadelphia. Duquesne proposes (a) to increase on its books the stated value of its outstanding common stock to $57,500,000 by the transfer of $686,880 from earned surplus; (b) to increase the stated capital of such shares, as stated in returns filed with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, from $53,820,700 to $57,500,000; and (c) to reclassify the 4,500,000 shares of authorized common stock (whether issued or unissued) to 7,000,000 authorized shares, par value $10 per share, as follows: the 2,152,828 outstanding shares will be changed and converted into 5,750,000 shares and the 2,347,172 unissued shares into 1,250,000 shares.

Philadelphia proposes to exchange its holdings of 2,152,828 shares of Duquesne common stock, without par value, for 5,750,000 shares of common stock, par value $10 per share.

Applicants-declarants state that the transactions are proposed in conjunction with Step 1 of the plan, dated February 8, 1951 for compliance by Philadelphia and its parent, Standard Gas and Electric Company, also a registered holding company, with the provisions of section 11 of the act filed with this Commission at File No. 54–191. (See Holding Company Act Release No. 10413.)

The proposed issuance of such new common stock has been authorized by the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission. Applicants-declarants estimate that Duquesne's expenses in connection with the proposed transactions will aggregate $7,600, of which $7,400 represents state bonus and filing fees, and that Philadelphia will incur no expenses.

Applicants-declarants request that the Commission's order become effective upon issuance.

By the Commission.

[Grapefruit Reg. 78]

PART 955—GRAPEFRUIT GROWN IN ARIZONA; IN IMPERIAL COUNTY, CALIFORNIA; AND IN THAT PART OF RIVERSIDE COUNTY, CALIFORNIA, SITUATED SOUTH AND EAST OF THE SAN GORGONIO PASS

LIMITATION OF SHIPMENTS

§ 955.339 Grapefruit Regulation 78—(a) Findings. (1) Pursuant to the marketing agreement, as amended, and Order No. 55, as amended (7 CFR Part 955), regulating the handling of grapefruit grown in the State of Arizona; in Imperial County, California; and in that part of Riverside County, California, situated south and east of the San Gorgonio Pass, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, and upon the basis of the recommendations of the Administrative Committee (established under the aforesaid amended marketing agreement and order), and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of shipments of grapefruit, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication thereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this section is based became available and the time when this section must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient; a reasonable time is permitted, under the circumstances, for preparation for such effective time; and good cause exists for making the provisions hereof effective not later than May 13, 1951. Shipments of grapefruit, grown as aforesaid, have been subject to regulation by grades and sizes, pursuant to the amended marketing agreement and order, since October 15, 1950, and will so continue until May 13, 1951; the recommendation and supporting information for continued regulation subsequent to May 12, 1951, was promptly submitted to the Department after an open meeting of the Administrative Committee on May 3; such meeting was held to consider recommendations for regulation, after giving due notice of such meeting, and interested persons were afforded an opportunity to submit their views at this meeting; the provisions of this section, including the effective time thereof, are identical with the aforesaid recommendation of the committee, and information concerning such provisions and effective time has been disseminated among handlers of such grapefruit; it is necessary, in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act, to make this section effective during the period hereinafter set forth so as to provide for the continued regulation of the handling of grapefruit; and compliance with this section will not require any special preparation on the part of persons subject thereto which cannot be completed by the effective time hereof.

(b) Order. (1) During the period beginning at 12:01 a. m., P. s. t., May 13, 1951, and ending at 12:01 a. m., P. s. t., August 31, 1951, no handler shall ship:

(i) Any grapefruit of any variety grown in the State of Arizona; in Imperial County, California; or in that part of Riverside County, California, situated south and east of the San Gorgonio Pass unless such grapefruit are at least fairly well colored, and otherwise grade at least U. S. No. 2; or

TITLE 32A—NATIONAL DEFENSE, APPENDIX

Chapter III—Office of Price Stabilization, Economic Stabilization Agency

[Ceiling Price Regulation 31, Amdt. 1]

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Amendment 1 to Ceiling Price Regulation 31 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

This amendment to Ceiling Price Regulation 31 amends section 5 (b) governing the computation of ceiling prices of importer retailers so as to permit the pricing of imported commodities sold by such importer retailers exclusively under the provisions of section 5 (b). The pricing provisions of the import regulation are better suited to pricing imported commodities at retail than the provisions of CPR 7, 15 or 16. The import regulation therefore is amended to cover sales of commodities, which, when purchased from a domestic seller, are covered by this regulation.

This amendment also changes section 6 (b) and section 14 (c), together with the effective date clause, in order to provide more specific dates and adequate time for determining and reporting ceiling prices.

This amendment also adds to Appendix A certain paragraph numbers from the current U. S. Tariff Schedule as published by the U. S. Tariff Commission. The effect of adding these paragraph numbers is to exempt additional commodities from the Import Regulation.

AMENDATORY PROVISIONS

Ceiling Price Regulation 31 is amended as follows:

1. The first paragraph of section 5 (b) is amended to read as follows:

(b) Importer retailer. If you are an importer and also sell at retail the imported commodities in essentially the same form in which imported, your ceiling price for the sale of any such commodity shall be as follows: [The balance of section 5 (b) remains unaltered.]

2. Section 5 (d) is amended to read as follows:

(d) In every case where you calculate for the first time the percentage markup per unit you are going to use or do use in the sale or offering of an imported commodity, unless the commodity be one that shall be priced under Ceiling Price Regulations 7, 15, or 16, you shall furnish the Office of Price Stabilization, Export-Import Branch, Washington 25, D. C., with the following information in duplicate:

(1) The commodity.
(2) The quantity.
(3) The class of buyer.
(4) The percentage markup per unit you are permitted to use under this regulation.

Lists of ceiling prices for commodities in inventory as of May 9, 1951 shall be reported on or before June 1, 1951. Lists of ceiling prices for commodities contracted for as of May 9, 1951 shall be reported on or before June 1, 1951. Lists of ceiling prices for commodities neither in inventory nor contracted for as of May 9, 1951 shall be reported within fifteen days ater entry into the United States.

Once you have furnished such information for the sale of a particular commodity to a particular class of buyer, you need not again advise the Office of Price Stabilization with respect to your pricing of that type of sale.

3. Section 6 (b) is amended to read as follows:

(b) In every case where you calculate for the first time the dollar and cents markup per unit you are going to use or do use in the sale or offering of an imported commodity, you shall furnish the Office of Price Stabilization, Export-Import Branch, Washington 25, D. C., with the following information in duplicate:

(1) The commodity.
(2) The quantity.
(3) The class of buyer.
(4) The dollar and cents markup per unit you are permitted to use under this regulation.

Lists of ceiling prices for commodities in inventory as of May 9, 1951 shall be reported on or before June 1, 1951. Lists of ceiling prices for commodities contracted for as of May 9, 1951 shall be reported on or before June 1, 1951. Lists of ceiling prices for commodities neither in inventory nor contracted for as of May 9, 1951 shall be reported within 15 days after entry into the United States.

Once you have furnished such information for the sale of a particular commodity to a particular class of buyer, you need not again advise the Office of Price Stabilization with respect to your pricing of that type of sale.

4. Section 14 (c) is amended to read as follows:

(c) Nothing in this regulation shall operate to prevent the performance of a written contract for the sale of an imported commodity entered into prior to May 9, 1951 and executed in strict compliance with the provisions of the General Ceiling Price Regulation: Provided, (1) That such contract covers a commodity which the seller as of the date of the contract had in inventory or under purchase commitment, and (2) That such contract covers a specified quantity of a described commodity at a fixed price per unit.

5. The effective date clause of section 19 is amended to read as follows: "The effective date of this regulation shall be June 1, 1951 or any earlier date at which you file your list of ceiling prices in accordance with section 5 or section 6 of this regulation."

6. Appendix A is amended as follows:

(a)	Abaca	Par. 1684.
	Aluminum—metal, ore, scrap foil, alloys.	Par. 207, 374, 382.
	Antimony—metal (regulus) ore, concentrates, needle.	Par. 376, 1608.

CMP REG. 2—INVENTORIES OF CONTROLLED MATERIALS

This regulation is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this regulation, there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations. However, consultation with representatives of all industries affected in advance of the issuance of this regulation has been rendered impracticable because the regulation affects almost all industries.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 13 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105, 3 CFR, 1950 Supp.; sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this regulation does. The purpose of this regulation is to prevent the accumulation of excessive inventories of controlled materials. It does this by limiting the quantities of such materials that may be ordered, received, or delivered.

SEC. 2. Definitions. As used in this regulation:

(a) "Item of controlled material" means any item in any class of controlled material listed in Schedule I of CMP Regulation No. 1, which is different from all other items in that class by reason of one or more of its specifications, such as length, width, thickness, temper, alloy, or finish.

(b) "User of controlled material" means any person who uses any item of controlled material for production, construction, or maintenance, repair, or operating supplies.

SEC. 3. General maximum inventory limitations. (a) Commencing on July 1, 1951, no user of controlled material shall accept delivery of any item of steel listed in Schedule I of CMP Regulation No. 1, if his inventory of such item is, or by such receipt would become, in excess of the quantity of such item necessary to meet his deliveries, supply his services, or perform his operations, on the basis of his currently scheduled method and rate of operation during the succeeding 45-day period, or in excess of a "practicable minimum working inventory" (as defined in NPA Reg. 1), whichever is less. Said 45-day limitation does not apply to persons who order structural steel for use in construction (including buildings, bridges, and other structures of a like type) and who order it delivered cut to the specifications required for a specific project, and who normally keep such steel segregated for the specific project. Instead, no such person may accept delivery of such steel more than 45 days before it is scheduled to be fabricated or, if it is not to be further fabricated, before it is scheduled to be assembled.

(b) Commencing on July 1, 1951, no user of controlled material shall accept delivery of any item of copper or aluminum listed in Schedule I of CMP Regulation No. 1, if his inventory of such item is, or by such receipt would become, in excess of the quantity of such item necessary to meet his deliveries, supply his services, or perform his operations, on the basis of his currently scheduled method and rate of operation during the succeeding 60-day period, or in excess of a "practicable minimum working inventory" (as defined in NPA Reg. 1), whichever is less.

(c) For the purposes of this regulation any item of controlled material in which minor changes or alterations have been effected, shall be included in inventory.

SEC. 4. Exceptions. Notwithstanding the provisions of section 3 of this regulation, any person may accept delivery of any item of controlled material in excess of the prescribed inventory limits under the following circumstances:

(a) If any producer of controlled material exercises his privilege under section 20 of CMP Regulation No. 1 of making delivery prior to the delivery date specified by the user of controlled material, such delivery may be accepted and the prescribed limits exceeded to the extent that such excess results from such prior delivery.

(b) If a user of controlled material has instructed a producer or other supplier to reduce, postpone, or cancel a delivery, and the material has been shipped or loaded for shipment before receipt of such instruction, delivery of such material may be accepted and the prescribed limits exceeded to the extent that such excess results from such delivery.

(c) If a user of controlled material has instructed a producer to reduce, postpone, or cancel a delivery of a special item of controlled material which the producer has already produced or has in production, or for the production of which he has acquired special materials, delivery of such special item may be accepted and the prescribed limits exceeded to the extent that such excess results from such delivery. For the purposes of this section, a special item of controlled material is one which the producer does not usually make, stock, or sell, and which he cannot readily dispose of to others.

(d) If a user of controlled material would be authorized under section 3 of this regulation to accept delivery of a quantity of an item of controlled material less than the minimum shown for such item in Schedule IV of CMP Regulation No. 1, he may accept delivery of the full minimum shown in such schedule, provided that the controlled material involved is not procurable from a distributor.

(e) If any producer of controlled material, under a directive of NPA, makes delivery of controlled material to a person who will convert such controlled material into another form of controlled material, the person to whom such delivery was made may accept the delivery and exceed the prescribed limits to the extent that such excess results from such delivery.

(f) If a user of controlled material imports any controlled material that he acquired prior to landing, he may accept delivery of such material and exceed the prescribed limits to the extent that such excess results from such delivery. However, if by such acceptance his inventory exceeds the prescribed limits, he may not accept further deliveries of such controlled material from domestic sources until his inventory thereof is reduced to permitted levels.

SEC. 5. Adjustment of receipts and orders. Every user of controlled material must place orders and schedule receipts in such manner that deliveries of controlled material to him may be made without violating the provisions of this regulation. If, by reason of change in his operations, slowing or stoppage of production, delayed delivery by a controlled materials producer or other supplier, or other cause, a person who has ordered material for future delivery would, if he accepted delivery on the dates specified, exceed the limits prescribed by this regulation, he shall promptly revise and adjust his outstanding orders and scheduled receipts and, if necessary, reduce, postpone, or cancel the same, so that his acceptance of deliveries will conform to this regulation.

SEC. 6. Separate inventories. (a) A person who has more than one operating unit may maintain separate inventory records for each such unit, and if he does, the provisions of this regulation shall apply to each such unit independently.

(b) In determining his inventory, a person shall include all items of controlled material in his possession and all such items held for his account by another person, but not items of controlled material held by him for the account of another person.

SEC. 7. Prohibited deliveries. No person shall deliver any item of controlled material if he knows or has reason to believe that acceptance of such delivery would be in violation of this regulation.

SEC. 8. Excess inventories. Excess inventories of items of controlled material, including inventories of such items which are not in form usable by the holder, are subject to requisition, under appropriate circumstances, as provided in Title II of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

SEC. 9. Applicability of other regulations and orders. Nothing in this regulation shall be construed to relieve any person from complying with all other applicable regulations and orders of NPA.

SEC. 10. Records and reports. Persons subject to this regulation shall maintain such records and submit such reports to NPA as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

SEC. 11. Applications for adjustment or exception. Any person subject to any provision of this regulation may file a request for adjustment, exception, or other relief upon the ground that such provision works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry, or that its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of the national defense or in the public interest. In examining requests claiming that the public interest is prejudiced, consideration will be given to the requirements of public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each request shall be in writing submitted in triplicate, shall set forth all pertinent facts and the nature of the relief sought, and shall state the justification therefor.

SEC. 12. Communications. All communications concerning this regulation shall be addressed to the National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: CMP Regulation No. 2.

SEC. 13. Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provision of this regulation or any other regulation or order of the National Production Authority, or who wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information in the course of operation under this regulation, is guilty of a crime and, upon conviction, may be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

NOTE: All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This regulation shall take effect on May 10, 1951.

MANLY FLEISCHMANN, Administrator.

Authority: Sections 1 to 9 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105, 3 CFR, 1950 Supp; sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

Section 1. What this regulation does. The purpose of this regulation is to describe the rules under which distributors make deliveries of controlled materials under the Controlled Materials Plan. The methods by which distributors obtain controlled materials will be covered by directives or other regulations and orders of NPA.

Sec. 2. Definitions. As used in this regulation and any other CMP regulation (unless otherwise indicated):

(a) "Controlled material" means steel, copper, and aluminum, in the forms and shapes indicated in Schedule I of CMP Regulation No. 1.

(b) "Distributor" means any person (including a warehouseman, jobber, dealer, or retailer) engaged in the business of stocking any controlled material at a location regularly maintained by him for such purpose, for sale or resale, in the form or shape as received or after performing the operations described in this paragraph, and who, in connection therewith, maintains facilities and equipment necessary to conduct such business. Such operations are cutting, shearing, burning, or torch cutting to length, size, or shape; pipe threading; sorting and grading; and the like. A person who, in connection with any sale of controlled material from his stock, bends, punches, or performs any fabricating or processing operation designed to prepare such material for final use or assembly, shall not be deemed a distributor with respect to such sale; and a person who, in connection with any purchase of controlled material for resale, does not take physical delivery of such material into his own stock at a location regularly maintained by him for such purpose, shall not be deemed a distributor with respect to such resale.

Sec. 3. Placement of authorized controlled material orders. (a) Each distributor shall comply with such directives as may be issued from time to time by NPA.

(b) Each distributor shall accept all (1) authorized controlled material orders, except as provided in section 4 of this regulation, (2) orders for controlled materials bearing a DO rating calling for delivery before October 1, 1951, except as provided in section 4 of this regulation, and (3) orders which he is required to accept pursuant to NPA directive: Provided, however, That nothing in this section shall prevent any distributor from accepting any other orders for controlled materials to the extent that such acceptance would be in conformity with the provisions of this regulation and all other applicable regulations and orders of NPA.

(c) A delivery order for controlled material placed with a distributor shall be deemed an authorized controlled material order only if (1) it contains an allotment number, the calendar quarter for which the allotment is valid, and the certification as provided in section 19 of CMP Regulation No. 1, or (2) it is specifically designated as an authorized controlled material order by any regulation or order of NPA.

(d) A delivery order for controlled material placed with a distributor shall be considered as calling for immediate delivery unless such order specifically provides otherwise.

(e) An authorized controlled material order may be placed with a distributor orally or by telephone, provided that the person placing the order makes written confirmation of such order, conforming to the requirements of this regulation, within 15 days. If such confirmation is not received within 15 days, the distributor shall promptly notify NPA of the circumstances.

(f) An authorized controlled material order shall not constitute an allotment of controlled material to the distributor with whom it is placed.

Sec. 4. Rejection of orders. (a) A distributor shall be required to accept authorized controlled material orders, orders for controlled materials bearing a DO rating, and all other orders for controlled materials, only in conformity with the appropriate quantity limitations and other conditions specified in NPA Order M-5 (aluminum), NPA Order M-6 (steel), and NPA Order M-11 (copper), or in any other applicable regulation or order of NPA.

(b) A distributor must reject any authorized controlled material order bearing a specific allotment number which requires a quarterly identification, after the end of the quarter for which the allotment is valid. Delivery orders bearing a symbol such as MRO which do not have to bear any quarterly identification may be filled during any quarter.

(c) A distributor may reject any order for controlled material which is not for immediate delivery. If he elects to accept such an order, he must not set aside or hold any material to fill it.

(d) A distributor may reject any authorized controlled material order if he does not have the material ordered in his stock, unless he knows that such material is in transit to his stock, but shall not discriminate between customers in rejecting or accepting such orders.

Sec. 5. Applicability of other regulations and orders. Nothing in this regulation shall be construed to relieve any person from complying with all other applicable regulations and orders of NPA.

Sec. 6. Records and reports. Persons subject to this regulation shall maintain such records and submit such reports to NPA as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Sec. 7. Applications for adjustment or exception. Any person subject to any provision of this regulation may file a request for adjustment, exception, or other relief upon the ground that such provision works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry, or that its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of the national defense or in the public interest. In examining requests claiming that the public interest is prejudiced, consideration will be given to the requirements of public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each request shall be in writing submitted in triplicate, shall set forth all pertinent facts and the nature of the relief sought, and shall state the justification therefor.

Sec. 8. Communications. All communications concerning this regulation shall be addressed to the National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: CMP Regulation No. 4.

Sec. 9. Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provision of this regulation or any other regulation or order of the National Production Authority, or who wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information in the course of operation under this regulation, is guilty of a crime and, upon conviction, may be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

Note: All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This regulation shall take effect on May 10, 1951.

Section 1. Basis and purpose. This regulation interprets and implements the authority of the Administrator of General Services to purchase tungsten concentrates of domestic origin for the fiscal years 1951–1956 as authorized by the Defense Production Administration on March 30, 1951, and outlines the attendant responsibilities and functions of the Administrator of General Services in purchasing such tungsten concentrates for Government use and resale. In accordance with the Program set forth herein, the Administrator will buy domestically produced tungsten concentrates, at a base price of $63 per short ton unit of contained tungsten trioxide (WO_3), less penalties.

Sec. 2. Definitions. As used in this regulation:

(a) "Administrator" means the Administrator of General Services.

(b) "Program" means the program as set forth in this Regulation.

(c) "Milling point" means plant where ores are processed into specification grade tungsten concentrates.

(d) "Tungsten concentrates" means tungsten concentrates produced in the United States, its Territories and possessions from ores mined in the United States, its Territories and possessions.

(e) "Short ton unit" means one per cent of 2,000 pounds avoirdupois dry weight.

(f) "Ferberite" means concentrates containing tungsten primarily as $FeWO_4$ with not more than 20 per cent of the tungsten as $MnWO_4$.

(i) "Scheelite" means concentrates containing, in nature, tungsten as $CaWO_4$.

(j) "Synthetic Scheelite" means chemically precipitated scheelite produced from natural type of ore, and shall be chemically precipitated scheelite produced from any original type of ore, processed so that not over ten per cent of any lot shall pass a 35-mesh Tyler Standard Screen.

Sec. 3. Participation in the Program. (a) Any person may participate in the Program by notice given to the nearest General Services Administration regional office, in the form of a letter, postcard or telegram postmarked or dated by the telegraph office not later than June 30, 1951. Such notice shall state that the writer desires to participate in the Program and will either prospect for or produce tungsten, but the giving of such notice will not permit the participant to deliver material in any form other than that of concentrates meeting minimum specifications. Such notification must be signed and a return address given. Any person participating in the Program will promptly be sent a certificate authorizing him to deliver concentrates meeting minimum specifications f. o. b. carriers conveyance, milling point. Miners holding certificates but who do not operate concentrating facilities may participate in this program to the extent of the ore produced by them, as follows:

(1) By selling such ore to operators of concentrating plants, in which event the resulting concentrates meeting specifications may be sold by such operators to the Administrator under this Program; or

(2) By having such ore treated on a toll basis and selling the resulting concentrates meeting specifications to the Administrator under this Program.

(b) Any operator of a concentrating plant by agreeing to participate in this Program also agrees to purchase or process suitable tungsten contained ores offered to him by independent miners to the limit of the capacity of his plant in excess of that required for his own production and on fair and equitable terms and conditions (including prices). Each operator of a concentrating plant participating in this Program shall promptly establish a schedule setting forth his terms and conditions (including prices) for the purchase and processing of crude tungsten ores. Each such operator shall promptly submit a copy of such schedule to the Administrator, and shall also submit promptly any changes made in such schedule thereafter.

Sec. 4. Deliveries. Tungsten concentrates purchased under the Program are to be delivered f. o. b. carriers conveyance any milling point designated by the Administrator. Delivery of less than one short ton of concentrates will not be accepted. In the event any delivery is less than the minimum weight required to obtain the lowest transportation rate, the difference between the lowest transportation rate and the rate paid by the Government shall be a charge against the seller and a proper adjustment therefor shall be made in the minimum base price. Each delivery will be analyzed by the Government after beneficiation at the milling point, and payment will be made in accordance with such analysis. Deliveries not conforming to minimum specifications will be rejected and any expenses in connection therewith will be borne by the seller.

Sec. 5. Duration of the Program. The Program shall terminate and be of no further force or effect when 1,468,750 short ton units of tungsten have been delivered to and accepted by the Government under this Program, or on July 1, 1956, whichever occurs first.

Sec. 6. Specifications and penalties. (a) The specifications for tungsten concentrates and penalties applicable to deliveries of such concentrates appear below:

TITLE 39—POSTAL SERVICE

Chapter I—Post Office Department

PART 35—PROVISIONS APPLICABLE TO THE SEVERAL CLASSES OF MAIL MATTER

PACKING OF RADIOS

In part 35 (39 CFR Part 35) make the following changes:

Insert new § 35.6b to read as follows:

§ 35.6b Radios, packing of—(a) Electric. Radios must be packed in strong containers such as a fiberboard box with at least 2 inches of firmly packed cushioning material such as shredded paper or excelsior on all six sides completely surrounding the radio, unless a factory carton approved for shipment by parcel post with approved inner cushioning by means of spring pads, molds, etc., is used. Better packing would be two containers, each of double-faced corrugated fiberboard, one within the other, the inside container holding the radio to be cushioned with a form or mold of double-faced corrugated fiberboard to form a 2-inch cushion of air on all six sides. In lieu of such forms or molds, shredded paper or excelsior may be used in sufficient quantity to keep the inner container 2 inches from all inner walls of the outside container.

(b) Dry battery. Portable or other radios with plastic or lightweight case which contain a dry battery are acceptable only if the battery is held in a fixed and immovable position therein by means other than the radio case and which cannot damage the radio regardless of the position thereof. If not so constructed, the battery must be removed from the case and packed so that it cannot shift or damage the radio in transit. A separate compartment for the battery may be necessary, which compartment must keep the weight of the battery off the radio regardless of the position of the shipping carton.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

Military Renegotiation Policy and Review Board

CONTRACTS CONTAINING THE RENEGOTIATION ARTICLE ENTERED INTO BY OR ON BEHALF OF THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE, INCLUDING THE DEPARTMENTS OF THE ARMY, THE NAVY AND THE AIR FORCE

Pursuant to the note to § 423.322–1 (c) of the Military Renegotiation Regulations, seven lists of numbers of prime contracts which contain the Renegotiation Article, together with the names of the contractors holding such contracts, have been published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The last of these lists included information supplied by the Departments of the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force and extended through September 30, 1950, and appeared in the February 8, 1951, issue of the FEDERAL REGISTER. The following list includes contracts entered into through December 31, 1950, but excludes those previously reported in the listings through June 30, 1950. Although a contract is not subject to renegotiation, one or more amendments of such contract may be subject thereto (see MRR 423.322–2). In such cases, only the subject amendments are listed. Subcontractors receiving orders which refer to any such partially listed prime contracts are cautioned to communicate with their customers to ascertain whether it is to the renegotiable or to the non-renegotiable portion of the prime contract that their orders relate. Contracts over $1,000 but under $5,000, have been omitted from this list; however, the omission does not affect the renegotiability of such contracts.

Publication of these lists is for the sole purpose of disseminating information to help contractors and subcontractors identify sales which are subject to renegotiation. Although every effort has been made to have the lists complete and accurate, the omission of the number of a contract subject to the Renegotiation Act of 1948 does not relieve the contractor and the subcontractors thereunder from renegotiation. Conversely, the inclusion in a published list of the number of a contract which is not subject to the act will not make the contractor or subcontractors thereunder subject to renegotiation. The Renegotiation Article is not physically present in some of the contracts listed herein. However, it is considered that such contracts are required to contain the Article and are therefore subject to the Renegotiation Act of 1948. Consequently, the numbers of such contracts are published herein for the same purpose of information as those in which the Article is physically present.

In view of the enactment of the Renegotiation Act of 1951 (Public Law 9, 82d Cong.), approved March 23, 1951, which provides that the Renegotiation Act of 1948 shall not be applicable to any contract or subcontract to the extent of the amounts received or accrued by a contractor or subcontractor on or after January 1, 1951, the following list will be the last of these publications under the Renegotiation Act of 1948.

In the matter of United Gas Corporation, United Gas Pipe Line Company, Union Producing Company; File No. 70-2618.

Notice is hereby given that an application-declaration has been filed pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 by United Gas Corporation ("United"), a gas utility subsidiary of Electric Bond and Share Company, a registered holding company, and United's subsidiaries, United Gas Pipe Line Company ("Pipe Line"), and Union Producing Company ("Union"), pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, particularly sections 6 (a), 7, 9 (a) (1), 10, and 12 thereof with respect to the following proposed transactions:

As of December 31, 1950, United had outstanding $130,994,000 aggregate principal amount of First Mortgage and Collateral Trust Bonds, 1967 and 1970 series, issued under a Mortgage and Deed of Trust dated October 1, 1944, as supplemented. tion, and from injury caused by split, rough, wide or protruding navels, creasing, scars, oil spots, scale, sunburn, dirt or other foreign material, disease, insects or mechanical or other means. (See Tolerances in paragraph (c) of this section.)

(2) U. S. No. 1. U. S. No. 1 consists of oranges of similar varietal characteristics which are mature, firm, well formed, of fairly smooth texture for the variety; free from decay, broken skins which are not healed, hard or dry skins, exanthema, growth cracks, bruises (except those incident to proper handling and packing), and from damage caused by dryness or mushy condition, split, rough, excessively wide or protruding navels, creasing, scars, oil spots, scale, sunburn, dirt or other foreign material, disease, insects, or mechanical or other means. Each fruit shall be well colored except Valencia oranges which shall be at least fairly well colored: Provided, That navel oranges in any lot which is destined for export and which is certified as meeting the standards for export need be only fairly well colored. (See Tolerances in paragraph (c) of this section.)

(3) U. S. No. 2. U. S. No. 2 consists of oranges of similar varietal characteristics which are mature fairly well colored, fairly firm, and which are fairly well formed but not excessively rough; which are free from decay, broken skins which are not healed, hard or dry skins, exanthema, growth cracks, and from serious damage caused by bruises dryness or mushy condition, split or protruding navels, creasing, scars, oil spots, scale, sunburn, dirt or other foreign material, disease, insects or mechanical or other means. (See Tolerances in paragraph (c) of this section.)

(4) U. S. Combination grade. Any lot of oranges may be designated "U. S. Combination" when not less than 40 percent, by count, of the oranges in each container meet the requirements of U. S. No. 1 grade and the remainder U. S. No. 2 grade. (See Tolerances in paragraph (c) of this section.)

(5) U. S. No. 3. U. S. No. 3 consists of oranges of similar varietal characteristics which are mature, which may be slightly spongy, misshapen, rough but not seriously lumpy; which are free from decay, broken skins which are not healed, hard or dry skins, exanthema, and from serious damage caused by growth cracks, bruises, dryness or mushy condition, and from very serious damage caused by split navels, creasing, scars, oil spots, scale, sunburn, dirt or other foreign material, disease, insects or mechanical or other means. (See Tolerances in paragraph (c) of this section.)

(b) Unclassified. Unclassified consists of oranges which have not been classified in accordance with any of the foregoing grades. The term "unclassified" is not a grade within the meaning of these standards but is provided as a designation to show that no definite grade has been applied to the lot.

(c) Tolerances. In order to allow for variations incident to proper grading and handling in each of the foregoing grades, the following tolerances are provided as specified:

(1) U. S. Fancy, U. S. No. 1, U. S. No. 2 and U. S. No. 3 grades. Not more than 10 percent, by count, of the fruit in any lot may be below the requirements of the specified grade, other than for color, but not more than one-twentieth of this amount, or one-half of 1 percent, shall be allowed for decay at shipping point: Provided, That an additional tolerance of $2\frac{1}{2}$ percent, or a total of not more than 3 percent, shall be allowed for decay enroute or at destination. In addition, not more than 10 percent, by count, of the fruit in any lot may not meet the requirements relating to color.

(2) U. S. Combination grade. Not more than 10 percent, by count, of the fruit in any lot may be below the requirements of this grade, other than for color, but not more than one-twentieth of this amount, or one-half of 1 percent, shall be allowed for decay at shipping point: Provided, That an additional tolerance of $2\frac{1}{2}$ percent, or a total of not more than 3 percent, shall be allowed for decay enroute or at destination. This 3 percent tolerance may be used to reduce the percentage of U. S. No. 1 grade required in the combination, provided the affected fruits meet the requirements of U. S. No. 1 grade in other respects. In addition, not more than 10 percent, by count, of the fruit in any lot may not meet the requirements of the U. S. No. 2 grade for color. No part of any tolerance, other than that for decay, shall be allowed to reduce for the lot as a whole the percentage of U. S. No. 1 in the combination, but individual containers may have not more than a total of 10 percent less than the percentage of U. S. No. 1 specified: Provided, That the entire lot averages within the percentage specified.

(d) Application of tolerances to individual packages. (1) The contents of individual packages in the lot, based on sample inspection, are subject to the following limitations: Provided, That the averages for the entire lot are within the tolerances specified for the grade.

(2) For packages which contain more than 25 pounds, and a tolerance of 10 percent or more is provided, individual packages in any lot shall have not more than one and one-half times the tolerance specified. For packages which contain more than 25 pounds and a tolerance of less than 10 percent is provided, individual packages in any lot shall have not more than double the tolerance specified, except that at least one decayed or very seriously damaged fruit may be permitted in any package.

(3) For packages which contain 25 pounds or less, individual packages in any lot are not restricted as to the percentage of defects: Provided, That not more than one orange which is seriously damaged by dryness or mushy condition or very seriously damaged by other means may be permitted in any package and, in addition, enroute or at destination not more than 10 percent of the packages may have more than one decayed fruit.

(e) Standard pack. (1) Oranges shall be uniform in size and, when packed in boxes, shall be arranged according to the approved and recognized methods. Each wrapped fruit shall be fairly well wrapped.

(2) All packages shall be well filled, but the contents shall not show excessive or unnecessary bruising because of overfilled packages. The fruit shall be tightly packed.

(3) When oranges are packed in standard nailed boxes, each box shall show a minimum bulge of $1\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

(4) "Uniform in size" means that not more than 10 percent, by count, of the oranges in any container may be one standard size larger or smaller than the standard size orange for the count packed.

(5) Example of standard size orange. The standard size orange for a 200 count is that size orange which will pack tightly 200 oranges of uniform size when packed according to the approved and recognized method.

(6) In order to allow for variations incident to proper packing, not more than 5 percent of the containers in any lot may not meet the requirements for the standard pack.

(f) Standards for export. (1) Not more than a total of 10 percent, by count, of the oranges in any container may be soft, affected by decay, have broken skins which are not healed, growth cracks, or be damaged by creasing or skin breakdown, or seriously damaged by split or protruding navels, or by dryness or mushy condition, except that:

(i) Not more than one-half of 1 percent shall be allowed for oranges affected by decay.

(ii) Not more than 3 percent shall have broken skins which are not healed.

(iii) Not more than 3 percent shall have growth cracks.

(iv) Not more than 5 percent shall be soft.

(v) Not more than 5 percent shall be damaged by creasing.

(vi) Not more than 5 percent shall be seriously damaged by split or protruding navels.

(vii) Not more than 5 percent shall be seriously damaged by dryness or mushy condition.

(viii) Not more than 5 percent shall be damaged by skin breakdown.

(2) Any lot of oranges shall be considered as meeting the standards for export if the entire lot averages within the requirements specified: Provided, That no sample from the containers in any lot shall have more than double the percentage specified for any one defect, and that not more than a total of 10 percent, by count, of the oranges in any container has any of the defects enumerated in the standards for export.

(g) Definitions. (1) "Similar varietal characteristics" means that the fruits in any container are similar in color and type.

(2) "Well colored" means that the fruit is at least light orange in color, with not more than a trace of green at the stem end, and not more than 15 percent of the remainder of the surface of the fruit shows green color.

(3) "Firm" means that the fruit is not soft or noticeably wilted or flabby.

(4) "Well formed" means that the fruit shows the normal shape characteristic of the variety.

(5) "Smooth" means that the skin is of fairly fine grain, the "pebbling" is not pronounced, and any furrows radiating from the stem end are shallow.

(6) "Injury" means any defect which more than slightly affects the appearance, or the edible or shipping quality of the fruit. Any one of the following defects, or any combination of defects, the seriousness of which exceeds the maximum allowed for any one defect, shall be considered as injury:

(i) Split, rough, wide or protruding navels, when a split is unhealed or is more than one-eighth inch in length; or when the navel protrudes beyond the general contour of the fruit; or when flush with the contour but with the opening so wide, considering the size of the fruit, or the navel growth so folded and ridged, that it detracts noticeably from the appearance of the fruit.

(ii) Slight creasing which is more than barely visible, or which extends over more than 20 percent of the fruit surface.

(iii) Scarring (including sprayburn and fumigation injury) which exceeds the following aggregate areas of different types of scars, or a combination of two or more types of scars, the seriousness of which exceeds the maximum allowed for any one type:

(a) Scars which are very dark and which have an aggregate area exceeding that of a circle one-eighth inch in diameter.

(b) Scars which are dark, or rough, or deep and which have an aggregate area exceeding that of a circle one-fourth inch in diameter.

(c) Scars which are fairly light in color, slightly rough, or with slight depth and which have an aggregate area exceeding that of a circle one-half inch in diameter.

(d) Scars which are light in color, fairly smooth, with no depth and which have an aggregate area of more than 5 percent of the fruit surface.

(iv) Oil spots (oleocellosis or similar injuries) which are depressed or soft or which have an aggregate area of more than $2\frac{1}{2}$ percent of the fruit surface, or which are green and more than 4 in number.

(v) Scale, if more than 5 are present.

(vi) Sunburn which appreciably changes the normal color or shape of the fruit, or affects more than 10 percent of the fruit surface.

(7) "Fairly smooth" means that the skin does not feel noticeably rough or coarse. The size of the fruit should be considered in judging texture, as large fruit is not usually as smooth as smaller fruit. It is common for the fruit to show larger and coarser "pebbling" on the stem end portion than on the blossom end. The presence of furrows or grooves on the stem end portion of the fruit is a common condition in certain varieties, and the fruit shall not be considered as slightly rough unless the furrows or grooves are of sufficient depth, length, and number as to materially affect the appearance and smoothness of the orange.

(8) "Damage" means any defect which materially affects the appearance, or the edible or shipping quality of the fruit. Any one of the following defects, or any combination of defects, the seriousness of which exceeds the maximum allowed for any one defect, shall be considered as damage:

(i) Dryness or mushy condition when affecting all segments more than one-fourth inch at the stem end, or the equivalent of this amount, by volume, when occurring in other portions of the fruit.

(ii) Split, rough, excessively wide or protruding navels, when more than 3 splits, or when any split is unhealed or is more than one-fourth inch in length, or navels which flare, bulge, or protrude materially beyond the general contour of the fruit; or when the navel opening is so wide, considering the size of the fruit, or the navel growth is so folded and ridged, that it detracts materially from the appearance of the fruit.

(iii) Creasing which materially weakens the skin, or which extends over more than one-third of the fruit surface.

(iv) Scarring (including sprayburn and fumigation injury) which exceeds the following aggregate areas of different types of scars, or a combination of two or more types of scars, the seriousness of which exceeds the maximum allowed for any one type:

(a) Scars which are very dark and with slight depth and which have an aggregate area exceeding that of a circle one-fourth inch in diameter.

(b) Scars which are very dark, with no depth, and which have an aggregate area exceeding that of a circle one-half inch in diameter.

(c) Scars which are dark and rough or deep and which have an aggregate area exceeding that of a circle one-half inch in diameter.

(d) Scars which are dark and slightly rough, or with slight depth, and which have an aggregate area exceeding that of a circle three-fourths inch in diameter.

(e) Scars which are fairly light in color, slightly rough, or with slight depth and which have an aggregate area of more than 5 percent of the fruit surface.

(f) Scars which are light in color, fairly smooth, with no depth and which have an aggregate area of more than 10 percent of the fruit surface.

(v) Oil spots (oleocellosis or similar injuries) which are depressed or soft, or which have an aggregate area of more than 5 percent of the fruit surface, or which are green and more than 7 in number.

(vi) Scale, if more than 3 scales are present in each of three circular areas 1 inch in diameter, selected as the worst infested areas, or if more than 7 scales are present in one of these areas.

(vii) Sunburn which causes appreciable flattening of the fruit, drying or darkening of the skin, or affects more than 25 percent of the fruit surface.

(9) "Fairly well colored" means that the yellow or orange color predominates on the fruit.

(10) "Fairly firm" means that the fruit may be slightly soft but is not decidedly flabby.

(11) "Fairly well formed" means that the fruit is not of the shape characteristic of the variety but is not decidedly flattened, pointed, extremely elongated, or otherwise badly deformed.

(12) "Excessively rough" means that the skin is decidedly rough, badly folded, badly ridged, or decidedly lumpy. Heavily "pebbled" skin shall not be considered as excessively rough.

(13) "Serious damage" means any defect which seriously affects the appearance, or the edible or shipping quality of the fruit. Any one of the following defects, or any combination of defects, the seriousness of which exceeds the maximum allowed for any one defect, shall be considered as serious damage:

(i) Dryness or mushy condition, when affecting all segments more than one-half inch at the stem end, or the equivalent of this amount by volume, when occurring in other portions of the fruit.

(ii) Split or protruding navels, when any split is unhealed or is more than one-half inch in length, or when two or more splits aggregate more than 1 inch in length; or navels which protrude seriously beyond the general contour of the fruit; or when the navel opening is so wide, considering the size of the fruit, or the navel growth so badly folded and ridged, that it detracts seriously from the appearance of the fruit.

(iii) Creasing which seriously weakens the skin, or which is distributed over practically the entire fruit surface.

(iv) Scarring (including sprayburn and fumigation injury) which exceeds the following aggregate areas of different types of scars, or a combination of two or more types of scars, the seriousness of which exceeds the maximum allowed for any one type:

(a) Scars which are very dark, or very rough, or very deep, and which have an aggregate area of more than 5 percent of the fruit surface.

(b) Scars which are dark, or rough, or deep and which have an aggregate area of more than 10 percent of the fruit surface.

(c) Scars which are fairly light in color, slightly rough or with slight depth and which have an aggregate area of more than 15 percent of the fruit surface.

(d) Scars which are light in color, fairly smooth, and with no depth and which have an aggregate area of more than 25 percent of the fruit surface.

(v) Oil spots (oleocellosis or similar injuries) which are depressed or soft, or which have an aggregate area of more than 10 percent of the fruit surface.

(vi) Scale, if more than 9 scales are present in each of three circular areas 1 inch in diameter, selected as the worst infested areas, or if more than 19 scales are present in one of these areas.

(vii) Sunburn which causes decided flattening of the fruit, drying or dark discoloration of the skin, or affects more than one-third of the fruit surface.

(viii) Growth cracks that are leaking, gummy, or not well healed.

(14) "Slightly spongy" means that the fruit is puffy or slightly wilted but not flabby.

(15) "Misshapen" means that the fruit is decidedly flattened, pointed, extremely elongated or otherwise deformed.

(16) "Very serious damage" means any defect which very seriously affects the appearance, or the edible or shipping quality of the fruit. Any one of the following defects, or any combination of defects, the seriousness of which exceeds the maximum allowed for any one defect, shall be considered as very serious damage:

(i) Split navels which are leaking, gummy, or not well healed.

(ii) Creasing which is so deep or extensive that the skin is very seriously weakened.

(iii) Scarring (including sprayburn and fumigation injury) which exceeds the following aggregate areas of different types of scars, or a combination of both types of scars, the seriousness of which exceeds the maximum allowed for one type:

(a) Scars which are very dark, or very rough, or very deep and which have an aggregate area of more than 10 percent of the fruit surface.

(b) Scars which are dark, or rough, or deep and which have an aggregate area of more than 25 percent of the fruit surface.

(iv) Oil spots which are badly sunken, or soft.

(v) Scale which are so numerous or large that the appearance of the fruit is very seriously affected.

(vi) Sunburn which seriously affects more than one-third of the fruit surface, or causes dark discoloration aggregating more than 5 percent of the fruit surface.

(h) Effective time and supersedure. The United States Standards for Oranges (California and Arizona) contained in this section and which supersede the United States Standards for Oranges (California and Arizona) (14 F. R. 7149) shall become effective thirty (30) days after the date of publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

PART 52—PROCESSED FRUITS AND VEGETABLES, PROCESSED PRODUCTS THEREOF, AND CERTAIN OTHER PROCESSED FOOD PRODUCTS

SUBPART B—UNITED STATES STANDARDS FOR GRADES OF PROCESSED FRUITS, VEGETABLES, AND OTHER PRODUCTS

U. S. STANDARDS FOR GRADES OF SULFURED CHERRIES;[1] REVISION

On October 6, 1950, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (15 F. R. 6763) regarding a proposed revision of the United States Standards for Grades of Sulfured Cherries. After consideration of all relevant matters presented, including the proposals set forth in the aforesaid notice, the following revised United States Standards for Grades of Sulfured Cherries are hereby promulgated under the authority contained in the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (60 Stat. 1087; 7 U. S. C. 1621 et seq.) and the Department of Agriculture Appropriation Act, 1951 (Pub. Law 759, 81st Cong., approved September 6, 1950):

§ 52.240 Sulfured cherries. "Sulfured cherries" are prepared from properly matured whole cherries (Prunus avium or Prunus cerasus) of similar varietal characteristics; are packed with or without the addition of a hardening agent, in a solution of sulfur dioxide of sufficient strength to preserve the product.

(a) Styles of sulfured cherries. (1) "Unstemmed and unpitted" is the style of sulfured cherries consisting of whole cherries (irrespective of size) with pits and not less than 80 percent, by weight, of all the cherries have the stems attached.

[1] The requirements of these standards shall not excuse failure to comply with the provisions of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act.

(2) "Stemmed and unpitted" is the style of sulfured cherries consisting of whole cherries (irrespective of size) with pits and not more than ½ of 1 percent, by weight, of all the cherries are cherries with stems attached.

(3) "Stemmed and pitted" is the style of sulfured cherries consisting of whole cherries of which not more than ½ of 1 percent, by weight, of all the cherries are cherries with stems attached and: (i) For each 40 ounces of all the cherries there may be present not more than 2 cherries with pits when all cherries are of small size or extra small size; (ii) for each 40 ounces of all the cherries there may be present not more than 1 cherry with a pit when all cherries are of medium size, large size, or different sizes; and (iii) for each 60 ounces of all the cherries there may be present not more than 1 cherry with a pit when all cherries are of extra large size.

(4) "Unstemmed and pitted" or "cocktail" is the style of sulfured cherries consisting of whole cherries of which not more than 7 percent, by weight, of all the cherries are cherries without the stems firmly attached and: (i) For each 40 ounces of all the cherries there may be present not more than 2 cherries with pits when all cherries are of small size or extra small size; (ii) for each 40 ounces of all the cherries there may be present not more than 1 cherry with a pit when all cherries are of medium size, large size, or different sizes; and (iii) for each 60 ounces of all the cherries there may be present not more than 1 cherry with a pit when all cherries are of extra large size.

(5) "Unclassified" consists of sulfured cherries which do not conform to any of the foregoing styles.

(6) "Pit" means an entire pit or portion thereof attached to a sulfured cherry or within the pit cavity.

(b) Recommended sizes of sulfured cherries. (1) Although size is a factor in connection with some styles of sulfured cherries, it is not a factor of quality for the purpose of these grades. The size range of sulfured cherries varies on the basis of the diameter of the fruit. The diameter of the sulfured cherry is the minimum diameter of the fruit that will pass through a rigid ring of the same diameter without using pressure. The name designations of the various sizes are shown in the first column of Table No. I of this paragraph. Sulfured cherries will be considered as meeting a particular designated size if not more than 10 percent, by weight, of all the cherries are 1 mm. smaller or 2 mm. smaller and not more than 10 percent, by weight, of all the cherries are 1 mm. larger or 2 mm. larger than the diameter range of the particular size designation: Provided, That not more than 1 percent, by weight, of all cherries are no more than 2 mm. smaller than the minimum diameter for the designated size and not more than 1 percent, by weight, of all cherries are no more than 2 mm. larger than the maximum diameter for the designated size.

TABLE NO. I—SIZES OF CHERRIES IN SULFURED CHERRIES

Name designation:	Minimum and maximum diameter
Extra small	14 mm. to, and including, 16 mm.
Small	16 mm. to, and including, 18 mm.
Medium	18 mm. to, and including, 20 mm.
Large	20 mm. to, and including, 22 mm.
Extra large	22 mm. and over.

(c) Grades of sulfured cherries. (1) "U. S. Grade A" or "U. S. Fancy" is the quality of sulfured cherries that are clean; that possess a good color; that are practically free from defects; that possess a good character; and that score not less than 85 points when scored in accordance with the scoring system outlined in this section.

(2) "U. S. Grade B" or "U. S. Choice" is the quality of sulfured cherries that are clean; that possess a reasonably good color; that are reasonably free from defects; that possess a reasonably good character; and that score not less than 70 points when scored in accordance with the scoring system outlined in this section.

(3) "U. S. Grade D" or "Seconds" is the quality of sulfured cherries that are clean, but for other reasons fail to meet the requirements of U. S. Grade B or U. S. Choice.

(4) "U. S. Combination Grade" is the quality of sulfured cherries that are clean; and that with respect to color, absence of defects, and character meets the following requirements:

(i) Not less than 90 percent, by weight, of all the cherries, possess at least a reasonably good color and a reasonably good character and are free from misshapen cherries, cherries seriously damaged by mechanical injury, and seriously blemished cherries; and

(ii) Unless otherwise specified, at least 50 percent, by weight, of all the cherries, possess a good color and a good character; and are free from blemished cherries or seriously blemished cherries, misshapen cherries, and cherries damaged by mechanical injury or cherries seriously damaged by mechanical injury.

(d) Definition. (1) "Clean" means that the product is practically free from loose pits, leaves, detached stems, bark, fruit spurs, dirt or other foreign material.

(e) Ascertaining the grade with respect to "U. S. Grade A" or "U. S. Fancy" and "U. S. Grade B" or "U. S. Choice." (1) The grade of sulfured cherries is ascertained by considering, in addition to the requirements of the respective grade, the respective ratings for the factors of color, absence of defects, and character.

(2) The relative importance of each factor which is scored is expressed numerically on the scale of 100. The maximum number of points that may be given each factor is:

Factors:	Points
(i) Color	20
(ii) Absence of defects	40
(iii) Character	40
Total score	100

(f) Ascertaining the rating for each factor which is scored. The essential variations within each factor which is scored are so described that the value may be ascertained and expressed numerically. The numerical range for the ratings of such factors is inclusive (for example, "17 to 20 points" means 17, 18, 19, or 20 points).

(1) Color. (i) Sulfured cherries that possess a good color may be given a score of 17 to 20 points. "Good color" means that the cherries possess a practically uniform color typical of well-bleached sulfured cherries for the variety.

(ii) If the sulfured cherries possess a reasonably good color, a score of 14 to 16 points may be given. "Reasonably good color" means that the cherries possess a reasonably uniform color typical of reasonably well-bleached sulfured cherries for the variety. Sulfured cherries that fall into this classification shall not be graded above U. S. Grade B or U. S. Choice, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule).

(iii) Sulfured cherries that fail to meet the requirements of subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph may be given a score of 0 to 13 points. Sulfured cherries that fall into this classification shall not be graded above U. S. Grade D or Seconds, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule).

(2) Absence of defects. The factor of absence of defects refers to the degree of freedom from misshapen cherries, cherries damaged or seriously damaged by mechanical injury, and cherries blemished or seriously blemished by discoloration, rain or solution cracks, bird pecks, pathological injury, insect injury or blemished by other means.

(i) "Misshapen cherries" means any deformed cherries or double cherries.

(ii) "Cherries damaged by mechanical injury" means any pitter tear or pitter tears which materially affect the appearance of the cherry; any open pitter hole measuring more than $\frac{1}{8}$ inch across, but not more than $\frac{3}{16}$ inch across, or open pitter holes aggregating more than $\frac{1}{8}$ inch across, but not more than $\frac{3}{16}$ inch across; any pitter hole where there is a material loss of flesh; and other mechanical injury which materially affects the appearance of the cherry.

(iii) "Cherries seriously damaged by mechanical injury" means any pitter tear or pitter tears which seriously affect the appearance of the cherry; any open pitter hole measuring more than $\frac{3}{16}$ inch across, or open pitter holes aggregating more than $\frac{3}{16}$ inch across, any pitter hole where there is a serious loss of flesh; and other mechanical injury which seriously affects the appearance of the cherry.

(iv) "Blemished cherry" means any cherry which is affected by:

(a) Dark surface discoloration exceeding in the aggregate the area of a circle $\frac{3}{16}$ inch in diameter, but not exceeding in the aggregate $\frac{1}{8}$ of the surface of the cherry;

(b) Any rough surface areas which slightly affect the appearance of the cherry;

(c) Light surface discoloration exceeding in the aggregate $\frac{1}{8}$ of the surface of the cherry, but not exceeding in the aggregate $\frac{1}{2}$ of the surface of the cherry;

(d) Rain checks or rain cracks (1) in the stem basin more than $\frac{1}{4}$ inch in length, but not more than $\frac{1}{2}$ inch in length, (2) any rain checks or rain cracks outside the stem basin more than $\frac{5}{16}$ inch in length but not more than $\frac{3}{8}$ inch in length.

(e) Any solution cracks or other blemish or combination of any blemishes which materially affect the appearance of the cherry. The term "blemished cherry" also means any cherry the flesh of which is materially discolored.

(v) "Seriously blemished cherry" means any cherry which is affected by:

(a) Dark surface discoloration exceeding in the aggregate $\frac{1}{8}$ of the surface of the cherry;

(b) Any rough surface areas which materially affect the appearance of the cherry;

(c) Light surface discoloration exceeding in the aggregate $\frac{1}{2}$ of the surface of the cherry;

(d) Rain checks or rain cracks (1) in the stem basin more than $\frac{1}{2}$ inch in length, (2) any rain checks or rain cracks outside the stem basin, more than $\frac{3}{16}$ inch in length.

(e) Any solution cracks or other blemish or combination of any blemishes which seriously affect the appearance of the cherry. The term "seriously blemished cherry" also means any cherry the flesh of which is seriously discolored.

(vi) Sulfured cherries that are practically free from defects may be given a score of 34 to 40 points. "Practically free from defects" means that not more than a total of 10 percent, by weight, of cherries are misshapen cherries, cherries damaged by mechanical injury, seriously damaged by mechanical injury, blemished cherries or seriously blemished cherries of which not more than five percent, by weight, of all cherries are misshapen cherries, cherries seriously damaged by mechanical injury or seriously blemished cherries.

(vii) Sulfured cherries that are reasonably free from defects may be given a score of 28 to 33 points. "Reasonably free from defects" means that not more than a total of 10 percent, by weight, of cherries are misshapen cherries, cherries seriously damaged by mechanical injury, or seriously blemished cherries. Sulfured cherries that fall into this classification shall not be graded above U. S. Grade B or U. S. Choice, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule).

(viii) Sulfured cherries that fail to meet the requirements of subdivision (vii) of this subparagraph for any reason may be given a score of 0 to 27 points and shall not be graded above U. S. Grade D or Seconds, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule).

(3) Character. The factor of character refers to the firmness of the cherries and to the condition of the flesh.

(i) Sulfured cherries that possess a good character may be given a score of 34 to 40 points. "Good character" means that the cherries possess a firm fleshy texture, retain their approximate original shape, are not shriveled or watery, and do not show more than slight collapsed areas of flesh. To score in this classification, sulfured cherries may contain not more than five percent, by weight, of cherries which fail to meet requirements for "good character."

(ii) If the sulfured cherries possess a reasonably good character, a score of 28 to 33 points may be given. Sulfured cherries that fall into this classification shall not be graded above U. S. Grade B or U. S. Choice, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule). "Reasonably good character" means that the cherries possess a reasonably firm texture, may have slightly lost their original shape, may be slightly shriveled, or may show moderate collapsed areas of flesh. To score in this classification, sulfured cherries may contain not more than 10 percent, by weight, of cherries which fail to meet the requirements for "reasonably good character."

(iii) Sulfured cherries that are soft, flabby, wrinkled, leathery, or have materially lost their original shape, or show seriously collapsed areas of flesh, or fail to meet the requirements of subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph for any reason may be given a score of 0 to 27 points and shall not be graded above U. S. Grade D or Seconds, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule).

(f) Ascertaining the grade with respect to U. S. Combination Grade. (1) The combination grade of sulfured cherries is ascertained by considering color, absence of defects, character, and the cleanliness of the product.

(2) The definition for cleanliness and the terms defined with respect to ascertaining "U. S. Grade A" or "U. S. Fancy" and "U. S. Grade B" or "U. S. Choice" outlined under the factors of color, absence of defects and character for these grades are also applicable for ascertaining the U. S. Combination Grade.

(g) Tolerance for certification of officially drawn samples for U. S. Combination Grade of sulfured cherries. (1) When certifying samples that have been officially drawn and which represent a specific lot of sulfured cherries, the percent, by weight, of cherries which possess at least a reasonably good color and a reasonably good character, and are free from misshapen cherries, cherries seriously damaged by mechanical injury, and seriously blemished cherries is computed by averaging the percent, by weight, of such cherries in all samples of the lot if:

(i) None of the samples in the lot contain less than 80 percent, by weight, of such cherries.

(2) The percent, by weight, of cherries for the lot which possess a good color and a good character, and are free from blemished cherries or seriously blemished cherries, misshapen cherries damaged by mechanical injury or cherries seriously damaged by mechanical injury, is computed by averaging the percent, by weight, of such cherries in all samples of the lot if:

(i) None of the samples in the lot contains less than 35 percent, by weight, of such cherries.

(h) Tolerance for certification of officially drawn samples for "U. S. Grade A" or "U. S. Fancy" and "U. S. Grade B" or "U. S. Choice." (1) When certifying samples that have been officially drawn and which represent a specific lot of sulfured cherries, the grade for such lot will be determined by averaging the total scores of the samples comprising the lot, if:

(i) Not more than one-sixth of such samples fails to meet all the requirements of the grade indicated by the average of such total scores, and with respect to such samples which fail to meet the requirements of the indicated grade by reason of a limiting rule, the average score of all samples in the lot for the factor, subject to such limiting rule, is within the range for the grade indicated:

(ii) None of the samples comprising the lot falls more than four points below the minimum score for the grade indicated by the average of the total scores; and

(iii) All samples comprising the lot meet all applicable standards of quality promulgated under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act and in effect at the time of the aforesaid certification.

PART 953—LEMONS GROWN IN CALIFORNIA AND ARIZONA

LIMITATION OF SHIPMENTS

Findings. (1) Pursuant to the marketing agreement, as amended, and Order No. 53, as amended (7 CFR Part 953), regulating the handling of lemons grown in the State of California or in the State of Arizona, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, and upon the basis of the recommendation and information submitted by the Lemon Administrative Committee, established under the said amended marketing agreement and order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of the quantity of such lemons which may be handled, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice and engage in public rule-making procedure (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq) because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this amendment is based became available and the time when this amendment must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, is insufficient; and this amendment relieves restrictions on the handling of lemons grown in the State of California or in the State of Arizona.

Order, as amended. The provisions in paragraph (b) (1) (ii) of § 953.488 (Lemon Regulation 381, 16 F. R. 3975), are hereby amended to read as follows:

(ii) District 2: 575 carloads.

(b) Order. (1) The quantity of lemons grown in the State of California or in the State of Arizona which may be handled during the period beginning at 12:01 a. m., P. s. t., May 13, 1951, and ending at 12:01 a. m., P. s. t., May 20, 1951, is hereby fixed as follows:

(i) District 1: Unlimited movement;

(ii) District 2: 600 carloads;

(iii) District 3: Unlimited movement.

(2) The prorate base of each handler who has made application therefor, as provided in the said amended marketing agreement and order, is hereby fixed in accordance with the prorate base schedule which is attached to Lemon Regulation No. 381 (16 F. R. 3975), and made a part hereof by this reference.

(3) As used in this section, "handled," "handler," "carloads," "prorate base," "District 1," "District 2," and "District 3," shall have the same meaning as when used in the said amended marketing agreement and order.

Subchapter A—Civil Air Regulations

[Supp. 1]

PART 20—PILOT CERTIFICATES

EXPERIENCE REQUIREMENTS INSTRUMENT RATING

The following interpretation is hereby adopted:

§ 20.42–1 Experience requirements instrument rating (CAA interpretations which apply to § 20.42 (b) (2)). Simulated instrument flight time need not necessarily be instrument flight instruction and may be obtained with a safety pilot who does not hold an instrument rating. The safety pilot must hold an instrument rating only when he is giving instrument flight instructions.

This interpretation shall become effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Chapter I—Bureau of Customs, Department of the Treasury

[T. D. 52721]

PART 10—ARTICLES CONDITIONALLY FREE, SUBJECT TO A REDUCED RATE, ETC.

CANCELLATION OF BONDS

Under § 10.39 of the Customs Regulations of 1943, as amended by T. D. 52454, the relief which the collectors of customs may extend in cases where there has been compliance with the terms of the bond with respect to part of but not all the articles covered thereby is limited to cancellation of the claim for liquidated damages upon the payment of an amount equal to one and one-quarter times the duty on the articles in respect of which the default occurred. Since there are many cases in which the Bureau's practice is to cancel the claim for liquidated damages upon payment of a nominal sum and which the collectors acted upon prior to T. D. 52454, § 10.39, Customs Regulations of 1943 (19 CFR 10.39), as amended, is further amended as follows:

1. Paragraph (f) is amended by inserting "or, under the circumstances enumerated in subparagraphs (1), (2), or (3) of paragraph (e) of this section, upon payment of such lesser amount as the collector may deem appropriate" immediately after "occurred".

2. Paragraph (g) is hereby amended by deleting the first sentence and the words "paragraph (e) or (f) of" in the second sentence.

School Survey and Construction Act of 1950, 64 Stat. 967 et seq.; 20 U. S. C. 251 et seq.

§ 5.2 Definitions. As used in the regulations[1] in this part:

(a) The term "Agency Head" means the principal official of the Federal agency and includes those persons duly authorized to act in his behalf;

(b) The term "Contracting Officer" means the individual, his duly appointed successor or his authorized representative who is designated and authorized to enter into contracts on behalf of the Federal agency;

(c) The term "apprentices" means persons employed in a bona fide apprenticeship program registered with a State Apprenticeship Council which is recognized by the Federal Committee on Apprenticeship, United States Department of Labor, or if no such recognized Council exists in a State, in a program registered with the Bureau of Apprenticeship, United States Department of Labor;

(d) The term "wage determination" includes the original decision and any subsequent decisions modifying, superseding, correcting, or in any way affecting the provisions of the original decision, issued prior to the award of the construction contract, except that under the National Housing Act changes in the decision shall be effective if made at any time prior to the beginning of construction. The use of the wage determination shall be subject to the provisions of § 5.4.

(e) The term "contract" means any contract within the scope of the labor standards provisions of any of the acts listed in § 5.1 and which is entered into for the actual construction, alteration and/or repair, including painting and decorating, of a public building or public work, or building or work financed in whole or in part from Federal funds or in accordance with guarantees of a Federal agency or financed from funds obtained by pledge of any contract of a Federal agency to make a loan, grant or annual contribution.

(f) The terms "building" or "work" generally include construction activity as distinguished from manufacturing, furnishing of materials, or servicing and maintenance work. The terms include without limitation, buildings, structures, and improvements of all types, such as bridges, dams, plants, highways, parkways, streets, subways, tunnels, sewers, mains, power lines, pumping stations, railways, ships, vessels, airports, terminals, docks, piers, wharves, ways, lighthouses, buoys, jetties, breakwaters, levees, canals, dredging, shoring, rehabilitation and reactivation of plants, scaffolding, drilling, blasting, excavating, clearing, and landscaping. The manufacture or furnishing of materials, articles, supplies or equipment (whether or not a Federal or State agency acquires title to such materials, articles, supplies, or equipment during the course of the manufacture or furnishing, or owns the materials from which they are manufactured or furnished) is not a "building" or "work" within the meaning of the regulations in this part unless conducted in connection with and at the site of such a building or work as is described in the foregoing sentence, or under the Housing Act of 1949[2] in the construction or development of the project.

(g) The terms "construction", "prosecution", "completion", or "repair" mean all types of work done on a particular building or work at the site thereof, or under the Housing Act of 1949 in the construction or development of the project, including without limitation, altering, remodeling, painting and decorating, the transporting of materials and supplies to or from the building or work by the employees of the construction contractor or construction subcontractor, and the manufacturing or furnishing of materials, articles, supplies or equipment on the site of the building or work, or under the Housing Act of 1949 in the construction or development of the project, by persons employed by the contractor or subcontractor. A mere token beginning of the work shall not be deemed to be the "beginning of construction" as that term is used in the National Housing Act.

(h) The term "public building" or "public work" includes building or work, the construction, prosecution, completion, or repair of which, as defined above, is carried on directly by authority of or with funds of a Federal agency to serve the interest of the general public regardless of whether title thereof is in a Federal agency.

(i) Every person paid by a contractor or subcontractor in any manner for his labor in the construction, prosecution, completion, or repair of a public building or public work, or building or work financed in whole or in part by loans, grants or guarantees from the United States, is "employed" and receiving "wages", regardless of any contractual relationship alleged to exist.

(j) The term "Federal agency" means the United States, the District of Columbia, and all executive departments, independent establishments, administrative agencies, and instrumentalities of the United States and of the District of Columbia, including corporations, all or substantially all of the stock of which is beneficially owned by the United States, by the District of Columbia, or any of the foregoing departments, establishments, agencies, and instrumentalities.

§ 5.3 Procedure for requesting wage determinations. Requests for the determination of wage rates by the Secretary of Labor or for any change, modification, or review thereof, shall be submitted by the Federal agency on forms prescribed by the Department of Labor. Requests for such determinations shall be initiated at least 30 calendar days before advertisement of the specifications or the beginning of the negotiations for the contract for which the determination is sought; exceptions from this provision will be made only upon a proper showing in unusual circumstances.

[1] These definitions are not intended to restrict the meaning of any of the terms as used in the applicable statutes.

[2] Housing Act of 1949, 42 U. S. C. 1416, 1459.

§ 5.4 Use of wage determinations. (a) If the proposed contract for which determination was sought has not been awarded or if under a contract subject to the National Housing Act construction has not begun within 90 calendar days from the date of the original wage determination such determination shall be deemed obsolete and the Agency Head shall request a new wage determination before the award of such contract or the beginning of such construction, as the case may be.

(b) All actions changing or modifying an original wage determination prior to the award of the contract or contracts for which the determination was sought shall be applicable thereto but modifications received by the agency later than 5 days before the opening of bids shall not be effective if the award is made within 30 days after the opening of the bids or 90 days from the date of the original wage determination whichever is the earlier. Similarly, in the case of contracts entered into pursuant to the National Housing Act, changes or modifications in the original determination shall be effective if made prior to the beginning of the construction, but shall not apply after the mortgage is initially endorsed by the agency if the beginning of the construction takes place within 30 days thereafter.[3] The Agency Head shall provide that persons such as the prospective bidders, sponsors, applicants or owners be informed of these conditions.

§ 5.5 Contract provisions. (a) The Agency Head shall cause or require to be inserted in any contract subject to the labor standards provisions of any of the acts listed in § 5.1 the following stipulations or any modifications thereof to meet particular needs of the agency if first approved by the Department of Labor:

(1) All mechanics and laborers employed or working upon the site of the work, or under the Housing Act of 1949 in the construction or development of the project, will be paid unconditionally and not less often than once a week, and without subsequent deduction or rebate on any account (except such payroll deductions as are permitted by the Anti-Kickback Regulations (29 C. F. R. Part 3)), the full amounts due at time of payment computed at wage rates not less than those contained in the wage determination decision of the Secretary of Labor which is attached hereto and made a part hereof, regardless of any contractual relationship which may be alleged to exist between the contractor or subcontractor and such laborers and mechanics; and the wage determination decision shall be posted by the contractor at the site of the work in a prominent place where it can be easily seen by the workers.

(2) The [write in name of Federal agency] may withhold or cause to be withheld from the contractor so much of the accrued payments or advances as may be considered necessary to pay laborers and mechanics employed by the contractor or any subcontractor on the work the full amount of wages required by the contract. In the event of failure to pay any laborer or mechanic employed or working on the site of the work, or under the Housing Act of 1949 in the construction or development of the project, all or part of the wages required by the contract, the [Agency] may, after written notice to the contractor, sponsor, applicant, or owner, take such action as may be necessary to cause the suspension of any further payment, advance, or guarantee of funds until such violations have ceased.

(3) Payroll records will be maintained during the course of the work and preserved for a period of three years thereafter for all laborers and mechanics working at the site of the work, or under the Housing Act of 1949 in the construction or development of the project. Such records will contain the name and address of each such employee, his correct classification, rate of pay, daily and weekly number of hours worked, deductions made and actual wages paid.

The contractor will submit weekly a certified copy of all payrolls to the [write in name of appropriate Federal agency] if the agency is a party to the contract but if the agency is not such a party the contractor will submit the certified payrolls to the applicant, sponsor, or owner, as the case may be, for transmission to the [write in name of agency]. The certification will affirm that the payrolls are correct and complete, that the wage rates contained therein are not less than those determined by the Secretary of Labor and that the classifications set forth for each laborer or mechanic conform with the work he performed. The contractor will make his employment records available for inspection by authorized representatives of the [write in name of agency] and the Department of Labor, and will permit such representatives to interview employees during working hours on the job.

(4) Apprentices will be permitted to work only under a bona fide apprenticeship program registered with a State Apprenticeship Council which is recognized by the Federal Committee on Apprenticeship, U. S. Department of Labor; or if no such recognized Council exists in a State, under a program registered with the Bureau of Apprenticeship, U. S. Department of Labor.

(5) The contractor will comply with the regulations (copy of which is attached) of the Secretary of Labor made pursuant to the Anti-Kickback Act of June 13, 1934, 48 Stat. 948; 62 Stat. 740, 63 Stat. 108; 18 U. S. C. 874, 40 U. S. C. 276 b, c, and any amendments or modifications thereof, will cause appropriate provisions to be inserted in subcontracts to insure compliance therewith by all subcontractors subject thereto, and will be responsible for the submission of affidavits required of subcontractors thereunder, except as the Secretary of Labor may specifically provide for reasonable limitations, variations, tolerances and exemptions from the requirements thereof.

(6) The contractor will insert in each of his subcontracts the provisions set forth in stipulations (1), (2), (3), (4), (5) and (7) hereof, and such other stipulations as the [write in name of Federal agency] may by appropriate instructions require.

(7) A breach of stipulations (1) through (6) may be grounds for termination of the contract.

(b) The Agency Head shall cause or require the following stipulation to be included in the contract where applicable:

EIGHT HOUR LAW—OVERTIME COMPENSATION

No laborer or mechanic doing any part of the work contemplated by this contract, in the employ of the contractor or any subcontractor contracting for any part of said work contemplated, shall be required or permitted to work more than eight hours in any one calendar day upon such work, except upon the condition that compensation is paid to such laborer or mechanic in accordance with the provisions of this article of the contract. The wages of every laborer and mechanic employed by the contractor or any subcontractor engaged in the performance of this contract shall be computed on a basic day rate of eight hours per day and work in excess of eight hours per day is permitted only upon the condition that every such laborer and mechanic shall be compensated for all hours worked in excess of eight hours per day at not less than one and one-half times the basic rate of pay. For each violation of the requirements of this article of the contract a penalty of five dollars shall be imposed upon the contractor for each laborer or mechanic for every calendar day in which such employee is required or permitted to labor more than eight hours upon said work without receiving compensation computed in accordance with this article of the contract, and all penalties thus imposed shall be withheld for the use and benefit of the Government: Provided, That this stipulation shall be subject in all respects to the exceptions and provisions of the Eight Hour Laws as set forth in U. S. Code, title 40, sections 321, 324, 325, 325a, and 326, which relate to hours of labor and compensation for overtime.

§ 5.6 Enforcement. (a) It shall be the responsibility of the Federal agency to ascertain whether the stipulations required by § 5.5 have been inserted in the contracts. Agencies which do not directly enter into such contracts shall promulgate the necessary regulations or procedures to require that the contracts contain the provisions of § 5.5 or such modifications thereof which have been approved by the Department of Labor. No payment, advance, grant, loan or guarantee of funds shall be approved by the Federal agency after the beginning of construction unless there is on file with the agency a certification by the contractor that he and his subcontractors have complied or that there is an honest dispute with respect to the required provisions.

(b) Whenever any contractor or subcontractor is found by the Secretary of Labor or the Agency Head to be in aggravated or wilful violation of the prevailing wage or overtime pay provisions of any of the applicable statutes listed in § 5.1, other than the Davis-Bacon Act, such contractor or subcontractor or any firm, corporation, partnership, or association in which such contractor or subcontractor has a substantial interest shall be ineligible for a period of three years (from the date of publication by the Comptroller General of the name or names of said contractor or subcontractor on the ineligible list as provided below) to receive any contracts subject to any of the statutes listed in § 5.1. In cases arising under contracts covered by the Davis-Bacon Act, the ineligibility provision prescribed in that act shall govern.

The Agency Head shall furnish to the Secretary of Labor for transmittal to the Comptroller General the names of the persons or firms who have been found to have disregarded their obligations to employees. The Comptroller General will distribute a list to all Departments of the Government giving the names of such ineligible persons or firms.

(c) Under the Davis-Bacon Act the contracting officer shall require that any class of laborers and mechanics not listed in the Secretary's decision, which will be employed on the contract, shall be classified or reclassified by the contractor or subcontractor conformably to the Secretary's decision and a report of the administrative action taken in such cases shall be transmitted by the agency to the Secretary of Labor. In the event the interested parties cannot agree on the proper classification or reclassification of a particular class of laborers and mechanics to be used, the question, accompanied by the recommendation of the contracting officer, shall be referred to the Secretary of Labor for final determination. Where classifications of laborers and mechanics are desired under any of the other statutes listed in § 5.1 which were not included in the original decision, a supplementary wage determination shall be requested by the Agency Head.

(d) The Federal agency shall make such examination of the certified payrolls and affidavits as may be necessary to assure compliance with the labor standards stipulations required by the regulations contained in this part and the applicable statutes listed in § 5.1 In connection with such examination particular attention should be given to the correctness of classifications and disproportionate employment of laborers, helpers or apprentices. Such payrolls and affidavits shall be preserved by the agency for a period of three years from the date of completion of the contract and shall be produced at the request of the Secretary of Labor at any time during the 3-year period.

(e) In addition to the examination of payrolls and affidavits required by paragraph (d) of this section, the Federal agency shall cause investigations to be made as may be necessary to assure compliance with the labor standards stipulations required by the regulations contained in this part and the applicable statutes listed in § 5.1. Projects where the contract is of short duration (6 months or less) shall be investigated before the work is accepted, if feasible. In the case of contracts which extend over a long period of time the investigation shall be made with such frequency as may be necessary to assure compliance. Such investigations shall include interviews with employees and examinations of payroll data to determine the correctness of classifications and disproportionate employment of laborers, helpers or apprentices. Complaints of alleged violations shall be given priority and statements, written or oral, made by an employee shall be treated as confidential and shall not be disclosed to his employer without the consent of the employee.

§ 5.7 Reports to the Secretary of Labor. (a) After completion of investigations, the appropriate Federal agency shall, where the violations are wilful or result in underpayments in the amount of $200 or more, transmit to the Secretary of Labor a report of its findings, including information as to restitution made; payments or approvals of loans, grants, guarantees, or subsidies withheld; contract terminations; the names and addresses of employees and contractors or subcontractors affected. The procedure for the withholding of funds under the Davis-Bacon Act shall be in accordance with the Comptroller General's letter of February 28, 1936, A. 34106, which is appended hereto.*

(b) No report need be made to the Secretary of Labor where the underpayments total less than $200, if nonwilful, and the Federal agency has required restitution to be made and has received assurance from the contractor of future compliance.

(c) Upon the award of the contract the Agency Head shall transmit to the Secretary of Labor in duplicate the following information in writing: The names and addresses of each successful contractor, the amount of the contract, and the location and description of the projects including the contract numbers if available in sufficient detail to indicate its nature. The same information shall be submitted with respect to subcontractors and their subcontracts. Compliance with section 109 (c) of Title 1 of the Housing Act of 1949, shall be deemed to be fulfillment of this section with respect to contracts entered into pursuant to Title 1 of that act.

(d) Where the contract is terminated by reason of violations of the labor standards a report shall be submitted to the Secretary of Labor and the Comptroller General giving the name and address of the contractor or subcontractor whose right to proceed has been terminated, the name and address of the contractor or subcontractor, if any, who is to complete the work, the amount and number of his contract, and the description of the work he is to perform.

§ 5.8 Suspension of funds. In the event of failure or refusal of the contractor or any subcontractor to comply with labor standards stipulations required by the regulations contained in this part and the applicable statutes listed in § 5.1, the Federal agency shall take such action as may be necessary to cause the suspension of the payment, advance or guarantee of funds until such time as the violations are discontinued or until sufficient funds are withheld to compensate employees for the wages to which they are entitled.

§ 5.9 Restitution. (a) The Agency Head may, in appropriate cases where violations of the labor standards stipulations required by the regulations contained in this part and the applicable statutes listed in § 5.1 resulting in underpayment of wages to employees are found to be nonwilful, order that restitution be made to such employees.

(b) In cases where the Agency Head finds substantial evidence that such violations are wilful and in violation of a criminal statute, the Agency Head shall forward the matter to the Attorney General of the United States for prosecution if the facts warrant. In all such cases the Secretary of Labor shall be informed of the action taken.

§ 5.10 Investigations by the Secretary of Labor. (a) The Secretary of Labor shall cause to be made such investigations as he deems desirable, in order to obtain compliance with the provisions of this part and the applicable statutes listed in § 5.1 and the Federal agencies, contractors, subcontractors, sponsors, applicants or owners, shall cooperate with any authorized representative of the Department of Labor in the inspection of records, in interviews with workers, and in all other aspects of the investigation.

(b) In the event of disputes concerning the payment of prevailing wage rates or proper classifications which involve significant sums of money, large groups of employees, or novel or unusual situations, the Secretary of Labor may, upon request by a Federal agency, direct a hearing to be held. For the purpose of the hearing the Secretary of Labor shall, in writing, designate a Hearing Examiner who shall, after notice to all interested parties, make such investigation and conduct such hearings as may be necessary and render a decision embodying his findings and conclusions and if wages are found to be due, the amounts thereof. The Hearing Examiner's decision shall be sent to the interested parties and shall be final unless a petition for review of the decision by the Secretary of Labor is filed by any such parties in quadruplicate with the Chief Hearing Examiner, United States Department of Labor, Washington 25, D. C., within twenty (20) days after receipt thereof. The petition for review must set out separately and particularly each objection asserted. The petition for review and the record which shall include the Examiner's decision, then shall be certified by the Hearing Examiner to the Secretary of Labor. The petitioner may file a brief (original and four copies) in support of his petition within the twenty (20) day period and any interested party upon whom the Hearing Examiner's decision has been served may within ten (10) days after the expiration of the time for filing the petition for review, file a brief in support of, or in opposition to the Hearing Examiner's decision. The Secretary of Labor's decision shall be final.

§ 5.11 Rulings and interpretations. All questions arising in any agency relating to the application and interpretation of the regulations contained in this part and of the Davis-Bacon Act, the Anti-Kickback Act, the Eight Hour Laws, and the labor standards provisions of the following acts, the National Housing Act, the Housing Act of 1949, the Hospital Survey and Construction Act, the Federal Airport Act and the School Survey and Construction Act of 1950, shall be referred to the Secretary of Labor for appropriate ruling or interpretation. The rulings and interpretations of the Secretary shall be authoritative and may be relied upon as provided for in section 10 of the Portal to Portal Act of 1947. Requests for such rulings and interpretations should be addressed to the Secretary of Labor, United States Department of Labor, Washington 25, D. C.

§ 5.12 Variations, tolerances and exemptions. Upon a written finding by the head of a Federal agency, the Secretary of Labor may provide reasonable limitations, variations, tolerances, and exemptions from the requirements of the regulations contained in this part, subject to such conditions as the Secretary of Labor may specify.

Signed at Washington, D. C., this 9th day of May 1951.

MAURICE J. TOBIN,
Secretary of Labor.

(a) "Appellate counsel" shall mean any counsel representing any party before a board of review.

(b) "Appellate defense counsel" shall mean any officer appointed by the Judge Advocate General to represent an accused before a board of review pursuant to Article 70, Uniform Code of Military Justice.

(c) "Appellate Government counsel" shall mean any officer appointed by the Judge Advocate General to represent the Government before a board of review pursuant to Article 70, Uniform Code of Military Justice.

RULES

§ 471.1 Quorum. A majority of the members of a board of review will constitute a quorum for the purpose of hearing and determining any matter referred to the board. The determination of any matter referred to a board of review will be according to the opinion of a majority of its members. In the absence of a quorum the senior member present may make all necessary orders touching any proceedings pending in the board preparatory to hearing or decision thereof. [Rule I]

§ 471.2 Place for filing papers. When the filing of a notice of appearance, brief, or other paper in the Office of a Judge Advocate General is required by this part, such papers will be filed in the Office of the Judge Advocate General of the appropriate armed force. If transmitted by mail or other means, they are not filed until received in such office. [Rule II]

§ 471.3 Signing of papers. All formal papers must be signed and must show, typewritten or printed, the name and address of the person signing same, together with his military rank, if any, and the capacity in which he signs the paper. Such signature constitutes a certificate that the statements made therein are true and correct to the best of the knowledge, information, and belief of the person signing the paper, and that the paper is filed in good faith and not for purposes of unnecessary delay. Papers will be filed only by the duly authorized counsel for the parties in interest and proof of such authorization may be required. [Rule III]

§ 471.4 Computation of time. Times referred to in this part are calendar days. If the last day falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or holiday compliance may be made on the next working day. [Rule IV]

§ 471.5 Counsel—(a) Qualifications. In any proceeding before a board of review the accused may be represented by civilian counsel provided by him or by assigned appellate defense counsel. Civilian counsel must be a member in good standing of the bar of a Federal court or of a court of record of any State of the United States, and may be required to file a certificate setting forth such qualifications. Appellate defense and Government counsel will be qualified in accordance with Article 70 (a) and 27 (b) (1) of the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

(b) Conduct of counsel. The conduct of counsel appearing before a board of review will be in accordance with the rules of conduct prescribed by paragraph 42b, Manual for Courts-Martial, United States, 1951 (16 F. R. 1303).

(c) Request for appellate defense counsel. A request for representation by appellate defense counsel will be forwarded to the convening authority for attachment to the record or dispatched to the Office of the Judge Advocate General within ten days from the date of sentence. In cases referred to a board under Article 69, Uniform Code of Military Justice, the accused will have two days from the time he receives notice of such reference to forward a request for appellate defense counsel to the Office of the Judge Advocate General unless he has already forwarded such request. Any request for appellate defense counsel should be accompanied by a statement as to the errors or other matters urged as grounds for relief. Such statement need not be in technical form and the assistance of counsel in the field will be available for its preparation. In the event defense counsel files a brief as provided in Article 38 (c), Uniform Code of Military Justice, such brief may be submitted in lieu of this statement.

(d) Civilian counsel provided by accused. (1) Notice that an accused has retained or has taken action to retain civilian counsel to represent him before a board of review will be forwarded to the convening authority for attachment to the record or dispatched to the Judge Advocate General within ten days from the date of sentence. In cases referred to a board of review under Article 69, Uniform Code of Military Justice, the accused will forward such notice within two days after receipt of notice by him of such referral unless he has already forwarded such notice. The notice of representation by civilian counsel will be signed by the accused or his representative and will state the name and address of such civilian counsel. When the accused has forwarded a timely notice of intention to retain civilian counsel, a notice of retainer stating the name and address of such counsel must be received in the Office of the Judge Advocate General within ten days of receipt of the notice of intention. Such civilian counsel will thereafter be notified of the receipt of the record of trial in the Office of the Judge Advocate General, the number of the case, the board to which the case has been referred, and the arrangements made, or to be made, for a hearing.

(2) If the accused has forwarded a timely notice of intention to retain civilian counsel, appellate defense counsel shall be assigned to represent the interests of the accused pending appearance of civilian counsel.

(e) Failure to request or give notice of appellate counsel. Failure of an accused to request appellate defense counsel or to give notice of retainer of civilian counsel or of intention to retain civilian counsel within the times prescribed may be regarded as a waiver of such right and a board may take final action in the case. Upon application made to the Judge Advocate General at any time before the board of review has taken final action in a case, and for good cause shown, the times prescribed herein may be extended.

(f) Mandatory assignment of appellate defense counsel. In all cases in which the United States is represented by counsel before a board of review, the accused will be assigned appellate defense counsel if not already represented by counsel.

(g) Direct communication. Civilian counsel may communicate directly with appellate defense or Government counsel. Appellate defense counsel may render such appropriate assistance in connection with the appellate review of the case as may be requested by civilian counsel.

(h) Notice of appearance of counsel. Appellate defense and Government counsel in a case before a board of review will file a written notice of appearance in the Office of the Judge Advocate General within five days of assignment to the case. Civilian counsel will file such notice within ten days from the date of receipt of the notice of retainer. Unless separate notice of appearance is filed, an assignment of errors, brief, or other formal paper will constitute a notice of appearance. [Rule V]

§ 471.6 Records of trial. Civilian counsel who do not have a copy of the record of trial may make arrangements with appellate defense counsel to examine a copy of the record of trial in the Office of the Judge Advocate General and to make a copy of the whole or any part thereof without expense to the Government. [Rule VI]

§ 471.7 Assignment of errors. Within ten days after notice of receipt of the record in the Office of the Judge Advocate General appellate counsel for the accused shall file an assignment of errors setting forth separately and particularly each error asserted and intended to be urged § 471.21. An original and five clear copies prepared in accordance with the provisions of § 471.8 (a) will be submitted. It will contain the information prescribed in § 471.8 (d) (1). A reply to this assignment may be filed within ten days. For good cause shown the Judge Advocate General may extend these times. [Rule VII]

§ 471.8 Briefs—(a) General provisions. The assignment of errors prescribed in § 471.7 may be included in, or filed in lieu of, a brief for the accused. An original and five clear copies of all briefs will be submitted. Briefs will be typewritten, double-spaced on 8" x 12½" (legal cap) white paper, securely fastened at the top. All references to matters contained in the record will show record page numbers and any exhibit designations.

(b) Number of briefs. Appellate counsel will be limited to the filing of one brief for each side unless the board otherwise permits or directs.

(c) Time for filing. Any brief for an accused will be filed within ten days after his appellate counsel has been notified of the receipt of the record in the Office of the Judge Advocate General. If the Judge Advocate General has directed appellate Government counsel to represent the United States, such counsel may file a brief on behalf of the Government within ten days after any brief or an assignment of errors has been filed on behalf of an accused. If no brief is filed on behalf of an accused a brief on behalf of the Government may be filed within ten days after expiration of the time allowed for the filing of a brief on behalf of the accused. For good cause shown the Judge Advocate General may extend the times prescribed herein, giving due notice of such extension to the opposing party.

(d) General contents. (1) Each brief will indicate on the cover page (§ 471.22):

(i) The designation of the board of review to which the case has been referred,

(ii) The number of the case, if known, and the caption with designation of parties,

(iii) Title of the document,

(iv) Names and addresses of all counsel submitting the document.

(2) An index containing:

(i) Divisions of the brief, including a summary of the argument,

(ii) Table of authorities cited with references to the page of the brief where cited.

If the brief is less than ten pages long this index may be omitted.

(e) Contents (Accused) (§ 471.23). The brief for an accused will contain the following arranged in the order indicated:

(1) A summary of the proceedings showing the findings and sentence as approved and the action of the convening authority thereon;

(2) A concise statement of the facts of the case containing all that is material to the consideration of the questions presented with appropriate page references to the record;

(3) The substance of the errors or points intended to be urged, prepared in accordance with § 471.7;

(4) The argument exhibiting clearly the points of fact and law being presented, citing the authorities and statutes relied upon, and quoting the relevant parts of such authorities and statutes as are deemed to have an important bearing;

(5) A conclusion stating concisely why the case should be decided as urged.

(f) Contents (Government). (1) A brief on behalf of the Government will be of like character as that prescribed for the accused except that the matters prescribed in paragraph (e) (1), (2), and (3) of this section need not be given unless deemed necessary in correcting any inaccuracy or omission in the brief of the accused.

(2) Appropriate proof of service of a copy of the brief will appear on the cover sheet when the accused is represented by civilian counsel. [Rule VIII]

§ 471.9 Hearings — (a) Oral arguments. Cases where the parties are not represented by counsel will be considered as submitted without oral argument. All other cases will be set for argument unless, upon request of counsel, a board permits a case to be submitted without argument. The accused does not have a right to be present at the hearing before the board of review.

(b) Notice of setting of arguments. A board of review will give appellate counsel at least ten days notice of the time and place of oral argument, unless waived.

(c) Time limits. The length of oral arguments will be within the discretion of a board of review and ordinarily will not exceed thirty minutes for each side.

(d) Number of counsel; opening and closing. A board in its discretion may limit the number of counsel making an oral argument. The defense will have the right to make opening and closing arguments.

(e) Failure to appear. Failure of appellate counsel to appear at the time and place set for oral argument may be regarded as a waiver thereof and the board may proceed to act on the case as submitted without argument or, in its discretion, may continue the case for argument at a later date, giving due notice thereof.

(f) Matters outside record. Matters outside the record of trial will not be presented to or argued before a board of review except with respect to:

(1) A petition for new trial referred to a board under Article 73, Uniform Code of Military Justice,

(2) A question of jurisdiction,

(3) Matters affecting the sanity of an accused tending to show that further inquiry as to his mental condition is warranted in the interest of justice,

(4) Matters as to which judicial notice may be taken in military law.

When requested by the Judge Advocate General, a board of review may hear and report to him on any matter outside the record in mitigation of the sentence, or otherwise in the interest of justice. [Rule IX]

§ 471.10 Decisions of a board of review—(a) Notice of decisions. Notice of the decision of a board of review will be accomplished as prescribed in paragraph 100, Manual for Courts Martial, 1951 (16 F. R. 1303). In any case where a board affirms a sentence without opinion, notice upon the accused and appellate counsel for the accused, in accordance with paragraph 100c (1) (a), Manual for Courts Martial, 1951, may be accomplished by any equally expeditious means of communication.

(b) Copies of decisions. A copy of the decision of a board of review will be furnished appellate counsel for the accused. [Rule X]

§ 471.11 Continuances and interlocutory matters. Except as otherwise provided in this part a board, in its discretion, may extend any time limits prescribed, may grant continuances for such time and as often as may appear to be just, and may dispose of any interlocutory or other matters, not specifically covered by these rules, in such manner as may appear to be required for a full, fair, and expeditious consideration of the case.

ASSIGNMENT OF ERRORS

SUMMARY OF PROCEEDINGS

Upon trial by general court-martial the accused pleaded not guilty to, and was found guilty of, absence without leave from 2 June 1951 until 1 July 1951 in violation of U. C. M. J. Art. 86, and of the larceny of a watch of a value of $75.00 the property of Private Schmidt, in violation of U. C. M. J. Art. 121. On ----------, 19---- he was sentenced to dishonorable discharge, forfeiture of all pay and allowances, and confinement at hard labor for 4 years. The convening authority approved the sentence, forwarded the record of trial to the Judge Advocate General of the ---------- and directed that pending completion of appellate review the accused be transferred to the command of ----------, where he is presently confined in the base stockade, ---------- Air Base, ----------.

ERRORS

The following errors are assigned:

1. The law officer erred in admitting in evidence as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 1, an alleged extract copy of the morning report of the 3000th Training Squadron dated 2 June 1951 (R. 17).

The exhibit shows that the alleged morning report was signed, and indicates that the entry as to the accused's alleged unauthorized absence was made, by Sergeant William Q Johns, 3000th Training Squadron. Under pertinent regulations in effect at the time the alleged entry was made, a noncommissioned officer was not the proper person to sign the morning report and had no official duty to record the fact of unauthorized absence.

2 The court erred in its findings of guilty of absence without leave (R. 29), as there was no competent evidence of the alleged unauthorized absence.

Argument:
I. An extract copy of a morning report entry, which entry was made by a noncommissioned officer who had no official duty to make the entry, is not admissible in evidence as an exception to the hearsay rule.
a. Such an entry is not an official record.
b. The local practice of permitting unauthorized persons to sign morning reports in violation of Departmental regulations cannot create a custom having the force of law so as to impose upon the maker of the writing a duty to record the facts contained therein.
c. An extract copy of an alleged morning report is not a business entry.
II. The improper cross-examination of an accused, who has testified only as to the circumstances under which an alleged confession had been obtained, concerning the issue of guilt or innocence constitutes fatal error.

TITLE 32A—NATIONAL DEFENSE, APPENDIX

[Ceiling Price Regulation 14, Amdt. 2]

CPR 14—CEILING PRICES OF CERTAIN FOODS SOLD AT WHOLESALE

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENT

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Amendment 2 to Ceiling Price Regulation 14 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

This amendment corrects certain typographical errors in Ceiling Price Regulation 14; establishes appropriate provisions to provide a pricing method for retailers purchasing food items from "service-fee" wholesalers; and, excludes certain wholesalers selling mostly "specialty" food items from using the markups in this regulation if they meet certain specific conditions, including an average markup on "net cost" of 22 percent or more in their fiscal year 1950 on all food sales.

Items 4 and 5 of this amendment deal with "service-fee" wholesalers. CPR-14 provides a pricing method for the type of wholesalers employing percentage markups on "net cost" in arriving at a selling price to retailers. Neither MPR 421 under OPA, nor this regulation provides for the pricing method used by "service-fee" wholesalers. In general, the pricing method of a "service-fee" wholesaler is to sell to the retailer at cost plus a stated service fee. This method of pricing has been more widely used by wholesalers since the end of World War II.

There is an infinite variety of service-fee plans, each tailored to the requirements of the individual using it. The service-fee plans in use throughout the country do not fall exactly into any hard and fast classification, e. g. cost plus 3 percent for warehousing plus a service fee; cost plus 4 percent plus a bonus plan based on over-all monthly volume; cost plus flat monthly service fee; etc. A common characteristic, however, is that the retailers purchasing from service-fee wholesalers cannot accurately figure a "net cost" for items purchased because of the problem of just how to properly allocate the service fees. At the same time the retailers cannot be expected to absorb such fees. To compel them to do so would result in wiping out an established method of doing business. Accordingly the Director of Price Stabilization has determined that the procedure prescribed in this amendment will provide a fair and equitable pricing procedure in such cases.

The amendment provides that a service fee wholesaler shall figure his ceiling prices in accordance with sections 3 and 4 of this regulation for all items covered by this regulation by adding to his "net cost" his fee and service charges, except optional charges, made by him during the month prior to the effective date of this regulation. These "fee and service charges" shall not include any charges optional to the retail customer, but shall include all stated fees and charges for services rendered which are a compulsory part of the wholesaler's plan of operation. However, during each consecutive four-week period after May 14, 1951, the "net cost" for all items covered by this regulation sold by a service fee wholesaler to any retailer, plus the total of the fee and service charges made to that retailer, may not exceed what the wholesaler's ceiling prices would have been if he had figured his ceiling prices by using the markups provided for his class of wholesaler in Table A for all categories of commodities which have a markup of 1.10 or less, and reducing to 1.10 all categories of commodities that have a markup above 1.10, except category 10 which shall be reduced to a markup of 1.19. On all sales made in the above manner the wholesaler must notify the retailer of the wholesaler's ceiling prices for the items on the invoice or order form, or other written document furnished at or before the time of delivery of the items.

Item 6 of this amendment deals with certain wholesalers selling "specialty" food items. There is no hard and fast definition of just what constitutes a "specialty" food item. Generally, "specialty" wholesalers dealing in fancy or "specialty" food items, sometimes described as "table delicacies" or "gourmet's delights", only deal to a very limited extent in cost of living dry groceries such as this regulation is intended to cover. It is evident that the cost of merchandising "specialty" food items is far in excess of that for cost of living items. A few illustrations will indicate the wide variety of the food assortments handled by "specialty" wholesalers. For example, sea squab, pate of smoked rainbow trout, terrapin stew, caviar, brandied fruits, wild game, preserved kumquats, and rattlesnake meat. Available facts indicate that wholesalers offering mostly "specialty" items have realized an average markup on "net cost" in excess of 22 percent for all food items. The markups provided in this regulation are not tailored to reflect the services that are involved in selling "specialty" food items. In fact the markups for Class 3 wholesalers under CPR–14 yield an average markup on "net cost" of approximately 14 percent, an amount far less than that historically realized by "specialty" food wholesalers. The Director of Price Stabilization after very careful consideration has determined that wholesalers selling mostly "specialty" food items may be excluded from using the markups provided in this regulation if they meet the specific conditions set forth in this amendment, including an average markup on "net cost" of 22 percent or more in their fiscal year 1950 on all food sales. They will establish their ceiling prices for all food items under the General Ceiling Price Regulation in the event they are granted an adjustment in accordance with this amendment.

In the formulation of this amendment, special circumstances have rendered impractical consultation with official advisory committees, including trade association representatives; however, the provisions of this amendment incorporate the recommendations of persons representing substantial segments of the industry. In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization the provisions of this amendment are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

So far as practicable, the Director of Price Stabilization gave due consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objective of the Defense Production Act of 1950; to prices prevailing during the period from May 24, 1950 to June 24, 1950, inclusive; and to relevant factors of general applicability.

AMENDATORY PROVISIONS

Ceiling Price Regulation 14 is amended in the following respects:

1. Section 6 is amended by substituting the letter "d" for the numeral "6" in paragraph 8.

2. Section 11 is amended by deleting the words "as amended" at the end of the first sentence thereof.

3. Section 13 is amended by deleting the words "and your name" from the first sentence thereof.

4. A new section, 26a, is inserted between section 26 and section 27 to read as follows:

SEC. 26a. How a service fee wholesaler figures his ceiling prices. (a) You are a service fee wholesaler if the larger part of your sales in dollar volume for any period of time preceding April 5, 1951, (1) were and still are made with delivery; (2) services are rendered through outside salesmen or fieldmen; (3) prior to April 5, 1951, your selling prices to retail stores were figured by the addition to your cost of a stated service fee and charges for additional services rendered; and (4) prior to April 5, 1951, your sales were made to retail stores only after the retail stores agreed to become affiliated with your plan.

(b) If you are a service fee wholesaler, you shall figure your ceiling prices in accordance with sections 3 and 4 of this regulation for all items covered by this regulation by adding to your "net cost" as defined in section 4, the fee and service charges (except optional charges) made by you during the month prior to the effective date of this regulation. These "fee and service charges" shall not include any charges optional to your retail customer, but shall include all stated fees and charges for services rendered which are a compulsory part of your plan of operation. However, during each consecutive four-week period after May 14, 1951, your "net cost" for all items subject to this regulation sold by you to any retail customer, plus the total of the fee and service charges made to that customer, may not exceed what your ceiling prices would have been if you had figured the ceiling prices by using the markups provided for your class of wholesaler in Table A of section 35 for all categories of commodities which have a markup of 1.10 or less, and reducing to 1.10 all categories of commodities that have a markup above 1.10, except category 10 which shall be reduced to a markup of 1.19.

(c) On all sales made by you of items covered by this regulation, you must notify the retailer of your ceiling prices for the items as calculated under this section. This information must be furnished to the retailer on the invoice or order form, or other written document furnished at or before the time of delivery of the items. You may calculate a ceiling price for any particular item by adding to its "net cost" a part of your total fee and service charges. But, you must make sure that for each four-week period after May 14, 1951, your ceiling price for any item does not exceed what your ceiling price would have been if you had figured it in accordance with the requirements of paragraph (b) of this section.

(d) You must notify the OPS district office for your area not later than May 31, 1951, of all fee and service charges used by you during the month prior to the effective date of this regulation which are a compulsory part of your plan of operation, and of all charges which are optional to the retailer, together with all information necessary to obtain a complete description of your type of operation. You may begin using the provisions of this section as soon as you have furnished your OPS district office for your area the information required by this section. This authority may be withdrawn if it is determined that you do not qualify for adjustment under this section.

(e) If you figure your ceiling prices for any items under this section, you must figure all of your ceiling prices for items covered by this regulation in accordance with this section.

5. A new section, 28a, is inserted in Article III after section 28 to read as follows:

SEC. 28a. How certain wholesalers may apply for permission to operate as service fee wholesalers. If you were not operating as a service fee wholesaler prior to April 5, 1951, you may file an application for permission to operate as a service fee wholesaler if you furnish the following information:

(1) The names and addresses of the retailers who agree to become affiliated with your plan.

(2) A schedule of your proposed fees and charges.

(3) A description of the services which you will offer to your retailers.

(4) The number of salesmen or fieldmen that you plan to use.

(5) A complete description of your proposed type of operation including your method of invoicing.

Such application must be filed in duplicate with the OPS district office for your area. You may not operate as a service fee wholesaler until you have received specific authorization from such OPS office. Applications for adjustments are governed by Price Procedural Regulation 1.

6. A new section, 28b, is inserted in Article III after section 28a to read as follows:

SEC. 28b. How certain wholesalers, selling mostly "specialty" food items may under specific conditions apply to be excluded from using the markups in this regulation for the purpose of establishing their ceiling prices. (a) If you meet the average markup requirement specified in this section and do business in the manner outlined in this section you may apply under paragraph (b) of this section to be excluded from using the markups in this regulation for the purpose of establishing your ceiling prices.

(1) Most of your sales prior to April 5, 1951 were and still are of "specialty" food items.

(2) Most of your sales prior to April 5, 1951, were and still are made by delivery.

(3) Most of your sales prior to April 5, 1951, were and still are made through the services of outside salesmen or fieldmen.

(4) Most of your sales prior to April 5, 1951, were and still are made with credit.

(5) Your average markup on "net cost" was at least 22 percent on all food sales for your fiscal year 1950. If not in business during all of 1950, use your most recent fiscal period.

(b) You must before May 31, 1951, file with the OPS district office for your area an application in duplicate showing clearly that you do business as outlined in paragraph (a) of this section and setting forth the following for the calendar or fiscal year 1950:

(1) Total dollar amount of sales.

(2) Cost of goods sold.

(3) Total dollar amount of sales delivered or shipped by you.

(4) Total dollar amount of sales made through outside salesmen or fieldmen.

(5) Total dollar amount of credit sales.

(6) Profit and loss statement.

You may consider yourself excluded from using the markups in this regulation for the purpose of establishing your ceiling prices as soon as you have filed your application in accordance with this section. Then figure all your ceiling prices for food items under the General Ceiling Price Regulation, as amended. This authority may be withdrawn if it is determined by OPS that you do not qualify for adjustment under this section. Applications for adjustments are governed by Price Procedural Regulation 1.

7. Section 33 is amended by adding paragraph (i):

(i) Specialty foods. Specialty foods shall mean food items normally classed as table delicacies or luxury items such as sea squab, terrapin stew, brandied fruits, fancy imported foods, wild game, etc. which the average wholesale grocer and retailer does not stock as a complete line of merchandise.

(Sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.)

Effective date. This amendment shall become effective on May 10, 1951.

NOTE: The record-keeping and reporting requirements of this amendment have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

[Ceiling Price Regulation 15, Amdt. 2]

CPR 15—CEILING PRICES OF CERTAIN FOODS SOLD AT RETAIL IN GROUP 3 AND GROUP 4 STORES

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENT

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Amendment 2 to Ceiling Price Regulation 15 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

This amendment corrects certain typographical errors in CPR–15; excludes retail route sellers from the operation of this regulation for frozen food sales; excludes stores selling mostly "specialty" food items from using the markups in this regulation if they meet certain specific conditions, including an average markup on "net cost" of 40 percent or more in their fiscal year 1950 on all food sales in their stores; and, provides for the procedure to be followed by retailers purchasing from service fee wholesalers.

Item 3 of this amendment deals with frozen food sales by retail route sellers. The provisions of this regulation presently apply to retail route sellers only with respect to frozen foods. A survey of the best data available shows that, in general, retail route sellers of frozen foods are under expenses of doing business that are not comparable to retail stores and that markups for the two types of sellers are not generally the same. The markup for frozen foods provided in this regulation does not reflect an allowance for this type of operation. It was for this reason that retail route sellers were generally excluded from this regulation in the first instance on all other items. Exclusion from this regulation does not mean, however, the decontrol of prices for frozen foods by retail route sellers. They will continue to price frozen foods under the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

Item 4 of this amendment deals with stores selling "specialty" food items. There is no hard and fast definition of just what constitutes a "specialty" food item. Generally, "specialty" stores dealing in fancy or "specialty" food items, sometimes described as "table delicacies" or "gourmet's delights", only deal to a very limited extent in cost of living dry groceries such as this regulation is intended to cover. It is evident that the cost of merchandising "specialty" food items is far in excess of that for cost of living items, e. g. elaborate display fixtures and facilities; employment of specially trained salesmen; selection of food items on the basis of unusual quality, flavor or novelty; special containers or wrappings; and employment of highly qualified tasters to select the finest domestic and foreign food items. A few illustrations will indicate the wide variety of the food assortments handled by "specialty" stores. For example, sea squab, pate of smoked rainbow trout, terrapin stew, caviar, brandied fruits, wild game, preserved kumquats, and rattlesnake meat. Available facts indicate that stores offering mostly "specialty" items have realized an average markup on "net cost" in excess of 40 percent for all food items. The markups provided in this regulation are not tailored to reflect the services that are involved in selling "specialty" food items. In fact the markups for Group 1 stores under CPR–16 yield an average markup on "net cost" of approximately 27 percent, an amount far less than that historically realized by "specialty" food stores. The Director of Price Stabilization after very careful consideration has determined that stores or food departments selling mostly "specialty" food items may be excluded from using the markups provided in this regulation if they meet the specific conditions set forth in this amendment, including an average markup on "net cost" of 40 percent or more in their fiscal year 1950 on all food sales in their stores. They will establish their ceiling prices for all food items under the General Ceiling Price Regulation in the event they are granted an adjustment in accordance with this amendment.

In the formulation of this amendment, special circumstances have rendered impractical consultation with official advisory committees, including trade association representatives. However, the provisions of this amendment incorporate the recommendations of persons representing substantial segments of the industry. In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization the provisions of this amendment are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

So far as practicable the Director of Price Stabilization gave due consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objective of the Defense Production Act of 1950; to prices prevailing during the period from May 24, 1950, to June 24, 1950, inclusive; and to relevant factors of general applicability.

AMENDATORY PROVISIONS

Ceiling Price Regulation 15 is amended in the following respects:

1. Section 14 is amended by deleting the words "as amended" at the end of the first sentence thereof.

2. Section 18 is amended by deleting the words "and your name" from the first sentence thereof.

3. Section 2, paragraph (a), is amended by deleting the last two sentences thereof, and substituting therefor the following new sentence: "The provisions of this regulation do not apply to 'retail route sellers', to sales of 'specially prepared dietetic foods' by 'health food stores' or 'health food departments', or to automatic vending machines or farmers selling produce grown on their own farms."

4. A new section, 26a, is inserted between section 26 and section 27 to read as follows:

SEC. 26a. How certain stores or food departments, selling mostly "specialty" food items may under specific conditions apply to be excluded from using the markups in this regulation for the purpose of establishing their ceiling prices. (a) If your store or food department meets the average markup requirement specified in this section and does business in the manner outlined below you may apply under paragraph (b) of this section to be excluded from using the markups in this regulation for the purpose of establishing your ceiling prices.

(1) Most of your sales in your store or food department are sales of "specialty" food items made by sales clerks who assist customers in selecting, collecting and wrapping or packaging merchandise.

(2) Your store or food department generally offers to all its customers the services of accepting and filling telephone orders, carrying monthly charge accounts and providing delivery.

(3) The general level of your prices in your store or food department was higher than Group 1 stores in your community during your fiscal year 1950.

(4) The average markup on "net cost" was at least 40 percent on all food sales for your fiscal year 1950 and also, if you are not an independent store, at least 40 percent on the combined food sales in all the stores for which you seek adjustment in your organization. Do not count a restaurant as a food department. If not in business during all of 1950, use your most recent fiscal period.

(b) You must before May 30, 1951, file with the OPS district office for your area an application in duplicate (1) showing clearly that you do business as outlined in paragraph (a) above of this section and (2) showing the number of items you normally sell in your store or food department, and (3) showing your average markup on "net cost" for fiscal year 1950 (if not in business during all of 1950 use your most recent fiscal period), and (4) showing the percentage of food items which produce an average markup on "net cost" of 40 percent or more to the total number of food items you sell in your store or food department. You may consider your store or food department excluded from using the markups in this regulation for the purpose of establishing your ceiling prices as soon as you have filed your application in accordance with this section. Then figure all your ceiling prices for food items under the General Ceiling Price Regulation, as amended. This authority may be withdrawn if it is determined by OPS that your store or food department does not qualify for adjustment under this section. Applications for adjustments are governed by Price Procedural Regulation 1.

5. Section 4 is amended by redesignating paragraph (a) (3) as paragraph (a) (4) and inserting the following new paragraph as paragraph (a) (3):

(3) If you are figuring your ceiling price for an item on the basis of a purchase made from a "service fee wholesaler", your "net cost" may not exceed his ceiling price for the item figured on a single unit basis plus transportation charges you paid, if any, as defined in this section. You will be notified by the "service fee wholesaler" of his ceiling price either on his invoice or order form or other written document.

6. Section 35 is amended by adding paragraph (j):

(j) Specialty foods. Specialty foods shall mean food items normally classed as table delicacies or luxury items such as sea squab, terrapin stew, brandied fruits, fancy imported foods, wild game, etc., which the average wholesale grocer and retailer does not stock as a complete line of merchandise.

(Sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.)

Effective date. This amendment shall become effective on May 10, 1951.

NOTE: The record-keeping and reporting requirements of this amendment have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

CPR 16—CEILING PRICES OF CERTAIN FOODS SOLD AT RETAIL IN GROUP 1 AND GROUP 2 STORES

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENT

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (16 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Amendment 2 to Ceiling Price Regulation 16 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

This amendment corrects certain typographical errors in CPR-16; excludes retail route sellers from the operation of this regulation for frozen food sales; excludes stores selling "specialty" food items from using the markups in this regulation if they meet certain specific conditions, including an average markup on "net cost" of 40 percent or more in their fiscal year 1950 on all food sales in their stores; and, provides for the procedure to be followed by retailers purchasing from service fee wholesalers.

AMENDATORY PROVISIONS

Ceiling Price Regulation 16 is amended in the following respects:

1. Section 14 is amended by deleting the words "as amended" at the end of the first sentence thereof.

2. Section 18 is amended by deleting the words "and your name" from the first sentence thereof.

3. Section 2, paragraph (a), is amended by deleting the last two sentences thereof, and substituting therefor the following new sentence: "The provisions of this regulation do not apply to 'retail route sellers', to sales of 'specially prepared dietetic foods' by 'health food stores' or 'health food departments', or to automatic vending machines or farmers selling produce grown on their own farms."

4. A new section, 24a, is inserted in Article III after section 24 to read as follows:

SEC. 24a. How certain stores or food departments, selling mostly "specialty" food items may under specific conditions apply to be excluded from using the markups in this regulation for the purpose of establishing their ceiling prices. (a) If your store or food department meets the average markup requirement specified in this section and does business in the manner outlined below you may apply under paragraph (b) of this section to be excluded from using the markups in this regulation for the purpose of establishing your ceiling prices.

(1) Most of your sales in your store or food department are sales of "specialty" food items made by sales clerks who assist customers in selecting, collecting and wrapping or packaging merchandise.

(b) You must before May 30, 1951, file with the OPS district office for your area an application in duplicate (1) showing clearly that you do business as outlined in paragraph (a) of this section and (2) showing the number of items you normally sell in your store or food department, and (3) showing your average markup on "net cost" for fiscal year 1950 (if not in business during all of 1950 use your most recent fiscal period), and (4) showing the percentage of food items which produce an average markup on "net cost" of 40 percent or more to the total number of food items you sell in your store or food department. You may consider your store or food department excluded from using the markups in this regulation for the purpose of establishing your ceiling prices as soon as you have filed your application in accordance with this section. Then figure all your ceiling prices for food items under the General Ceiling Price Regulation, as amended. This authority may be withdrawn if it is determined by OPS that your store or food department does not qualify for adjustment under this section. Applications for adjustments are governed by Price Procedural Regulation 1.

5. Section 4 is amended by adding to paragraph (a) the following new paragraph as paragraph (a) (3):

(3) If you are figuring your ceiling price for an item on the basis of a purchase made from a "service fee wholesaler", your "net cost" may not exceed his ceiling price for the item figured on a single unit basis plus transportation charges you paid, if any, as defined in this section. You will be notified by the "service fee wholesaler" of his ceiling price either on his invoice or order form or other written document.

6. Section 30 is amended by adding paragraph (j):

[Ceiling Price Regulation 22, Amdt. 2]

CPR 22—MANUFACTURERS' GENERAL CEILING PRICE REGULATION

"PARITY" ADJUSTMENT FOR COOPERATIVES, PRODUCER-PROCESSORS, ET AL.

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Amendment 2 to Ceiling Price Regulation 22 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

Under the present provisions of section 21 of Ceiling Price Regulation 22, some processors who produce their own agricultural commodities, and some producer-owned cooperative processors are unable to take advantage of the "materials cost adjustment" provisions of that section (which are similar to the parity "pass-through" provisions of section 11, General Ceiling Price Regulation), because they make no purchases of below-parity commodities. They therefore have no way of determining the differences in the cost to them of such commodities between the base period and a current date. As a result, these processors may find themselves unable to pay their members prices for below-parity commodities equal to those paid to growers by independent processors, and producer-processors would be unable to realize a return for their production activities equal to the prevailing market price on their raw commodities.

A slightly different problem is present in the case of processors operating under "open" price and deferred payment contracts. These contracts relate the price paid to the producer for the listed commodity to the processor's subsequent sales price or profit on the sale, or, as is frequently the case in the dairy industry, to a price determined by state or municipal authorities, or to other factors unknown at the time the processor receives delivery. Such a processor could not take immediate advantage of the "pass-through" provision because he cannot finally determine the cost to him of the listed agricultural commodity until after he processes and sells it.

This amendment deals with the above problems in the following manner:

For producer-processors and processors who purchase listed agricultural commodities pursuant to "open" price or deferred payment contracts, this amendment provides that, in calculating the "materials cost adjustment" to which they are entitled under section 21 (b) or (c), they may adopt the prices their nearest competitor had to pay for the listed agricultural commodity.

It is further provided that producer-owned cooperatives may increase their ceiling prices, so long as the agricultural commodity is listed in Appendix C of CPR 22, provided that they pass back to producers the entire dollar-and-cent amount of that increase. By this method increases in the processing margin of cooperatives are prevented but the producer is not stopped from realizing a return equal to parity on the raw commodity.

In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization this amendment is generally fair and equitable and is necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

AMENDATORY PROVISIONS

Ceiling Price Regulation 22 is amended by adding a new paragraph (f) in section 21 to read as follows:

(f) Special provisions for Cooperatives, Producer-Processors, etc. (1) If (i) you are a producer-processor, and (ii) you cannot otherwise determine your "materials cost adjustment" for a listed agricultural commodity under paragraphs (b) or (c) of this section because you do not customarily purchase any amount of that commodity from independent producers wholly unaffiliated with you, calculate your "materials cost adjustment" as follows: For purposes of paragraphs (b) or (c) of this section, use as your net costs per unit the same prices (with adjustment for differences in delivery costs) paid by your nearest competitor. Such competitor must be one who buys the same quality of the commodity as do you, buys it in quantities comparable to the quantities in which you buy, and buys it at firm prices for processing. Action under this subparagraph is limited by the provisions of paragraph (d) (2) of this section.

(2) If (i) you are a processor who purchases the listed agricultural commodity under "open" price or deferred payment contracts which relate the price you pay the producer to facts unknown both at the time the raw agricultural commodity is delivered to you and at the time of sale of the processed product, and (ii) you cannot otherwise determine your "materials cost adjustment" for a listed agricultural commodity under paragraph (b) or (c) of this section because you do not customarily purchase any amount of that commodity at prices finally determined at the time of sale, calculate your "materials cost adjustment" as follows: For purposes of paragraph (b) or (c), use as your net costs per unit the same prices (with adjustment for differences in delivery costs) paid by your nearest competitor. Such competitor must be one who buys the same quality of the commodity as do you, buys it in quantities comparable to the quantities in which you buy, and buys it at firm prices for processing. Action under this subparagraph is limited by the provisions of paragraph (d) (2).

(3) If (i) you are a producer-owned cooperative processor, and (ii) you cannot otherwise determine your "materials cost adjustment" for a listed agricultural commodity under paragraph (b) or (c), of this section because you do not customarily purchase any amount of that commodity from independent producers wholly unaffiliated with you, you may increase your ceiling price (as determined under the other sections of this regulation) for products processed from such commodities if the entire dollar-and-cent increase in total gross sales revenue derived from that increase in your ceiling price is passed back to producers within 30 days after the end of each normal accounting period. The amount so passed back must be in addition to the full amount you would normally have passed back to producers had you sold the processed product at the ceiling price determined under the other sections of this regulation. You may not, however, increase your ceiling price after either of the dates set out in paragraph (d) (2) of this section as the final dates that may be used by other processors for figuring changes in net cost.

Effective date. This amendment shall become effective May 16, 1951.

NOTE: The record-keeping and reporting requirements of this amendment have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Commodities or sales exempted from CPR 22 under Appendix A or under section 1 are thereby exempted only from CPR 22 and are still subject to price control under such other regulations as may be applicable.

CPR 22, INT. 3—SALES AT WHOLESALE AND AT RETAIL (SEC. 1)

When a manufacturer sells the same commodity both at wholesale and at retail, only his sales at wholesale are covered by CPR 22, inasmuch as section 1 expressly exempts sales at retail. His sales at retail would be covered by such other regulations as may be applicable.

CPR 22, INT. 4—ELECTION (SEC. 1)

Section 1, CPR 22, permits a manufacturer whose gross sales for his last complete fiscal year were less than $250,000 to elect not to use the regulation. This is, in effect, an option to continue using GCPR for commodities which would otherwise be covered by CPR 22.

(a) A manufacturer must determine his "last complete fiscal year" by reference to the effective date of the regulation, May 28, 1951, and not by reference to the date of issuance of the regulation, April 25, 1951. Thus, the last complete fiscal year for a manufacturer whose year ends on April 30 is the year ending April 30, 1951, and not the year ending April 30, 1950. Likewise, if his fiscal year ends on May 31, the last complete fiscal year is the year ending May 31, 1950 and not the year ending May 31, 1951.

(b) The $250,000 figure relates to total sales of all commodities which he manufactures regardless of how much of such commodities are subject to this regulation, GCPR, or any other regulation. Thus, if his total sales were $600,000, he has no election even though only $240,000 of these sales related to commodities subject to the regulation. Similarly, if his total wholesale and retail sales of the commodities manufactured by him were $600,000, he has no election even though the sales at wholesale amounted only to $240,000 and the remainder were sales at retail (exempted sales).

(c) If a manufacturer's gross sales for his last complete fiscal year were $250,000 or more, he may not thereafter make the election provided by section 1, CPR 22, even though his gross sales in a subsequent fiscal year should drop below $250,000.

(d) A manufacturer who makes the election to use GCPR instead of CPR 22, as permitted by section 1, is not required to file any report of such election.

(e) A manufacturer may elect to use GCPR instead of CPR 22, under section 1, if the total of all sales for his last complete fiscal year of all commodities manufactured by him is less than $250,000, even though the total of his combined sales as a manufacturer and as a wholesaler or retailer of commodities manufactured by others is $250,000 or more.

CPR 22, INT. 5—BASE PERIOD PAYROLL, RETROACTIVE WAGE INCREASES NOT INCLUDED (SEC. 8 (C))

The provision of section 8 (c), CPR 22, with respect to recomputation of base period payroll on the basis of wage rates "in effect on March 15, 1951" does not include any adjustment of wage rates made thereafter, even though the adjustment may be made retroactive to March 15, 1951 or some prior day. This would be the case whether the adjustment is made pursuant to an express provision in a contract in effect on March 15, 1951 or otherwise.

CPR 22, INT. 6—"BASE PERIOD PAYROLL," INCLUSION OF OVERTIME WAGES (SEC. 8 (C))

"Base period payroll" as used in section 8 (c), CPR 22, would include overtime actually paid during the payroll period. The recomputed payroll should include the same amount of overtime hours as the base period payroll, calculated at the rates prevailing on March 15, 1951. This method of calculation was provided because it is the simplest way of arriving at the increase in straight time wage rates. Since the same amount of overtime hours is included in both calculations, the result will generally be substantially the same as that which would be obtained by eliminating overtime payments from both the base period and the recomputed payroll.

CPR 22, INT. 7—MAINTENANCE COSTS (SEC. 10)

The exclusion from "manufacturing material" in section 10, CPR 22, of materials used in "maintaining" a manufacturer's plant was intentional and the inclusion in labor costs of section 8 of labor used in "ordinary maintenance and repair" was intentional. This was done because of the difficulties of segregating maintenance labor from other factory labor.

CPR 22, INT. 8—"CONVERSION STEEL," (SECS. 18, 44)

The definition of "conversion steel" as used in sections 18 and 44 of CPR 22 is the same as that in NPA Order M-47, section 2 (d) (16 F. R. 3130), which is as follows:

"'Conversion steel' means steel mill products which have been obtained by the consumer in consequence of the consumer or some other person having furnished, directly or indirectly, to one or more steel producers or converters, steel mill products in a less finished form such as, but not limited to, ingots, blooms, billets, slabs, rods, skelp, and hot rolled sheets in coils, for the express purpose of procuring such steel mill products."

CPR 22, INT. 9—USE OF SECTION (SEC. 18 (C))

A manufacturer may not use section 18 (c) in the case of deliveries received pursuant to a contract entered into more than 60 days prior to the prescribed date, even though such deliveries were received within 30 days of the prescribed date. Conversely, he may not use section 18 (c) in the case of deliveries received more than 30 days prior to the prescribed date even though such deliveries were received pursuant to a contract entered into within 60 days prior to the prescribed date. The purpose of section 18 (c) is to avoid the use of "stale" prices which would be unrepresentative of actual market conditions as of the prescribed dates, and which might in many cases result in an unfair and unrealistic figure for the materials-cost adjustment.

CPR 22, INT. 10—LONG TERM CONTRACTS SUBJECT TO PRICE REVISIONS (SECS. 18 (C), 47)

A manufacturer purchases materials under a contract signed on March 15, 1950 providing for successive deliveries of materials from April 1, 1950 through March 31, 1951. The contract states a price for the materials, but gives the seller the option to increase or decrease the price with respect to the calendar quarters commencing on July 1, 1950, October 1, 1950 and January 1, 1951. To change the price the seller must give the manufacturer notice at least fifteen days before the beginning of the calendar quarter in which the new price is to be effective. The question is presented under section 18 (c) and (d) as to whether this contract constitutes a contract "bearing a firm price entered into more than 60 days prior to the prescribed date. . . ."

The manufacturer's base period is April 1, to June 24, 1950, so that he computes his materials cost as of the prescribed dates of June 24, 1950 and December 31, 1950.

The contract may be considered as representing a series of quarterly contracts within the meaning of section 18 (c) and (d). As to section 18 (c), the deliveries actually received by the manufacturer during the base period would have been made pursuant to the quarterly contract which became effective April 1, 1950. Inasmuch as this quarterly contract is considered to have been "entered into" on March 15, 1950, more than 60 days prior to the first prescribed date of June 24, 1950, the manufacturer would not use as his materials cost under section 18 (c) the price stated in the contract for the first quarter.

As to section 18 (d), the price stated in the contract for the quarters beginning July 1, 1950, October 1, 1950 and January 1, 1951 may be considered to be an "open" price in view of the seller's reservation of the absolute right to change the price. The price does not, therefore, become firm until (1) such time as the seller gives notice of his exercise of the option to change the price, or (2) the first day after the expiration of the time within which he must give such notice. Therefore, under section 18 (d) the second quarterly contract, beginning July 1, 1950, may be considered to have been "entered into" either on the day on which the seller gave the required notice of the new price or, failing such notice, on June 17, 1950 (the 14th day prior to July 1, 1950). This quarterly contract might then be considered as a contract "entered into" within 60 days prior to the first prescribed date of June 24, 1950 within the meaning of section 18 (d).

Similarly, with respect to the second prescribed date of December 31, 1950, the quarterly contract commencing January 1, 1951 would be considered to have been "entered into" on the day on which the seller either gave the required notice of the new price, or failing such notice, on December 18, 1950 (the 14th day prior to January 1, 1951).

Similar contracts which, however, leave the prices for each quarter "open", shall be construed in the same manner as the above-described contract.

CPR 22, INT. 11—WHO MUST REPORT (SEC. 46 (B))

A manufacturer who does not calculate either his labor cost adjustment or his materials cost adjustment and, instead, uses his base period price as his ceiling price under the regulation, as is permitted by section 3 (a), CPR 22, must nevertheless file Public Form No. 8 as required by section 46 (b). In such case he should supply, in addition to his name and address, the information required by Items 1, 2 and 3, and should indicate on the Form that he has elected to use his base period price.

CPR 22, INT. 12—CORPORATE IDENTITY (SEC. 47)

The separate identity of corporations may not be disregarded under CPR 22. Thus, a subsidiary corporation wholly owned by a manufacturer and acting as exclusive sales agent for the manufacturer is not a manufacturer under CPR 22. The subsidiary, therefore, may not determine its ceiling price under the regulation. Conversely, a manufacturing corporation that distributes all of its products through a wholly owned subsidiary that sells at retail is subject to CPR 22, and is not itself selling at retail within the meaning of section 1. As a further illustration where two manufacturing corporations are wholly owned by a third manufacturing corporation, all three are separate manufacturers under CPR 22. This is the case even if the three corporations are engaged in separate steps in the manufacture of a single finished commodity (assuming that the separate steps constitute manufacturing).

CPR 22, INT. 13—"MANUFACTURER." CONVERTERS, FINISHERS, DYERS, AND THROWSTERS (SEC. 47)

Textile fabric and yarn converters, finishers, dyers, and throwsters (except for sales by them of wool yarn and fabrics as listed in Appendix A, par. (e) (2), and for sales by them at retail) are "manufacturers" within the definition in section 47, CPR 22, under the following conditions:

(a) A converter who sells yarn or finished piece goods which he finishes or which are finished for his account by someone else;

(b) A finisher, dyer, or throwster who sells yarn or finished piece goods which he processes for his own account and risk.

However, a finisher, dyer, or throwster who processes yarn or piece goods which are owned by someone other than himself is not a manufacturer under the definition. (Such a finisher, dyer, or throwster customarily renders an industrial service for the account of, and to the specification of, another person on a "commission" or agreed price per unit basis.)

CPR 22, INT. 14—"NET SALES," SELLING COMMISSIONS NOT DEDUCTIBLE (SEC. 47)

The term "net sales" is defined in section 47, CPR 22, as referring to "gross sales after trade discounts, less returns and allowances" and applies only to allowances made to the purchaser. Selling commissions, being payments to other persons than the purchaser, whether paid to an employee, broker, or other company, are not "trade discounts", "returns", or "allowances". Therefore, in computing net sales a manufacturer may not deduct the amount of such selling commissions paid by him.

CPR 22, INT. 15—"SALE AT RETAIL" (SEC. 47)

A sale to a "commercial, industrial, governmental or institutional user", is not a "sale at retail" as defined in section 47, CPR 22, even though the commodity sold to such user is not to be resold. Thus, a gasoline pump sold to a service station by the manufacturer, or a typewriter or carbon paper sold to a business establishment, is not a sale at retail but constitutes a sale to a commercial user.

CPR 22, INT. 16—APPENDIX A, GENERAL

The exemptions from CPR 22 provided by Appendix A are limited to the specific commodities listed and do not extend to commodities produced or processed in whole or in part from the listed commodities unless otherwise specified in Appendix A. For example, "Leather, tanned and finished" is exempted by par. (o) of Appendix A. This exemption, however, extends only to leather in its form at the end of the tanning and finishing processes. Thus, sales by manufacturers of leather products such as cut soles, counters, welting, box toes, and shoe uppers are not exempted. The only reason that "Footwear, except rubber footwear" is exempted is because it is specifically exempted by par. (p) of Appendix A.

CPR 22, INT. 17—APPENDIX A, SCRAP AND WASTE MATERIALS, BY-PRODUCTS NOT EXEMPTED

The residue or remainder resulting from a manufacturing process does not constitute "scrap and waste materials" as exempted from CPR 22 by Appendix A, par. (b) (4), if it is in fact a by-product of the manufacturing process and sold as such by the manufacturer. The exemption is available only for such materials as are actually considered by the custom of the trade to constitute scrap or waste and are sold as such by the manufacturer.

[Ceiling Price Regulation 24, Amendment 2]

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), Economic Stabilization Agency General Order 2 (16 F. R. 738), Delegation of Authority by the Secretary of Agriculture to the Economic Stabilization Agency with respect to the Allocation of Meat (16 F. R. 1272) and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order 5 (16 F. R. 1273) this Amendment 2 to Ceiling Price Regulation 24 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

The accompanying amendment to CPR 24 makes several substantive changes as well as certain corrections and clarifications of a minor nature. The amendment does the following: Allows for the sale of retail cuts under certain limitations; advances the effective date for sales of some fabricated and boneless beef cuts; provides a dollars-and-cents ceiling price for imported cured boneless processing beef; clarifies the status of sales of other imported beef; amends the records provision to allow for customary industry practices; modifies the variety meat schedule of prices; clarifies the situation where a wholesaler also qualifies as either a combination distributor or as a hotel supply house or as both; redefines combination distributor; clarifies the meaning of fresh meat carload freight rate; corrects the definition of boneless beef round; adds prices to the boneless beef schedule and adds a definition for boneless beef shanks; and makes certain other minor corrections.

(1) This amendment allows sales, under certain conditions, of retail cuts to retailers who have customarily bought beef in this form primarily because they did not have facilities for cutting the meat.

(2) To permit sellers who have prepared prior to May 7, 1951, fabricated beef cuts which have not been graded or have not been prepared in accordance with specifications and ungraded boneless beef cuts an additional period of time within which to dispose of such cuts, this amendment provides that such sellers may sell and deliver such beef cuts through May 30, 1951, at the prices established by the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

(3) Since early 1951, a substantial quantity of cured Mexican boneless beef has been imported into this country for processing, the first imports arriving in the latter part of February 1951. This amendment provides a ceiling price for this product, whether imported from Mexico or other foreign countries. The price established is f.o.b. point of entry to provide a normal distributive pattern. This price is established at a level slightly below the domestic price for boneless processing beef because the curing diminishes its value for processing.

(4) Some confusion has arisen concerning ceiling prices for sales of imported beef. To dispel this confusion, this amendment specifically provides that the ceiling prices for sales of imported beef (except cured boneless processing beef) shall be the same as the domestic ceiling prices for similar products.

(5) This amendment modifies the time limitation on forwarding invoices to the buyer in order not to disrupt customary practices of the industry.

(6) The requirement of separately stating on each invoice sex identification as to stag or bull has been modified to require such identification only in the case of a sale of bull meat.

(7) To promote an equitable distribution of variety meats, this amendment allows a zone differential for these items. Ceiling prices have been provided for kosher cheek meat, unscalded lips, tails, and three types of tripe, and the ceiling price formerly provided for kosher kidneys has been eliminated.

(8) Under Ceiling Price Regulation 24 certain establishments may qualify as both a combination distributor or hotel supply house and as a wholesaler. It was not the intention of the regulation to permit an establishment to obtain the wholesaler addition and the combination distributor or hotel supply house addition. Accordingly, the regulation is amended to require such establishments to elect whether they shall be in one category or the other.

(9) The definition of combination distributor was not intended to allow a packer branch house to add the combination distributor's addition unless its business is similar to that of a hotel supply house. This amendment therefore provides that a branch house will be able to take such an addition only if 70 percent of its sales during 1950 were to purveyors of meals.

(10) There have been established in certain areas of the country more than one fresh meat carload freight rate. In order to make the freight differential uniform throughout the various zones of the country and to clarify the meaning of the regulation, the term "fresh meat carload freight rate" has been redefined. Where there is a different rate for hung carcasses, the rate will be the average of the hung carcass carload rate and the other fresh meat carload rate, except in zone 3. In zone 3, in areas where different fresh meat rates prevail, the rate will be the fresh meat carload rate for other than hung carcasses in order to maintain historical price relationships within that zone.

(11) It was intended that boneless beef rounds be sold with the shank off. The definition of this cut is corrected accordingly.

CONCLUSION

In formulating this amendment the Director of Price Stabilization has consulted with industry representatives as far as practicable and has given full consideration to their recommendations. In his judgment the provisions of this amendment are generally fair and equitable and necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

So far as practicable the Director of Price Stabilization gave due consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objective of the Defense Production Act of 1950; to prices prevailing during the period from May 24, 1950, to June 24, 1950, inclusive; and to relevant factors of general applicability.

AMENDATORY PROVISIONS

Ceiling Price Regulation 24 is amended in the following respects:

1. a. Section 3 is amended by adding thereto immediately after section 3 (g) the following paragraph:

(h) Prefabricated retail cuts. If you are not prohibited by section 11 (b) of this regulation from selling prefabricated retail cuts to a retail selling establishment, your ceiling price for sales of such cuts to such an establishment shall be 80 percent of the retail ceiling price (Group 1 and 2 stores as established by Ceiling Price Regulation 25) for the corresponding grade and type of retail beef cut applicable in the retail zone area in which the buyer's store is located.

b. Section 11 (b) is amended by adding thereto immediately before section 12 the following sentence: "Moreover, you shall not sell any prefabricated retail cut to a retail selling establishment unless (1) you have customarily sold retail cuts to such establishment, (2) the retailer requests you in writing to continue to sell him prefabricated retail cuts, and (3) you do not sell that retailer any of the beef products listed in Appendix 2."

c. Appendix 7 is amended by adding thereto immediately before Appendix 8 the following paragraph:

(d) Prefabricated retail cut means a retail beef cut as defined in Ceiling Price Regulation 25. The grade mark shall not be removed except when such removal cannot be avoided in preparing the cut in accordance with the specifications provided for such cut in Ceiling Price Regulation 25.

2. a. Section 3 is amended by adding thereto, immediately prior to section 4, the following paragraph:

(i) Boneless beef cuts and fabricated beef cuts. If you have prepared an ungraded fabricated beef cut or ungraded boneless beef cut prior to May 7, 1951, you may sell and deliver such cuts on or before May 30, 1951. Similarly if you have prepared a fabricated beef cut prior to May 7, 1951, and this cut does not meet the specifications provided in Appendix 4, you may sell and deliver such cuts on or before May 30, 1951. Your ceiling price for such ungraded or unspecified cuts sold and delivered prior to May 31, 1951, shall be your ceiling price established by the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

b. Section 11 (b) is amended by inserting after the words "section 4" therein the phrase "and, until May 31, 1951, except as is provided in Section 3 (i)".

3. a. Section 4 (b) is deleted and the following substituted therefor:

(b) Cured beef items. (1) If you sold cured, corned, cooked, smoked, barbecued or dried beef items during 1950, your ceiling prices are established by the General Ceiling Price Regulation. You must, however, file the report required under section 10 (b) of this regulation. Except as is provided in section 4 (b) (2) of this regulation, if you did not sell these items during 1950, see section 4 (d).

(2) Your ceiling price for cured boneless processing beef imported into continental United States shall be $53.00 per cwt. for bull and $50.00 per cwt. for other than bull, both f. o. b. point of entry. Such beef may not contain more than 5 percent salt or other curing agent nor more than 10 percent fat by chemical analysis. You may not add any of the additions in Article IV.

b. Section 4 (d) is amended by deleting therefrom "4 (b)" and substituting therefor "4 (b) 1".

c. Section 10 (b) is amended by deleting therefrom the words "section 4 (b) or (c)" and substituting therefor, the words "section 4 (b) (1) or section 4 (c)."

4. Section 7 is deleted and the following substituted therefor:

SEC. 7. Import and export sales—(a) Ceiling prices for sales of imported beef. Except as provided in section 4 (b) (2), your ceiling price for any imported beef product shall be the same as your domestic ceiling price for that product.

(b) Ceiling prices and records for export sales—(1) Ceiling prices. The ceiling prices at which you may export any beef product shall be your domestic ceiling price for the beef product f. o. b. your place of business (in this instance your distribution point shall be your place of business) plus any of the following costs actually incurred incidental to exportation of the product:

(i) Cost of transportation to the dock.
(ii) Export packing and freezing costs.
(iii) Demurrage or warehouse charges.
(iv) Ocean freight costs.
(v) Insurance costs.
(vi) Consular fees.
(vii) Freight forwarders' fees.

You may not however add any of the additions specified in Article IV of this regulation except the additions set forth in section 40 and section 42, where applicable.

(2) Records. You shall make and preserve the records required in section 9 (a) of this regulation and in addition to the information required to be shown in paragraphs (1) through (4) therein, you shall also separately list any of the actual costs incurred in paragraph (b) (1) (i) through (vii) of this section. You shall furnish the buyer a written statement showing all this information.

5. Section 9 (b) (2) is deleted and the following substituted therefor:

(2) You shall send with each shipment, other than a C. O. D. shipment, a copy of the written statement referred to in paragraph (a) of this section: Provided, however, That the portion of the statement with respect to the price charged, received or paid therefor, may be omitted but (i) such portion must be mailed to the buyer within 24 hours after the shipment left your plant or, (ii) if it has been your customary practice to send invoices weekly, such portion must be mailed to the buyer during the week of the shipment.

6. Section 9 (a) (3) is deleted and the following substituted therefor:

(3) The descriptive name or type of cut or item, the grade (if bull so designate), and the quantity and weight of all beef products sold, transferred, delivered or purchased, received or acquired.

7. (a). Section 26 is deleted and the following substituted therefor:

SEC. 26. Schedule VII—Beef variety meats and by-products.[1]

[All prices are on a dollars per cwt. basis. The price for any fraction of a cwt. shall be reduced proportionately. You may not sell the additions set forth in sections 43, 44, 47, and 48 of this regulation.]

You shall make your election by filing with your Regional Office of the Office of Price Stabilization the statement required by section 42 of this regulation if you elect to be a wholesaler, or the statement required by section 21 (a) if you elect to be a hotel supply house or the statement required by section 21 (b) if you elect to be a combination distributor. This election shall be made on or before May 30, 1951. You may change your classification, once after December 31, 1951, and once after June 30, 1952, and once after each successive December

[1] The ceiling prices for other beef variety meats and by-products shall be those established by the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

31 and June 30 thereafter. You shall notify your Regional Office of such change of classification by a statement in writing. The change in your classification shall be effective five days after you have mailed or delivered such a statement to the Regional Office.

9. Section 50 (g) is deleted and the following substituted therefor:

(g) Combination distributor means any establishment (1) Which is not affiliated with a packing or slaughtering plant, packer's branch house, wholesaler's or other non-retail meat selling establishment, and which sold or delivered to purveyors of meals during 1950 not less than 25 percent of the total volume by weight of all meats, including sausage, variety meats and edible by-products, sold or delivered by it, excluding sales to defense procurement agencies; or

(2) Which is not affiliated with a packing or slaughtering plant, packer's branch house, wholesaler's or other non-retail meat selling establishment to which it is physically attached; and, which sold or delivered to purveyors of meals during 1950 not less than 70 percent of the total volume by weight of all meats including sausage, variety meats and edible by-products, sold or delivered by it, excluding sales to defense procurement agencies.

10. Section 50 (i) is deleted and the following substituted therefor:

(i) Fresh meat carload freight rate or carload freight rate means the charge solely for transportation of a carload of fresh beef (exclusive of any charge for services, e. g., icing), including the federal transportation tax thereon. If there is a charge for carloads of fresh meat hung carcasses and for carloads of other fresh meat, then fresh meat carload freight rate or carload freight rate shall mean the simple average of those two charges, exclusive of any charge for services, and including the federal transportation tax thereon, except where the distribution point is in Zone 3. Where the distribution point is in Zone 3, and the two charges pertain, fresh meat carload freight rate or carload freight rate shall mean the charge for carloads of fresh meat other than hung carcasses, exclusive of any charge for services, and including the federal transportation tax thereon.

11. Appendix 3 (a) (10) is amended as follows: Insert the words "and shank" between the words "rump" and "and all bones".

12. a. Appendix 3 (a) is amended by adding, immediately following Appendix 3 (a) (16), the following subparagraph:

(17) Boneless beef shank (shank meat) means the shank removed as specified in Appendix 4 (a) (1) with all bones removed. It shall be free from visible bruises and blood clots.

b. Section 22 is amended by adding within the table captioned Schedule III immediately below the line beginning "16. Sterilized trimmings" a new line, and prices for columns (2) through (8) consecutively, reading as follows:

17. Shank meat	55.30	56.00	56.70	57.40	58.10	58.80	59.50

13. Section 41 (b) is amended by deleting the word "made" and substituting therefor the word "make".

14. Section 48 is amended by deleting the word "Forequarter" and substituting therefor the words "Forequarter and Triangle".

[Ceiling Price Regulation 25, Amendment 1]

CPR 25—CEILING PRICES OF BEEF ITEMS SOLD AT RETAIL

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), Delegation of Authority by the Secretary of Agriculture to the Economic Stabilization Agency with Respect to the Allocation of Meat (16 F. R. 1272) and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order 5 (16 F. R. 1273), this Amendment 1 to Ceiling Price Regulation 25 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

This amendment makes a change in the price of certain primal cuts sold by retailers who have operated locker plants, adds new definitions of retail beef cuts, omits certain previously defined retail beef cuts and beef variety meats and beef by-products, establishes a ceiling price for tongues, changes the ceiling prices for chuck arm and chuck blade steaks and pot roasts, English cuts, bone-in rumps and tails, and corrects certain errors appearing in Ceiling Price Regulation 25.

(1) It was intended by Ceiling Price Regulation 25 to provide locker plants with the full wholesaler addition of $2.25 per cwt. on sales of certain primal cuts to consumers. Due to an error, that regulation provided these retailers with only $1.25 per cwt. of the wholesaler addition. This amendment corrects the error.

(2) This amendment defines those retail beef cuts which were not defined by, but for which ceiling prices were provided by, Ceiling Price Regulation 25 and omits from the definition of retail beef cuts and beef variety meats and beef by-products those items which were defined by, but for which ceiling prices were not provided by, Ceiling Price Regulation 25.

(3) At the time Ceiling Price Regulation 25 was issued, it was not possible to provide a ceiling price for tongues without delaying the issuance of the regulation. Since that time the ceiling prices for tongues have been calculated and they are established in this amendment.

(4) In establishing retail beef ceiling prices an attempt was made to maintain certain historical price relationships among the various retail beef cuts. In specific instances, normal historical relationships have changed in view of marked shifts in consumer purchases from the more expensive to the less expensive cuts. This shift in consumers' preference has exerted upward pressures on historically inexpensive cuts and downward pressures on historically expensive cuts. To bring these retail cuts in line with existing new relationships, price adjustments were found to be necessary in the case of arm chuck, blade chuck, English cut and rump, bone-in. Moreover, it seemed desirable to provide a single price for arm chuck and blade chuck since distinctions between the two were not clearly discernible. For purposes of enforcement, this would obviously provide additional advantages and is necessary to prevent evasions of Ceiling Price Regulation 25.

In formulating this amendment, the Director of Price Stabilization has consulted with industry representatives to the extent practicable and has given full consideration to their recommendations. In his judgment the provisions of this amendment are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

So far as practicable, the Director of Price Stabilization gave due consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the Defense Production Act of 1950; to prices prevailing during the period from May 24, 1950 to June 24, 1950, inclusive; and to relevant factors of general applicability.

The deckle shall be removed at the natural seam letting the thick layer of fat attached to the deckle and exposing the lean meat surface lying directly below. This lean surface shall be free of all fat except minute flakes of fat that adhere closely to the lean after the deckle has been removed. The hard fat along the sternum edge (the area on the bone side of the brisket which is adjacent to and directly under the sternum bone) of the boneless brisket shall be trimmed level with the bared surface of the brisket and to within ½ inch of the lean lying between this hard fat and the border of skin surface fat. 	Choice	Good	Com'l.	Utility	Choice	Good	Com'l.	Utility	Choice	Good	Com'l.	Utility
Chuck arm (bone in) steak	$0.12	$0.12	$0.12	$0.12	$0.12	$0.12	$0.12	$0.12	$0.11	$0.11	$0.11	$0.12

CHANGE IN EFFECTIVE DATE

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), Delegation of Authority by the Secretary of Agriculture to the Economic Stabilization Agency with Respect to the Allocation of Meat, January 26, 1951, 16 F. R. 1272, and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 5, February 8, 1951, (16 F. R. 1273), this Amendment 1 to Ceiling Price Regulation 26 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

Pending recalculation of the ceiling prices provided for kosher beef items and the issuance of a revised Ceiling Price Regulation 26 in the near future, the mandatory effective date of that regulation is deferred for a period of one week. In the interim, kosher retailers may, if they desire, adopt all of the provisions of that regulation.

AMENDATORY PROVISIONS

Ceiling Price Regulation 26 is amended as follows:

1. The "Effective date" paragraph appearing immediately after section 40 is deleted and the following paragraph is substituted therefor:

Effective date. This regulation shall become effective on May 21, 1951. You may, however, adopt all of the provisions of this regulation at any time before the effective date.

2. Sections 30, 31 and 32 are amended by substituting the phrase "effective May 21, 1951" for the phrase "effective May 14, 1951" wherever that phrase appears therein.

[Ceiling Price Regulation 34]

CPR 34—SERVICES

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738) this Ceiling Price Regulation is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

The inflationary pressures incident to the Korean situation and the stepped up rearmament program brought on price increases throughout the economy during the latter part of 1950, which necessitated prompt action in direct price controls. Accordingly, on January 26, 1951, the Office of Price Stabilization issued the General Ceiling Price Regulation. This regulation, with certain exceptions, fixed the ceiling prices of all commodities and all services at the highest price charged by the seller during the base period, December 19, 1950, to January 25, 1951, inclusive. At the time of the issuance of the General Ceiling Price Regulation, it was understood that it did not adequately meet the specific needs of numerous suppliers of services and that it was to be replaced with respect to that field as soon as practicable. A new regulation, Ceiling Price Regulation No. 34 Services is issued separately covering the field of services, and, to the extent of its applicability, supersedes the General Ceiling Price Regulation in the services field. In the main, the fundamental provisions of the General Ceiling Price Regulation, including the base period of December 19, 1950, to January 25, 1951, for the determination of ceiling prices, have been retained in this new regulation. The considerations which support the General Ceiling Price Regulation are equally applicable to this Ceiling Price Regulation No. 34.

Services rendered in trade, commerce and industry, services integrated with such services as well as personal services, all vitally affect the national economy. The administrative problems involved in regulating the ceiling prices to be charged for such services are so much different from those involved in regulating the ceiling prices for commodities, that it has been determined to issue a separate ceiling price regulation for such services. The new regulation removes from the coverage of the General Ceiling Price Regulation all services (except transportation services of contract carriers and certain industrial services in connection with the jobbing shop operations in metals and metal products and the plating of plastics or other nonmetallic materials, except the repair and maintenance of automotive and farm equipment) and brings under the single Services Regulation all such services subject to price control with the exception of defense services exempted by Supplementary Regulation 1 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation, services exempted by Supplementary Regulation 15 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation, and those services which now or hereafter may be covered in other specific price regulations.

Many service functions rendered for the same general use and purpose vary with the specific task. This is particularly true in the repair trades. While certain of these trades permit a standardization of price because of the normal pattern of the requirements of the purchaser, other types of repair trades, because of the varying nature of the repair demands of the purchaser, do not permit a pre-determined price. The new regulation provides a method for determination of prices based upon the highest price charged in the base period for the same service. This provision permits the supplier of a service to determine his price in accordance with his own pricing method, but limits the elements which enter into the determination of the prices to their highest base period level. Under the regulation the highest price charged by the seller during the base period for any service customarily rendered but not in fact supplied during the base period is deemed to be that price which would have been charged upon a rate or pricing method regularly used for determining the price for such service during the base period, December 19, 1950, to January 25, 1951, inclusive.

Many services are seasonal in nature or subject to seasonal variation in price. In some cases the services are not performed during the base period. In other cases a seasonal variation in price occurs and it would be manifestly unfair to restrict the supplier of the service to his base period price. A provision has been added to the new regulation which provides for the determination of ceiling prices for seasonal services or services subject to seasonal variation in price. The provision limits the seller to the highest price charged in the last corresponding season, but permits an increase based upon the rise in the cost of living from that season.

The adjustment provisions of this regulation, with limitations, permit the filing of an application for adjustment by a seller of a service or services where substantial financial hardship exists. Service establishments are in the main small business establishments without substantial reserves of capital. Labor is the most important factor of cost and either direct labor wage increases or deterioration of labor supply can create financial hardship threatening the continuance of the establishment's existence.

In like fashion, the regulation is tailored to meet the various problems of pricing which arise in the services field that are foreign to the commodities field. The regulation is further designed by introduction of filing provisions to permit more effective enforcement in the services field and to provide a source for price data for the development of individual supplementary service regulations in particular service trades.

The foregoing modifications do not change in any way the fundamental economic policy which is effectuated by the General Ceiling Price Regulation. The base period of December 19, 1950, to January 25, 1951, as the appropriate date for the determination of ceiling prices, is maintained throughout this regulation. Within the general framework of the General Ceiling Price Regulation, however, flexibility is achieved which adapts that framework to the individual characteristics of the services field.

While the innumerable and diverse services cutting across a complex of different industries and trades has rendered impracticable the establishing of, and consultation with, formal service committees during the preparation of this regulation, nevertheless, the Director of Price Stabilization, wherever feasible, has consulted with numerous representatives from various services fields and given consideration to their recommendations. In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization, the provisions of this regulation are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purpose of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

So far as practicable, the Director of Price Stabilization has given consideration to the National effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objectives of the Defense Production Act of 1950, including prices prevailing during the period from May 24, 1950, to June 24, 1950, and to relevant factors of general applicability.

SECTION 1. What this regulation does. This regulation removes most services from the coverage of the General Ceiling Price Regulation (GCPR) and brings them under this regulation. This regulation in general establishes the ceiling price of most services at the levels prevailing in the period December 19, 1950, to January 25, 1951, inclusive.

SEC. 2. Services covered. This regulation covers all services except:

(a) Services exempted in the GCPR, as amended;

(b) Defense services exempted by Supplementary Regulation 1 to the GCPR, as amended;

(c) Services exempted by Supplementary Regulation 15 to the GCPR, as amended;

(d) Services covered by any specific price regulation now or hereafter issued by the OPS;

(e) The following services, which remain under the GCPR:

(1) Transportation services of contract carriers;

(2) The following industrial services (except services rendered in connection with the repair or maintenance of automotive or farm equipment) when performed on material or products owned by another:

(i) All jobbing shop operations customarily performed in the fabrication, conversion, repair or maintenance of metals or metal products. These operations include abrading, adjusting, assembling, cutting, forming, grinding, machining, shaping and welding or otherwise joining.

(ii) All jobbing shop operations customarily performed in the treatment, coating, or finishing of metals or metal products. These operations include annealing, anodizing, bonderizing, blasting, carbonizing, carburizing, case-hardening, cleaning, coronizing, deoxidizing, enameling, galvanizing, heat treating, heresiting, japannizing, laquering, lead coating, metallizing, nitriding, normalizing, painting, pickling, phosphate coating, plating, polishing, sheradizing, shot peening, tempering and tinning.

(iii) Plating on plastics and other nonmetallic materials.

SEC. 3. Prohibitions. (a) On and after May 16, 1951, regardless of any contract or other obligation:

(1) You may not sell any service covered by this regulation at a price higher than your ceiling price.

(2) No person in the course of trade or business may buy any service covered by this regulation at a price higher than the ceiling price.

Of course, you may charge lower prices than your ceiling prices at any time.

(b) Once you have reported your ceiling price or a proposed ceiling price for a service as required by this regulation, you may not thereafter redetermine it. A purely arithmetical error may, however, be corrected, but the correction must be reported to the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C.

SEC. 4. Prices previously established. (a) This regulation supersedes the GCPR insofar as the GCPR dealt with services now covered by this regulation.

(b) Since this regulation keeps certain of the basic pricing provisions of the GCPR, many of your ceiling prices under this regulation will be the same as those you properly established under the GCPR.

(c) In addition all prices established under section 6 or section 7 of the GCPR remain in effect under this regulation.

SEC. 5. General pricing provisions. (a) In determining your ceiling price (which you must report in the manner provided by section 18 of this regulation), use the first of the following provisions which applies to you. Your ceiling price shall be:

(1) The highest price at which you supplied the same service during the "base period" (December 19, 1950, to January 25, 1951, inclusive) to a purchaser of the same class. (Be sure to read the definition of "purchaser of the same class" in section 27 (a) (11) of this regulation.) If, however, in the base period you did not have a flat price for the service but did have a rate or a pricing method to determine your price, you may continue to use your highest base period rate or pricing method to determine your ceiling price for the same service to a purchaser of the same class.

(2) If you did not actually deliver the service in the base period, then the highest price at which you offered in writing to supply the same service for delivery in the base period to a purchaser of the same class. If, however, in the base period you did not offer in writing to supply that service to that class of purchaser upon the basis of a flat price but did have a rate or pricing method upon the basis of which you could have supplied that service to that class of purchaser, then the price resulting from the application of your highest base period rate or pricing method which would, by your usual trade practice, have been used by you had you supplied the service in the base period.

(3) The ceiling price of your closest competitor for the same service to a purchaser of the same class, if you did not actually supply it or offer it for supply in the base period to any purchaser. However, you may not take your closest competitor's ceiling price if such price is based on his offering price. The term "ceiling price" as used in this paragraph and in sections 6 and 7 of this regulation also includes a ceiling rate or pricing method. If you are a new seller first making sales after the effective date of this regulation, or a seller of a new service first sold by you after the effective date of this regulation, you will comply with section 6 of this regulation.

(b) In the use of a rate or a pricing method you may not charge more for each factor of the rate or pricing method than the highest price you charged for such factor in the base period. For example, you operate an automobile repair shop and you do not have a fixed flat price for body repair work but make a labor charge of $3 per hour plus the price of any parts supplied. You may not now charge more than $3 per hour for your labor charge even though you are paying your mechanics more than you paid them in the base period. Furthermore, you may not now charge more than the highest price you charged for the parts in the base period unless a commodity regulation establishes a new ceiling price for such parts in which case you may charge for such parts the ceiling price so established.

SEC. 6. Pricing for new services and sellers. (a) If you are a new seller or are selling a new service which cannot be priced under section 5 of this regulation, your selling price is the same as the ceiling price of your closest competitor for the same service to a purchaser of the same class.

(b) Within 10 days after determining the ceiling price under this section you must report the price in writing to the appropriate OPS district office explaining how the price was computed. You must also comply with the applicable provisions of section 18 of this regulation.

SEC. 7. Services which cannot be priced under section 5 or 6 of this regulation. (a) If you cannot determine a ceiling price under section 5 or section 6 of this regulation, you must file an application with the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., for approval of a ceiling price in line with the level of ceiling prices otherwise established by this regulation, and in the case of a commodity rental or a manufacturing or processing service, a ceiling price consistent with the level of ceiling prices established for the sale of the commodity by the applicable ceiling price regulation. The application shall contain a description of the service, anticipated direct labor and materal costs, and the proposed ceiling price. It shall also contain a full explanation of the reasons why you cannot price this service under section 5 or 6 of this regulation. If you supplied any other service in the base period, submit, in addition, a description of the most comparable service showing your present direct labor and material costs for it and your present ceiling price.

(b) You may not sell the service for which a ceiling price is requested under this section until that price has been approved by OPS, but the proposed price shall be considered approved 20 days after mailing the application (or all additional information which may have been requested), unless, within that time, OPS notifies you that your proposed price has been disapproved. You must also furnish any additional information which OPS may require and comply with the provisions of section 18 of this regulation.

SEC. 8. Pricing of seasonal services—(a) Services supplied in the base period but subject to seasonal variations in price. If you have had a regularly established seasonal variation in price and delivered the service in the base period, your ceiling price for your other seasonal periods shall reflect your customary dollar differential between that season and the base period.

(b) Seasonal services not supplied in the base period. If the service was not supplied in the base period either by you, or by a competitor in the same general trading area serving the same kind of purchaser, and if you supplied the service regularly during one or more seasons of the period January 26, 1950, to December 18, 1950, inclusive, your ceiling price shall be the price you charged in the last season prior to the base period: Provided, nevertheless, That if you are one of the sellers referred to in paragraph (c) of this section you may add to that price the increase permitted in such paragraph (c). If you customarily maintain other seasonal variations in price you shall reflect your customary dollar differential in price between those seasons and the last season in which the service was supplied.

(c) You may under paragraph (b) of this section use the following table to compute your percentage increase if you are a seller who on each day of the last season prior to the base period employed not more than seven individuals. If, however, during the last season prior to the base period, you employed eight or more individuals in any one day and you can show in your report to the Director of Price Stabilization that your direct costs have now increased above your costs in the last season prior to the base period, you may under paragraph (b) of this section add no more than these direct costs to that price which you charged in the last season prior to the base period unless these direct costs exceed the table percentage applicable to you, in which case you will then use that table percentage.

(1) The table percentage applicable to you under this paragraph and paragraph (b) of this section shall be as follows for the applicable season:

8 percent Jan. 26, 1950, through April 30, 1950.
7 percent May 1, 1950, through June 30, 1950.
6 percent July 1, 1950, through July 31, 1950.
5 percent Aug. 1, 1950, through Aug. 31, 1950.
4 percent Sept. 1, 1950, through Sept. 30, 1950.
3 percent Oct. 1, 1950, through Nov. 30, 1950.
2 percent Dec. 1, 1950, through Dec. 18, 1950.

In selecting the appropriate percentage increase apply the percentage for the date in which the highest price for the season was first announced by you in writing or, if there was no such announcement, the first date on which the service was sold by you at the highest price in the season.

(d) This section applies only if the season during which the variation in price was in effect regularly consisted of at least 14 consecutive days.

(e) Reports. Within 10 days after establishing or determining your ceiling price, or any change therein, under this section, you must report the price in writing to the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., explaining how the price was computed. You must also comply with the applicable provisions of section 18 of this regulation.

SEC. 9. Pricing changes. OPS may at any time disapprove or revise ceiling prices proposed or established under this regulation or under section 7 of GCPR so as to bring them into line with the level of ceiling prices otherwise established by this regulation. You may not redetermine your ceiling price after it has been determined under this regulation unless it is changed by OPS, in which case the changed price shall be your ceiling price.

SEC. 10. Central pricing. OPS may when it deems it consistent with the purposes of this regulation establish uniform prices for sellers owning or operating more than one service establishment and may for this purpose require sellers to furnish necessary information.

SEC. 11. Commodities included in services. Your ceiling price for a service under this regulation includes any commodity furnished with the service. If your ceiling price includes a separately stated charge for the commodity, your ceiling price for the service shall be increased or decreased, as the case may be, by the difference between your separately stated charge for the commodity under this regulation and the ceiling price fixed by the applicable commodity regulation.

SEC. 12. Special pricing provisions—(a) Application of general pricing increase to long-term contracts, etc. If in the base period you had in effect an increase in your prices for a service to your classes of purchasers generally, and you actually charged the increased price to the classes of purchasers whom you supplied in the base period, but you did not supply the service at the increased price in the base period to a particular class of purchaser because either:

(1) You did not supply the service to that class of purchaser in the base period after the price increase, or

(2) You supplied the service to that class of purchaser in the base period after the price increase at a lower price because you were bound to do so under a contract made before the price increase, then your ceiling price to that particular class of purchaser shall be:

(i) Your increased offering price to that class of purchaser for supply during the base period, or

(ii) If you had no such increased offering price, then the highest price at which you supplied the service to a purchaser of a different class during the base period adjusted to reflect the customary differential in price between the two classes of purchasers.

If, however, in the base period you announced in writing an increase in your prices for a service to your classes of purchasers generally, but you did not deliver the service at the increased price to any of the purchasers whom you supplied in the base period because you were bound under contracts made before the announcement in writing of that price increase, and you did enter into new contracts for future delivery of the service at the increased price prior to December 19, 1950, then at the expiration of each old contract you may institute the announced price increase, adjusted to reflect the customary differential in prices among your classes of purchasers.

(b) Percentage commissions on commodity sales or purchases. If you are a commission seller, buyer, broker, or auctioneer, and in the base period you used a percentage rate to determine your commission in connection with the sale or purchase of a commodity, you may now apply your highest base period percentage rate to the current authorized price of a commodity under the applicable commodity ceiling price regulation, or to your sale or purchase price of the commodity if it is lower, to determine your commission for the purchase or sale of the same commodity to a purchaser of the same class.

(c) Individual negotiated prices. If you customarily made a practice of charging different purchasers different prices without regard to standards, such as quantity purchased and nature of business (wholesaler, retailer, etc.) each such customer is a separate class of purchaser.

(d) New purchasers. Your price to a new purchaser is your established ceiling price to the class in which the new purchaser falls. However, if you followed the practice of maintaining individually negotiated prices, the ceiling price to a new purchaser is the arithmetic average of your base period ceiling prices to purchasers of the same class for the same service. But if within one month prior or one month subsequent to the acceptance of a new purchaser you discontinue supplying an old purchaser to whom you sold during the base period at a price below your average price to purchasers of the same class, your ceiling price to the new purchaser shall be the same as the ceiling price you charged the purchaser you discontinued.

(e) Refusing to supply lower priced services. (1) A seller may discontinue selling his services. If, however, he discontinues a service that he offered in the base period or since, and sells or offers to sell in its place a higher priced service which will achieve the same general purposes as the service he discontinues, he is evading the Defense Production Act of 1950, and is violating this regulation, unless it appears that one or more of the following conditions exists:

(i) That specialized equipment or supplies requisite to a continuance of the particular service are not available; or

(ii) That the continuance of the particular service would be in violation of or would be rendered impracticable by a governmental order or regulation, or that it would be contrary to governmentally established standards or policies; or

(iii) That discontinuance of the particular service will enable the seller to maintain other services more necessary to the community directly concerned; or

(iv) That other suppliers in the community are able and willing to supply the requested service or a similar service in requisite amount and at prices not exceeding the ceiling price of the particular seller.

(2) A seller refusing to supply a service must, unless otherwise permitted to do so by a general permissive order, certify by registered mail, for which a return receipt has been requested, to the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., the existence of one or more of the conditions stated in this paragraph. Unless sufficient facts are given to support the certification, the request will be denied, without prejudice to an opportunity to the seller to furnish additional evidence.

(3) Effective date on which a service may be discontinued under this paragraph: Unless the Director of Price Stabilization or his authorized representative shall, by notice mailed to the seller within thirty days from the date of the receipt of the certified statement, disapprove the request, the seller may discontinue the service.

(4) Definition: As used in this paragraph, the term "service" means one of the types, forms, grades, or quantities offered for sale in the base period, or since, the description of which is required in your statement under section 18 of this regulation.

(f) Cost plus contracts. (1) If you customarily supplied service to a class of purchaser by the use of a cost plus contract, you may continue to use such a contract, limited to your highest base period fee or percentage, but in figuring your costs you must limit each element of cost to the highest rate or charge you made to the same class of purchaser in the base period.

(2) Within 10 days after determining the ceiling price under this section you must report the price in writing to the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., explaining how the price was computed and stating your base period charges and method of computation for the supplying of the same service to a purchaser of the same class.

(g) Flat rate manuals or catalogues. If during the base period you used a flat rate manual to determine your price, you must use the same manual now, and you may not increase the hourly rate you charged in the base period. If you used a catalogue to determine your prices for parts in the base period you may continue to do so now. However, if a specific ceiling price is set by OPS for any item in the catalogue, you may not charge more than such specific ceiling price. You may not use a new edition of such flat rate manual or catalogue unless its use has been approved by the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C.

SEC. 13. Transfer of business; moving of business; chains—(a) Transfer. If you acquire a previously established business after May 16, 1951, and you carry on such business in an establishment separate from an establishment previously owned or operated by you, your ceiling prices shall be the same as those to which your transferor would have been subject if no such transfer had taken place, and your obligation to keep records sufficient to verify such prices shall be the same. You must further prepare and preserve (if your transferor has not already done so) and keep up to date the statement required under section 18 of this regulation. Your transferor shall preserve and turn over to you all records of transactions prior to the transfer which are necessary to enable you to comply with the records provisions of this regulation.

(b) Moving. If you sell services at retail and move the business out of your trading area after May 16, 1951, you must apply to OPS for establishment of your ceiling prices for that unit under section 7 of this regulation except that if you close a selling unit and open another one in the same trading area, your ceiling prices for the new unit shall be the same as those of the unit you closed.

SEC. 14. Taxes. If a tax is imposed on a service covered by this regulation and the tax law does not forbid you to pass the tax on to your customers, you may add the tax to your ceiling price in accordance with the following provisions: If the tax becomes effective after January 25, 1951, you may add the tax to your ceiling price if you separately state it. If the tax was in effect in the base period and you were not then supplying the service, you may add the tax to your ceiling price as established under this regulation if such price does not already reflect the tax, if you separately state it. If the tax was in effect in the base period and you were then supplying the service and passing on the tax, you may continue to do so; if you separately stated the tax then, you must do so now. If in the base period you did not pass the tax on to your customers, you may not do so now. ("Tax" as used in this section also includes a tax increase.)

SEC. 15. Additional charges. You may not make a higher charge for expediting, packaging, or other incidents of a service than you made in the base period to a purchaser of the same class, nor may you now make any charge for any incident of a service if it was not your practice to do so in the base period, unless you are authorized to do so by the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C. You may not require a purchaser to pay a larger proportion of transportation costs incurred in the supply of any service than you required a purchaser of the same class to pay during the base period for the same service. Unless authorized by the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., you may not require a deposit for any reason or make an extra charge for insurance, if you did not do so in the base period, nor may you now increase any such deposit or insurance charge made in the base period.

SEC. 16. Customary price differentials. Your ceiling prices, when determined, shall reflect your customary price differentials, including discounts, allowances, premiums and extras, based upon differences in classes or location of purchasers, or in terms and conditions of sale or delivery.

SEC. 17. Sales slips; receipts. If you have customarily given a purchaser a sales slip or receipt, you must continue to do so. Upon request by a purchaser, you must regardless of your previous custom, give the purchaser a sales slip or receipt. Such sales slip or receipt must show your name and address, the date, the description and quantity of each service sold, the price charged for each such service, and the price charged for any parts or commodities furnished with the service.

SEC. 18. Records; filings of statements; posting. You must comply with the following provisions for keeping price records and for filing statements of your ceiling prices:

(a) Records. Preserve for examination by OPS all records regarding your prices, rates, or pricing methods for services supplied or offered for supply during the base period (or such other period as is specified as your base period) and thereafter.

(b) Filings of statements. (1) Prepare and keep for examination by any person during ordinary business hours, a statement of your ceiling prices, rates, or pricing methods for purchasers of each class together with an adequate description of each such service.

(i) If you have in any case taken the ceiling price of your closest competitor for any service as your ceiling price, indicate on the statement in every such case the service, the ceiling price, and your closest competitor's name and address.

(ii) If your ceiling prices are based upon a flat rate manual or similar pricing manual or parts catalogue or list, you may (instead of appending it to the statement) clearly identify on the statement such manual, parts catalogue, or list by name, edition number, and date, indicating the instances in which it was not your practice in the base period to follow it.

(2) File a duplicate of your statement with the appropriate OPS district office. You may request, if you wish, that the part of your statement insofar as it applies to non-retail services which you sell be treated as confidential and not subject to public disclosure. Such part of your statement as shall be so treated will then be withheld from public inspection unless the withholding of the information it contains would be contrary to the purposes of this regulation. You may also withhold from public inspection such part of your statement, insofar as it applies to non-retail services which you sell.

(3) You must prepare and file such duplicate statement within 30 days of the date that your ceiling price for a service is first established by this regulation. If you have previously prepared and preserved a statement of your ceiling prices under the GCPR and its amendments, and your ceiling prices have not changed under this regulation, you must prepare and file such duplicate copy of such statement under this regulation.

(c) Supplements. You must also prepare and keep available appropriate supplements of your statements, and you must file a duplicate copy of each such supplement with the appropriate OPS district office, within 10 days after you have delivered any new service or after any change in your selling price is authorized by OPS.

(d) Signature. These statements and all supplements thereto must be signed by you or your authorized agent.

(e) Exception. If you can show that the requirements of this section subject you to unusual hardship, you may apply to the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., for written authorization to depart from these requirements. Such authorization will be given only if it will not be inconsistent with the purposes of this regulation.

(f) Posting. (1) OPS may require you to post your ceiling prices for any service which you sell at retail whenever it is deemed necessary to the effective enforcement of this regulation.

(2) If, however, you operate a service establishment making sales at retail, you must, not later than 30 days after the date that your ceiling price for a service is first established by this regulation, post your ceiling prices in a prominent or clearly visible position in your establishment.

SEC. 19. Violation—(a) Civil and criminal action. If you violate any provisions of this regulation you are subject to the criminal penalties, civil enforcement actions, and suits for treble damages provided by the Defense Production Act of 1950.

(b) Record-keeping and filing violations; failure to establish ceiling price. (1) If you fail to keep the records or statements as required by section 18 of this regulation, or if such records or statements or supplements are incorrect or incomplete, or if you fail to apply to OPS for the establishment of a ceiling price under section 7 of this regulation, if you are required to do so, OPS may issue an order establishing a ceiling price for each service you sell in line with prices established by this regulation. Such order may establish the ceiling price as of the date of the first sale of the service under this regulation. Such order may also require you to give sales slips or receipts to your customers as specified in the order, to retain copies thereof in your files, and to prepare and keep such records as may be specified in the order. These requirements will not, however, relieve you of your obligation to comply with the requirements of sections 18 and 7 of this regulation, or of the various penalties for failure to do so.

(2) The term "ceiling price" as used in this paragraph and in section 18 of this regulation also includes a ceiling rate or pricing method.

SEC. 20. Adjustments—(a) General adjustments. OPS may adjust any ceiling price established under this regulation upon a demonstration of substantial financial hardship threatening your ability to continue to supply a service, subject to the following limitations:

(1) No adjustment will increase your ceiling price above the levels necessary to permit you to continue the sale of your services;

(2) No adjustment will be made if it will create or tend to create a need for increases in the prices of other sellers in your locality or elsewhere.

In judging whether a ceiling price subjects you to substantial financial hardship, OPS will take into account such pertinent factors as the nature of your business, its earnings, and the earnings of your trade as a whole during a representative period. A price increase may be denied in whole or in part, however, if your hardship is attributable to such causes as a decline in sales volume because of reduced demand, general manpower shortage, shortage of essential supplies, or other difficulties apart from your ceiling price. Even though a particular service or type of service is not profitable, an adjustment may be denied in whole or in part if in the judgment of OPS, such action is justified in view of the profitability of your business as a whole.

(b) Adjustment by buyer-seller agreement. In order to permit the continuance of a limited supply of an essential non-retail service, you may, if the buyer agrees to absorb a price increase above your ceiling price for that service, apply to the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., for permission to increase the price of that service to him by an amount not to exceed direct labor and material cost increases incurred by you since your ceiling price for that service was established. Twenty days after filing under this paragraph for a price increase or supplying such additional information as OPS may request, you may charge your increased price unless you are advised by OPS that your application has been denied. The Director of Price Stabilization or any official of OPS having authority to act may at any time deny the application for the price increase in any case where it appears to be inconsistent with the purposes of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

SEC. 21. Adjustable pricing. Any person may agree to sell at a price which can be increased up to the ceiling price in effect at the time of delivery; but no person may, unless authorized by OPS, deliver or agree to deliver at prices to be adjusted upward in accordance with action taken by OPS after delivery. Such authorization may be given when a request for a change in the applicable ceiling price is pending, but only if the authorization is necessary to promote distribution or production and if it will not interfere with the purposes of the Defense Production Act of 1950. The authorization may be given by the Director of Price Stabilization or by any official of OPS having authority to act upon the pending request for a change in price or to give the authorization. The authorization will be given by order, except that it may be given by letter or telegram when the contemplated revision will be the granting of an individual application for adjustment.

SEC. 22. Petitions for amendment. If you seek a change in any provision of this regulation affecting sellers of a service generally, you may file a petition for amendment.

SEC. 23. Procedures. Petitions for amendment and applications for adjustment shall be filed in accordance with Price Procedural Regulation No. 1 except that such petitions and applications shall be filed with the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C.

SEC. 24. Amendments; supplementary regulations; orders. This regulation may be changed or supplemented at any time by amendments, supplementary regulations, orders, or other appropriate action.

SEC. 25. Evasion. (a) This regulation shall not be evaded directly or indirectly.

(b) Any act or practice which results directly or indirectly in obtaining a higher price than is permitted by this regulation is a violation of this regulation. Such practices include, but are not limited to, devices making use of commissions, cross-sales, transportation arrangements, premiums, discounts or any other price differential, special privileges, tie-in agreements or combination sales which require the purchaser of a service covered by this regulation to buy or agree to buy any other commodity or service as a condition of receiving the desired service, or trade understandings; deterioration of services; or the practices not justified under section 12 (e) of this regulation.

SEC. 26. Applicability. This regulation applies to services supplied in the 48 States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

SEC. 27. Definitions and explanations. (a) When used in this regulation:

(1) "Appropriate OPS district office" means the district office of the Office of Price Stabilization for the district where your place of business is located and from which your sales are made.

(2) "Base period" means the period as of which your ceiling prices are fixed under this regulation.

(3) "Closest competitor" means that seller selling the same service under substantially the same conditions who is in close competition with you and is located nearest to you.

(4) "Commodity." This term includes commodities, materials, articles, products, supplies, components, processes and contracts to buy, sell or deliver any of the foregoing.

(5) "GCPR" means the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

(6) "Non-retail sale" means a sale to an industrial, commercial, or governmental user.

(7) "Offered" (as that word is used in connection with price) means the price quoted in your base period price list, or, if you had no price list in the base period, the price which you regularly quoted in any other manner, or the price determined by your base period rate or pricing method. But "offered" (price) does not include a price intended to withhold a service from the market, or a price you offered as a bargaining price if you usually sold at a price lower than your asking price.

(8) "OPS" means the Office of Price Stabilization and, for the purposes of authorizing, establishing, adjusting, revising or disapproving ceiling prices means the Director of Price Stabilization or any official to whom he by order shall delegate the authority therefor.

(9) "Person" includes an individual, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of persons, or the legal successor or representative of any of the foregoing, and the United States and any other government and the political subdivisions and agencies of any of the foregoing.

(10) "Pricing method" is a formula by which you determined a price for a service in the base period which included a rate, and an item for labor, materials, and mark-up for overhead and profit, or any of such items, whether or not the formula was disclosed to the purchaser. Unless the formula included a rate, the figure which resulted from the application of the formula was a flat price (except where the supplying of a service was on a cost-sharing basis). See definition of "rate" in subparagraph (12) of this paragraph.

(11) "Purchaser of the same class" means a purchaser belonging to the same price class, that is, to a group of purchasers to whom it was your established practice in the base period to supply or offer to supply the same service at a particular price. If in the base period you customarily supplied or offered to supply the same service to any purchaser at a price different from the price at which you supplied or offered to supply the same service to other purchasers, that purchaser is in a purchaser price class by himself.

(12) "Rate" is a means of determining a price by multiplying the time involved in supplying a service by a fixed charge per unit of time, or by multiplying the price of the commodity involved by a fixed percentage.

(13) "Records" includes but is not limited to, books of account, sales lists, sales slips, orders, vouchers, contracts, receipts, invoices, bills of lading, and any other papers and documents relating to your prices.

(14) "Rental" means any leasing of a commodity except where the lease is a substitute for a conditional sales contract, chattel mortgage, or other security device in connection with an installment sale, or except where the lease contains a provision giving the lessee an option to buy the leased commodity at a stipulated price from which all or a portion of the payments made as rent are to be deducted.

(15) "Season" means any division of the year into periods of at least 14 consecutive days for pricing purposes, such division being based upon regular and recurrent differences in demand for or supply of the service.

(16) "Sell" or "supply" includes sell, rent, supply, dispose, barter, exchange, transfer, deliver, and contracts and offers to do any of the foregoing. The term "sale", "supply", "selling", "supplying", "sold", "supplied", "seller", "supplier", "buy", "purchase", shall be construed accordingly.

(17) "Service" or "services" means any act or acts performed or rendered, otherwise than as an employee, for a fee, charge or other consideration. The term includes any privilege sold or granted, or any forbearance to act, for a fee, charge or other consideration. The term also includes the rental of any commodity or service if the rental charge is not covered by another ceiling price regulation and has not been exempted from price control.

(18) "You" means a person and refers to any seller or supplier subject to this regulation. If you supply services through more than one place of business, each such place of business shall, for the purposes of this regulation, be considered a separate seller or supplier.

Effective date. This regulation shall become effective May 16, 1951.

NOTE: The record-keeping and reporting requirements of this regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

[Ceiling Price Regulation 36]

CPR 36—USED STEEL DRUMS AND THE SERVICE OF RECONDITIONING

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Public Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Ceiling Price Regulation 36 is issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

This Ceiling Price Regulation establishes specific ceiling prices for certain used steel drums, raw and reconditioned, and for the services of reconditioning and lining such drums.

The average maximum life of a steel drum is two years, during which period it is used eight to ten times. Ordinarily, after each use a drum requires some reconditioning, the extent of which depends upon the use to which it has been put, its condition, and the use to which it is to be put. This reconditioning may consist of washing, scraping, painting, drying, inspection for leaks, and replacement of gaskets. It may also include such operations as de-denting, sand-blasting, and chaining or tumbling.

The used steel drum industry includes three different levels of sales and service. First, there are so-called emptiers who receive drums in connection with their purchases of products shipped in such containers. Secondly, there are dealers who purchase raw drums from the emptiers and resell them to reconditioners. And, finally, there are reconditioners whose principal operations consist in processing used drums to fit them for use as shipping containers. Reconditioners process drums which they buy, either directly from the emptiers or through dealers, as well as drums which are owned by so-called fillers, i. e. persons who use them as shipping containers for the products which they sell.

Prior to World War II many fillers did not attempt to retrieve the drums in which they shipped their products and buying and selling constituted about 90 percent of the dollar volume of reconditioners while reconditioning for others was only 10 percent of such volume. After the outbreak of World War II and as a result of the ensuing shortage of steel sheets for the manufacture of new drums, fillers to a large extent converted from a system of selling their drums with their products to a deposit system under which they retained title to the drums and required a return by the emptier on penalty of forfeiture of the deposit. Since drums thus returned to fillers were sent to reconditioners for the service of reconditioning, the merchandising of used steel drums by reconditioners decreased, while the business of servicing drums for others increased, until 90 percent of the total dollar volume of the reconditioners was accounted for by the service of reconditioning. After V-J Day many shippers continued the practice of retaining title to their drums and in the five years preceding the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, the operations of the reconditioning industry were about equally divided between merchandising and servicing of drums owned by others. Since the end of June 1950, however, the pattern which was created by the emergency in World War II has been repeated and currently buying and selling comprises less than 10 percent of the reconditioning industry's dollar volume.

There exists today an expanding demand for steel shipping containers. Although 2,800,000 new drums were manufactured in the month of January 1951 (the largest monthly total since the end of World War II), the backlog of unfilled orders amounted to 9,500,000 drums. These figures do not fully reflect the direct and indirect military requirements and it is anticipated that these needs will accentuate the shortage of shipping containers which now exists. Reconditioning of used containers is an important means of alleviating this situation and it has a particular significance from the point of view of the economy as a whole because it makes available for other important uses substantial quantities of steel sheets which would otherwise be required for the manufacture of new containers. Thus each reconditioned drum saves about 60 pounds of steel used in the manufacture of a new drum and it has been estimated that more than 35 million reconditioned drums were sold or serviced in 1950 with a saving of approximately one million tons of steel. If the volume of the reconditioning industry is expanded to 50 million drums, an additional 450,000 tons of steel will be conserved. In view of these considerations, the reconditioning of steel drums is extremely important both for the defense program and the civilian economy and it is imperative that adequate facilities be available to take care of the increased volume of business which will have to be handled.

Historically, the prices for reconditioned drums have been approximately 80–85 percent of the prices of new drums. Thus in the period immediately preceding the Korean conflict a new 55 gallon drum was selling for approximately $4.50, while a similar reconditioned drum sold at an average price $3.75. The sharply accelerated demand for containers following the outbreak of the Korean crisis upset this customary price relationship and by the end of 1950, used drums in many cases were being sold at prices in excess of those for new drums. This distortion began at the emptier level and of necessity was reflected at all subsequent levels in the industry.

These abnormal prices, now reflected in the ceiling prices established by the General Ceiling Price Regulation, are seriously disrupting the normal pattern of distribution of used drums, are encouraging inventory hoarding, and are causing hardship to many users. These circumstances, and the accompanying uncertainty and confusion among both buyers and sellers, constitute a serious threat to this essential industry and to the many industries using drums for the transportation of materials vital to the defense program and civilian economy.

This ceiling price regulation establishes ceiling prices for the drums covered at all levels of sale in the industry. The ceiling prices established are designed to correct the price distortions which now exist by rolling back the ceiling price for reconditioned steel drums and for the service of reconditioning to a level which will re-establish the relationship between the prices for new and reconditioned drums which existed in the period immediately preceding the Korean crisis. In establishing such level, consideration has been given to the labor and material cost increases which reconditioners have sustained since June 24, 1950, and to the necessity of encouraging the expansion of facilities for this vitally needed service.

The new ceiling price established for the sale of a reconditioned drum of 40 to 58 gallon capacity is $4.00, delivered to the purchaser within a radius of 30 miles from the reconditioner's plant. Slightly higher ceiling prices are permitted for the West Coast because of higher new drum prices in that area. This price is approximately 82 percent of the average current price, $4.85, for a new drum. The prices established for the services of basic and total reconditioning (which are defined in the regulation) are $1.50 and $2.00, respectively. The ceiling charges for the service of applying linings are the same as those which prevail for new drum manufacturers. The ceiling price for a raw drum sold by an emptier has been determined by deducting from ceiling price for a reconditioned drum, the ceiling charges established for the service of reconditioning and the ceiling differential allowed for dealers (established on the basis of the differential prevailing during the period immediately preceding the Korean crisis).

The ceiling prices thus established will work no hardship upon emptiers since the prices which they receive for used drums bears little or no relationship to the costs of the products which they sell. In the emptiers' operations a used drum is a waste product in the category of scrap and the level of ceiling prices established for the emptiers' sales will not affect the volume of drums entering the market.

It is believed that the new ceiling prices, arrived at after consultation with the industry, will enable emptiers, dealers and reconditioners to obtain a fair and reasonable price, will permit industrial users of reconditioned drums to purchase them at a price bearing a normal relation to the price of new drums, and in large measure will restore the flow of drums to normal channels and discourage hoarding.

This regulation does not cover the entire field of drums, pails and other steel containers. Since more than 95 percent of the products sold or serviced by the industry are 30 to 58 gallon drums, inclusive, fabricated of 16 to 20 gauge steel, inclusive, it was deemed advisable, in view of the urgency of the present situation to specifically control that product and several special services, leaving for a later date a detailed study of the minor products such as pails and other containers. Ceiling prices for containers and services not covered by this regulation are established by the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization, the provisions of this ceiling price regulation are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

So far as practicable, the Director has given due consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objectives of the Defense Production Act of 1950; to prices prevailing during the period from May 24, 1950, to June 24, 1950, inclusive; and to relevant factors of general applicability.

In formulating this ceiling price regulation, the Director consulted with the Used Steel Drum Industry Advisory Committee, industry representatives, and trade association representatives, to the extent practicable under existing circumstances, and has given full consideration to their recommendations.

The provisions of this ceiling price regulation and their effect upon business practices, cost practices, or means or aids to distribution in the industry have been considered. It is believed that no changes in such practices or methods have been effected. To the extent, however, that the provisions of the regulation may operate to compel changes in such practices or methods, such provisions are necessary to prevent circumvention or evasion of the regulation and to effectuate the policies of the act.

[General Ceiling Price Regulation, Amdt. 10]

GENERAL CEILING PRICE REGULATION

AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES; "PARITY" ADJUSTMENT FOR COOPERATIVES, PRODUCER-PROCESSORS, ET AL.

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Amendment 10 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

Prior to the issuance of this amendment, some processors who produced their own agricultural commodities and some producer-owned cooperative processors were unable to take advantage of the "pass-through" provisions of section 11 of the General Ceiling Price Regulation, as amended, because they made no purchases of the below-parity commodities. They therefore had no way of determining the differences in the cost to them of such commodities between the base period and a current date. As a result, these cooperative processors found themselves unable to pay their members prices for below-parity commodities equal to those paid growers by independent processors, and producer-processors were unable to realize a return for their production activities equal to the prevailing market price on their raw commodities.

A slightly different problem is present in the case of processors operating under "open" price and deferred payment contracts. These contracts relate the price paid to the producer for the listed commodity to the processor's subsequent sales price or profit on the sale, or, as is frequently the case in the dairy industry, to a price determined by state or municipal authorities, or to other factors unknown at the time the processor receives delivery. Such processors can not take immediate advantage of the "pass-through" provision because they cannot finally determine the cost to them of the listed agricultural commodity until after they process and sell it.

For producer-processors and processors who purchase listed agricultural commodities pursuant to "open" price or deferred payment contracts, it is provided that, in calculating the "pass-through" to which they are entitled under section 11 (b) (2), they may adopt the prices their nearest competitor had to pay for the listed agricultural commodity.

It is further provided that producer-owned cooperatives may increase their ceiling prices, so long as the agricultural commodity is listed in section 11 (a), provided that they pass back to producers the entire dollar-and-cent amount of that increase. By this method increases in the processing margin of cooperatives are prevented but the producer is not stopped from realizing a return equal to parity on the raw commodity.

Section 11 (f), which requires reporting of any increases in ceiling price taken pursuant to the parity "pass-through" provisions, has also been amended to provide special reporting methods for the processors dealt with in this amendment. Because of the different technique used by these processors in calculating the amount of their "pass-through", the information required from them is somewhat different from that which must be sent in by the average processor.

In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization this amendment is generally fair and equitable and is necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

AMENDATORY PROVISIONS

The General Ceiling Price Regulation is amended in the following respects:

1. Section 11(b) is amended by adding subparagraph (3) to read as follows:

(3) (i) If (a) you are a producer-processor, and (b) you cannot otherwise determine your ceiling price under paragraph (b) (2) of this section because you do not customarily purchase any amount of a listed agricultural commodity from independent producers wholly unaffiliated with you, you shall, for purposes of paragraph (b) (2) of this section, use as your costs the prices (with adjustment for difference in delivery costs) paid for a customary purchase by your nearest competitor. Such competitor must be one who buys the same quality of the commodity as do you, buys it in quantities comparable to the quantities in which you buy, and buys it at firm prices for processing.

(ii) If (a) you are a processor who purchases the listed agricultural commodity under "open" price or deferred payment contracts, which relate the price you pay the producer to facts unknown both at the time the raw agricultural commodity is delivered to you, and at the time of sale of the processed product, and (b) you cannot otherwise determine your ceiling price under paragraph (b) (2) of this section because you do not customarily purchase any amount of a listed agricultural commodity at prices finally determined at the time of sale, you shall, for purposes of paragraph (b) (2) of this section use as your costs the prices (with adjustment for differences in delivery costs) paid for a customary purchase by your nearest competitor. Such competitor must be one who buys the same quality of the commodity as do you, buys it in quantities comparable to the quantities in which you buy, and buys it at firm prices for processing.

(iii) If (a) you are a producer-owned cooperative processor, and (b) you cannot otherwise determine your ceiling price under paragraph (b) (2) of this section because you do not customarily purchase any amount of a listed agricultural commodity from independent producers wholly unaffiliated with you, you may increase your ceiling price (as determined under the other sections of this regulation) for products processed from such commodities if the entire dollar-and-cent increase in total gross sales revenue derived from that increase in your ceiling price is passed back to producers within 30 days after the end of each normal accounting period. The amount so passed back must be in addition to the full amount you would normally have passed back to producers had you sold the processed product at the ceiling price determined under the other sections of this regulation.

2. Section 11 (f) is amended by adding "(1)" before "If", the first word of the text; by adding "(2)" after "11 (b)" in the first sentence; and by changing the subparagraph numbers "(1)", "(2)", "(3)", and "(4)" to "(i), (ii), (iii), (iv)", respectively.

3. Section 11 (f) is further amended by adding subparagraphs (2) and (3) to read as follows:

(2) If you are either a producer-processor pricing under section 11 (b) (3) (i), or a processor operating under "open" price or deferred payment contracts and pricing under section 11 (b) (3) (ii), you may not increase your ceiling price for such commodity until you first notify the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., by registered mail giving the following information:

(i) The name and address of your nearest competitor selected pursuant to section 11 (b) (3) (i) or (ii).

(ii) The highest price paid for the listed agricultural commodity in the base period by your nearest competitor, or his ceiling price (determined before application of this section), or your dollar-and-cent per unit margin in the base period (determined by taking your ceiling price, as determined under this regulation before application of this section, and subtracting from it the highest per unit price paid by your nearest competitor for a customary purchase in the base period).

(iii) The current price paid for a customary purchase of the listed agricultural commodity by your nearest competitor.

(iv) Your ceiling price, as determined under this regulation, before application of this section.

(v) The increased ceiling price.

In the case of increased cost of ingredients, furnish the figures substantiating the conversion of your increase in cost to the increase in the ceiling price.

(3) If you are a cooperative-processor pricing under section 11 (b) (3) (iii), you may increase your ceiling price without first giving any notice, but must, within 30 days after the end of each normal accounting period during which you increased your ceiling price, notify the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., by registered mail giving the following information:

(i) The amount retained by you per unit of the processed commodity sold in the last normal accounting period before February 1, 1951.

(ii) The amount passed back to producers per unit of the processed commodity sold in the last normal accounting period before February 1, 1951.

(iii) The amount retained by you per unit of the processed commodity sold in the most recent normal accounting period.

(iv) The amount passed back to producers per unit of the processed commodity sold in the most recent normal accounting period.

Effective date. This amendment shall become effective May 16, 1951.

NOTE: The record-keeping and reporting requirements of this amendment have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Director of Price Stabilization.

GOR 10—ADJUSTMENTS OF CEILING PRICES FOR MANUFACTURERS

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Public Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this General Overriding Regulation 10 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

A ceiling price regulation, although generally fair and equitable to the group which it covers, may sometimes work hardships or inequities on some individual members of the group, and the Office of Price Stabilization has recognized that some provision should be made for the adjustment of individual hardship cases. CPR 22, the Manufacturers' General Ceiling Price Regulation, issued on April 25, 1951, provides for individual adjustments for manufacturers who cannot operate without losses under their ceiling prices. Many manufacturers are, however, not covered by CPR 22 and will not, therefore, have available to them the adjustment provision in that regulation. This general overriding regulation is therefore being issued to make individual adjustments available to any manufacturer who finds himself in a loss position as a result of a ceiling price imposed by any regulation.

The provisions of this regulation will apply to all manufacturers, whether covered by CPR 22 or by any other ceiling price regulation, but a manufacturer will not be prevented thereby from taking advantage of any special adjustment provisions of any other regulation which may be applicable to him.

Like CPR 22, this regulation is intended to provide for individual adjustments, under certain circumstances, for a manufacturer who cannot operate under ceiling price regulations without a loss on his over-all operations. As under CPR 22, the manufacturer must show that his loss is due or will be due to ceiling price limitations. It is not intended to provide adjustments for losses resulting from factors other than ceiling prices, such as seasonal, temporary or non-recurring factors, uneconomical operations, illegal wage payments, and the like; nor is it intended to provide an inefficient manufacturer with a level of prices substantially in excess of that which is adequate for the bulk of his competitors.

This regulation is a step in the development of a standard for adjusting the prices of individual sellers to avoid hardship or inequity, and the Office of Price Stabilization will continue to give consideration to the problem insofar as adjustments for other types of sellers and situations are concerned.

FINDS OF THE DIRECTOR OF PRICE STABILIZATION

In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization the provisions of this regulation are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

So far as practicable the Director of Price Stabilization gave due consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objectives of the Defense Production Act of 1950; to prices prevailing during the period from May 24, 1950, to June 24, 1950, inclusive; and to relevant factors of general applicability.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 8 issued under Sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply Title IV, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong., E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105; 3 CFR, 1950 Supp.

SECTION 1. What this regulation does. This regulation permits a manufacturer to apply for an upward adjustment of his ceiling prices established under any other regulation, if as a result of such ceiling prices, the manufacturer would be forced to operate at a loss with respect to his over-all manufacturing operations. This regulation does not, however, prevent a manufacturer, who is eligible for an adjustment under some other regulation, from applying for an adjustment under that regulation.

SEC. 2. Who may apply. (a) A manufacturer may file an application for adjustment under this regulation where:

(1) His existing ceiling prices would require him to operate at a loss with respect to his over-all manufacturing operations; and

(2) The adjusted prices for which he applies will not be substantially out-of-line with the ceiling prices established for other sellers of similar commodities.

(b) The manufacturer must show that under his existing ceiling prices his over-all manufacturing operations have been actually conducted at a loss during a recent representative period of operation of at least one month; or that they would have been conducted at a loss if the commodities involved had been manufactured in his customary quantities and proportions; or that, due to the occurrence of a substantial and continuing change of some element affecting costs and profits, a projection of his operations clearly shows tht he will be immediately operating at a loss.

(c) The loss involved must be attributable to the level of his existing ceiling prices and not to any of the following:

(1) Seasonal, temporary or non-recurring factors affecting his operations.

(2) A reduction in volume of production below the normal economical capacity of his plant.

(3) The payment of unlawful wages or excessive salaries or of unlawful or excessive prices for materials.

(4) The incurring of factory overhead costs or of selling, administrative and general costs which are abnormally high relative to sales or other costs unless such excess is demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence to have been unavoidable in the exercise of sound business judgment and management.

(5) Any transactions with affiliated corporations or businesses which either are of a kind which would not result from arm's-length bargaining or differ from transactions customarily entered into with such affiliated concerns.

(6) Reserves for contingencies, or any other unusual factors.

SEC. 3. Information to be submitted. A manufacturer seeking an adjustment under this regulation shall file an application with the Office of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., and include the following:

(a) His name and address, a description of his manufacturing facilities and the commodities he manufactures, and a statement of the principal types of customers to whom he sells.

(b) Where he was in operation for such periods, detailed annual profit and loss statements for the years 1946 through 1949, and both an annual statement and if he regularly prepares them, quarterly profit and loss statements for the year 1950 and each quarter since then.

(c) A detailed profit and loss statement covering his most recent period of operations under his existing ceiling prices, of one month or more, for which such a statement can be prepared, together with a careful explanation of how it was prepared, including particularly a justification of any estimating procedures used in its preparation, and where an actual loss has not yet been experienced, clear and convincing evidence first, that changes in conditions which have already occurred will cause him immediately to incur a loss and, second, what the minimum amount of this loss will be.

(d) A showing that the loss in his current operations is not due to any of the factors in section 2 (c) of this regulation.

(e) For the commodities subject to ceiling price regulation, a statement of his existing ceiling prices for sales to his largest buying class of purchaser, including delivery terms, allowances, premiums and extras, deductions, guarantees, servicing terms and other terms and conditions of sale, a schedule of his price differentials to his other classes of purchasers, and a statement of the ceiling price regulations under which his ceiling prices are established.

(f) A list of his principal competitors, and a statement of their ceiling prices for similar commodities, together with data showing the past relationships of his prices to the prices they have charged.

(g) A proposed schedule of adjusted ceiling prices, and a demonstration that, if these prices were charged, his operations would be at a break-even position.

SEC. 4. Action on applications. The Office of Price Stabilization will grant or deny, in full or in part, an application under this regulation, or request further information, and may, as a condition of granting an application in full or in part, require the submission of reports of subsequent operations. If, thirty days after acknowledgement of receipt of an application, none of the actions listed above has been taken, the manufacturer may sell at his proposed adjusted ceiling prices until such time as the OPS notifies him that such prices have been disapproved. OPS may at any time revoke or modify adjustments under this regulation.

SEC. 5. Adjustment in resale prices. In connection with any order granting an adjustment in the manufacturer's ceiling prices, OPS may also adjust the ceiling price of any person who resells the commodity in the same form, to the extent deemed necessary in the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization or his duly authorized representative.

SEC. 6. Delegation of authority. The National Office of the Office of Price Stabilization may refer any application for adjustment filed pursuant to this regulation to the appropriate Regional Director. Any Regional Director, or any District Director authorized by the appropriate Regional Director, may in case properly referred to him take action in accordance with sections 4 and 5 of this regulation.

SEC. 7. Definitions. "Manufacturer" means a producer, processor, assembler, finisher, printer or fabricator, who substantially changes the form of some commodity or commodities, combines two or more commodities into a differing one, or creates a new commodity from existing ones.

SEC. 8. Geographical applicability. This regulation applies in the 48 States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

Effective date. This general overriding regulation shall become effective May 11, 1951.

NOTE: The reporting requirements of this regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

EDWARD F. PHELPS, JR.,
Acting Director of Price Stabilization.

Amendment 4, Apr. 30, 1951, 16 F. R. 3770.

SECTION 1. What this regulation does. (a) If you wish to slaughter livestock (cattle, calves, sheep, and lambs or swine) you are required to determine under this regulation whether you are permitted to slaughter livestock at all and if so the amount which you are permitted to slaughter.

(b) The regulation divides slaughterers and slaughtering establishments into classes and prescribes quotas by which slaughterers of each class ascertain the amount of livestock they may slaughter or have slaughtered for them. The classes are defined precisely in subsequent sections but generally the classes are:

(1) Class 1 or federally-inspected slaughterers;

(2) Class 2 or commercial slaughterers not federally inspected;

(3) Class 1A slaughterers—persons who have Class 1 slaughterers slaughter livestock for them.

(4) Class 2A slaughterers—persons who have Class 2 slaughterers slaughter livestock for them.

(5) Class 3 or farm slaughterers who transferred up to 6,000 pounds of meat during the calendar year 1950.

(6) Resident operators of farms or persons who raised their own livestock and slaughter it for use in their own household or on the farm which they operate.

(c) If you operate more than one slaughtering establishment, this regulation applies to each separate establishment and each of them must be operated as if owned by a different person.

(d) This regulation applies to the forty-eight states of the United States and the District of Columbia.

[Paragraph (d) added by Amdt. 3]

SEC. 2. Prohibitions against slaughtering. (a) Between February 9, 1951, and April 29, 1951, you may not slaughter cattle, calves, sheep and lambs, or swine unless you were engaged in the business of slaughtering that species of livestock during the period from January 1, 1950, to February 9, 1951, or unless you are a resident operator of a farm who comes within the definition of a Class 3 slaughterer contained in section 5, or a livestock raiser as defined in section 6.

(b) On and after February 9, 1951, you may not have cattle, calves, sheep and lambs, or swine slaughtered for you unless you had that species of livestock slaughtered for you during the period from January 1, 1950, to January 1, 1951, or unless you are a resident operator of a farm or a livestock raiser mentioned in paragraph (a).

(c) After April 15, 1951 unless you have been registered by the Office of Price Stabilization, or unless you are a resident operator of a farm or a livestock raiser as defined, you may not slaughter cattle, calves, sheep and lambs, or swine.

(d) After April 1, 1951, if you are a Class 1 or Class 2 slaughterer you may not slaughter cattle in excess of your quota.

(e) After April 29, 1951, if you are a Class 1 or Class 2 slaughterer, you may not slaughter cattle, calves, sheep and lambs, or swine in excess of your quota.

(f) Violation of the regulation will subject you to the penalties of the Defense Production Act of 1950, including a fine of $10,000 and imprisonment up to one year.

[Section 2 amended by Amdt. 3]

SEC. 3. Class 1 slaughterers—(a) Definition. If you operate a slaughtering establishment which is subject to Federal meat inspection under the provisions of the act of March 4, 1907 (34 Stat. 1260) (12 U. S. C. 71) as amended, and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder, you are, with respect to each such establishment, a Class 1 slaughterer.

(b) Registration and notification to Class 1A slaughterers. On or before March 15, 1951, you must register with the Office of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., by filing in duplicate OPS Form DO 1-1 with the information there required. If the information furnished by you on OPS Form DO 1-1 indicates that you are entitled to slaughter livestock under this regulation the Washington Office will send you prior to April 15, 1951, a copy of OPS Form DO 1-1 showing your registration number. After April 15, 1951, unless you have received your registration from the Washington Office you may not slaughter any livestock. Prior to filing this form with the Office of Price Stabilization you must notify each Class 1A slaughterer for whom you slaughtered livestock during the calendar year 1950 of the exact amount of livestock which you slaughtered for him during that period by mailing to him OPS Form DO 1-4 in duplicate with the information there required.

(c) Quotas. For the period beginning April 29, 1951, and ending May 26, 1951, you will have a quota on all species of livestock. The quota for each species of livestock will be the number of pounds live weight of each species you slaughtered during the period from April 30, 1950, to May 27, 1950, inclusive, multiplied by the applicable percentage set forth in Supplement 1 to this regulation. If you received a weekly adjustment for your slaughter of any species of livestock for any of the four weeks from April 30, 1950, to May 27, 1950, you may use the adjustment as the number of pounds live weight of the species you slaughtered during those weeks. If you received an adjustment on your slaughter of any species for the April–June 1950 calendar quarter, you may use 31 percent of the adjusted amount as the number of pounds live weight of the species you slaughtered during the period from April 30, 1950, to May 27, 1950, inclusive. If you began slaughtering any species after April 30, 1950, you may determine the amount of that species you may slaughter during the period beginning April 29, 1951, and ending May 26, 1951, by dividing the total live weight of the particular species slaughtered between April 30, 1950, and February 9, 1951, by the number of weeks in which you slaughtered the particular species, multiplying the result by four and multiplying the resulting figure by the applicable percentage set forth in Supplement 1 to this regulation. The multiplier for May 1951 furnished to you by the OPS will not apply for the period April 29, 1951, to May 26, 1951. You may not slaughter more than 60 percent of your quota for any species (including your carry-over on cattle from the April 1, 1951, to April 28, 1951, quota period) during the first half of your quota period. Beginning May 27, 1951, you will have a quota, fixing for each week the number of pounds live weight of each species of livestock you may slaughter. The quota for each species will be determined by the use of a multiplier and FIS base furnished you by the Office of Price Stabilization. The information required on OPS Form DO 1-1 will furnish the basis on which Office of Price Stabilization will determine multipliers for you to use during the calendar quarters beginning on the first Monday in January, April, July and October of each year. You will be notified by the Office of Price Stabilization prior to the beginning of each quarter of the multiplier for each species of livestock to be used by you in determining your quotas for each week of the quarter. In addition you will be notified prior to the commencement of each week of the FIS base by species and by pounds live weight for that week to which you apply your multipliers to determine your quotas for that week. During the first two days of the week you may be notified of a decrease in the FIS base. At any time during the week you may be notified of an increase in the FIS base.

Example. Slaughterer A has been informed that his multiplier for swine is .004. Prior to the quota period slaughterer is notified that the FIS base for swine for the quota period is 250 million pounds, live weight. Multiplying 250 million by .004 the slaughterer determines that his quota for swine for that quota period is one million pounds live weight. Not later than the second day of the quota period slaughterer A may be informed by Office of Price Stabilization that the FIS base for swine has been reduced to 240 million pounds live weight. Multiplying 240 million by .004 he determines that his quota for swine for the quota period has been changed to 960,000 pounds live weight.

[Paragraph (c) amended by Amdts. 3 and 4]

(d) Carry-overs. If you did not use your entire quota for cattle during the period April 1, 1951 to April 28, 1951 you may use the unused portion, not to exceed five percent of that quota, in the period begining April 29, 1951 and ending May 26, 1951. After May 27, 1951 if you did not use your entire quota for any species during any given week you may use the unused portion, not to exceed 10 percent of that quota, in the next week only.

Example 1. Slaughterer A has a quota on swine of 100,000 pounds live weight for the quota period. He slaughters swine weighing a total of 90,000 pounds live weight during the quota period. He may carry over 10 percent of his quota for swine (10,000 pounds) to his next quota period.

Example 2. The same slaughterer in the next quota period has a quota of 90,000 pounds live weight for swine. Adding the 10,000 pounds from the previous period he may slaughter swine weighing a total of 100,000 pounds live weight during the quota period. If he slaughters swine weighing 90,000 pounds live weight he has slaughtered the full amount of his quota and does not have a carry-over to his next quota period. If he slaughters swine to the extent of only 85,000 pounds, he may carry over 5,000 pounds, the difference between 85,000 pounds and his quota of 90,000 pounds. The carry-over applies only to the current quota and not to the quota plus the carry-over from the previous quota period.

Example 3. If in example 2 the slaughterer slaughtered swine weighing 70,000 pounds live weight during the quota period he may not carry over more than 10 percent of his quota of 90,000 pounds, or 9,000 pounds live weight, to his next quota period. The carry-over for each species at all times is restricted to no more than 10 percent of the quota for that species for the quota period.

(e) Overages. If in any week you slaughter livestock of any species in excess of your quota (including any carry-over from the preceding week) your quota for the following week for that species shall be reduced by twice the amount by which you exceeded your quota. If twice the amount of the overage is greater than the quota of the ensuing week you may not slaughter any of that species of livestock during that week nor in any succeeding week until the total of the quotas for the weeks in which you are prohibited from slaughtering livestock equals twice the amount of your overage. The quota limitations here imposed are in addition to any actions, penalties or proceedings authorized by law for violation of this regulation.

(f) Marking requirements. The registration number given to you by the Office of Price Stabilization for the purpose of this regulation will be the same as your federal inspection establishment number. On and after April 1, 1951, you are required to stamp or mark your registration number on each carcass so that it appears on every accessible wholesale cut. You may not sell a wholesale cut unless it has been so marked. The establishment number stamp which you use for purposes of compliance with the federal inspection requirements will satisfy this purpose. On OPS Form DO 1–3 a number appears before the name of each Class 1A slaughterer whom you listed. All wholesale cuts of meat derived from livestock which you slaughter on behalf of a Class 1A slaughterer must bear an additional stamp at every place at which your establishment number stamp appears, showing the number of that Class 1A slaughterer as it appears on OPS Form DO 1–3.

(g) Invoices. On every sale of meat from your slaughtering establishment you must furnish the buyer with an invoice which contains the date the buyer's name and address, your own name and address, and the amount and kind of meat sold. Copies of all such invoices must be preserved by you and kept available for inspection by the Office of Price Stabilization.

(h) Change in operation. If you give up federal inspection for your establishment and you wish to continue your slaughter business as a Class 2 slaughterer you must notify the Washington Office within five days of the time you give up federal inspection. The Washington Office will withdraw your multiplier and cancel your registration as a Class 1 slaughterer. The Washington Office will instruct the Regional Office to issue to you a registration and assign quota bases to you as a Class 2 slaughterer. After this change in operation all of the sections pertaining to Class 2 slaughterers will apply to you.

(i) Sections 5 through 15 contain several provisions which may apply to you as a Class 1 slaughterer.

[Paragraph (f) amended by Amdt. 3]

SEC. 4. Class 2 Slaughterers. (a) Definition. If you slaughter livestock and such slaughter is not subject to federal meat inspection, you are a Class 2 slaughterer unless your slaughter is within the provisions of section 5 or 6 of this regulation.

(b) Registration. On or before March 15, 1951, you must register with the Regional Office of the Office of Price Stabilization for the place in which your slaughtering establishment is located. You register by filing with the Regional Office, OPS Form DO 1–2 in duplicate, providing the information there required. Prior to filing this form you must notify each Class 2A slaughterer for whom you slaughtered livestock during the calendar year 1950 of the exact amount of livestock which you slaughtered for him during that period by mailing to him OPS Form DO 1–5 in duplicate with the information there required. If the information furnished by you on OPS Form DO 1–2 indicates that you are entitled to slaughter livestock under this regulation the Regional Office will send you, prior to April 15, 1951, a copy of OPS Form DO 1–2 showing your registration number. After April 15, 1951, unless you have received your registration from the Regional Office you may not slaughter any livestock.

If your slaughtering establishment is not in operation, because of a suspension or other order of a State, County, City, or Municipal government or agency, you may not register under this regulation. When the suspension or other order is revoked or cancelled you may apply to the Regional Office for registration under this regulation.

(c) Quotas. For each quota period (accounting period or calendar month or similar period of not less than four or more than five weeks used by you instead of calendar months in keeping your own books and records) beginning on or after April 29, 1951 you must have a quota before you may slaughter any species of livestock. The completed and signed OPS Form DO1–2 furnished to you by the Regional Office will show by species the live weight of livestock which you slaughtered during each accounting period of 1950. This is your quota base. Supplement 1 to this regulation contains a list of percentages for use by you and other Class 2 slaughterers in determining your quotas. To determine your quota for each quota period, you apply the appropriate percentage in the Supplement to the quota base for each species. If the resulting quota is less than the live weight of one animal, you may slaughter one animal of that species. If your quota period does not begin on April 29, 1951 you will have an interim quota period from April 29, 1951 to the date that your quota period begins. The quota for the interim quota period is computed as follows:

(1) Determine the quota for each species of livestock for the quota period in which the date April 29, 1951, occurs by multiplying the quota base for that quota period for each species of livestock by the applicable percentage set out in Table I of Supplement 1 to this regulation.

(2) Divide the quota for each species obtained in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph by the number of days in the quota period in which the date April 29, 1951 occurs.

(3) Multiply the result in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph for each species by the number of days between April 28, 1951, and the date of the first quota period beginning on or after April 29, 1951. The resulting amounts are your quotas for each species for the interim quota period.

You may not slaughter more than 60 percent of your quota for any species (including your carry-over from the preceding quota period) during the first half of your quota period.

If you began slaughtering any species after April 30, 1950, and you have not had your quota bases adjusted on your Form DO 1–2, you may use as your quota base the average monthly slaughter of that species between April 30, 1950, and February 9, 1951. After determining your quota base for the period you must apply the applicable percentages set forth in Supplement 1 to this regulation.

[Paragraph (c) amended by Amdts. 3 and 4]

(d) Carry-overs. If you did not use your entire quota for any species during any quota period you may use the unused portion, not to exceed 5 percent of that quota, in the next quota, period only.

Example 1. Slaughterer B has a quota for cattle of 200,000 pounds live weight for the quota period. He slaughters cattle weighing a total of 190,000 pounds live weight during the quota period. He may carry over 5 percent (10,000 pounds) of his quota of cattle to his next quota period.

Example 2. Assume that the same slaughterer in the next quota period has a quota of 150,000 pounds live weight for cattle. Adding the 10,000 pounds carry-over from the previous period he may slaughter cattle weighing a total of 160,000 pounds live weight during the quota period. If he slaughters cattle weighing 155,000 pounds live weight he has slaughtered the full amount of his quota (150,000 pounds) plus part (5,000 pounds) of his previous quota period carry-over and does not have any carry-over to his next quota period. If he slaughters cattle to the extent of only 145,000 pounds he may carry over 5,000 pounds, the difference between 145,000 pounds and his quota of 150,000 pounds. The carry-over applies only to the current quota and not to the quota plus the carry-over from the previous quota period.

Example 3. If in example 2 the slaughterer slaughtered cattle weighing only 130,000 pounds live weight during the quota period he may carry over not more than 5 percent of his quota of 150,000 pounds, or 7,500 pounds live weight to his next quota period. The carry-over for each species at all times is restricted to no more than 5 percent of the quota for that species for the quota period.

(e) Overages. If in any quota period you slaughter livestock of any species in excess of your quota (including any carry-over from the preceding quota period), for any quota period, your quota for the following quota period for that species shall be reduced by twice the amount by which you exceeded your quota. If twice the amount of the overage is greater than the quota for the ensuing quota period, you may not slaughter any of that species of livestock during that quota period or in any succeeding quota period until the total of the quotas for the quota periods in which you are prohibited from slaughtering livestock equals twice the amount of your overage. The quota limitations here imposed are in addition to any action, penalties or proceedings authorized by law for violation of this regulation.

(f) Marketing Requirements. On and after April 1, 1951, or as soon thereafter as you receive your registration number from the Office of Price Stabilization, you are required to stamp or mark your registration number on each carcass so that it appears on every accessible wholesale cut. You may not sell a wholesale cut unless it has been so marked. On OPS Form DO 1–3 a number appears before the name of each Class 2A slaughterer whom you listed. All wholesale cuts of meat derived from livestock which you slaughter on behalf of a Class 2A slaughterer must bear an additional stamp at every place at which your registration number appears, showing the number of that Class 2A slaughterer as it appears on OPS Form DO 1–3.

(g) Invoices. On every sale of meat from your slaughtering establishment you must furnish the buyer with an invoice which contains the date, the buyer's name and address, your own name and address, and the amount and kind of meat sold. Copies of each such invoice must be preserved by you and kept available for inspection by the Office of Price Stabilization.

(h) Change in Operation. If your establishment is subject to inspection under the provisions of the act of March 4, 1907 (34 Stat. 1260) as amended (21 U. S. C.) and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder, you must notify the Regional Office within five (5) days of the time when you began to operate under Federal inspection. Upon the issuance to you of a Class 1 registration number by the Washington Office, the Regional Office will cancel your Class 2 registration. Thereafter all of the sections pertaining to Class 1 slaughterers will apply to you.

(i) Other Provisions Which May Apply to Your Business. Sections 5 through 15 contain general provisions which may apply to you as a Class 2 slaughterer.

[Paragraph (i) amended by Amdt. 3]

SEC. 5. Class 3 Slaughterers. (a) If you are a resident operator of a farm on which you reside at least 6 months a year, and if, during the calendar year 1950, you transferred no more than 6,000 pounds of meat resulting from your slaughter of livestock or the slaughter of livestock for you, you are a Class 3 slaughterer. The transfer of meat includes the selling, giving, exchanging, lending, delivering or consigning meat and also the placing or storing of meat in warehouses or locker plants.

(b) You may not transfer any meat to any person who receives meat for resale, unless you transferred meat to such person in 1950. Furthermore, you may not transfer, during any six-month period beginning March 1 and September 1 of each year, more than the equivalent amount of meat you transferred during the same period of 1949–50. In no event may you transfer more than 3,000 pounds of meat in any such six-month period. The transfer of meat in excess of these amounts is a violation of this regulation subject to the penalties of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

(c) No Class 1 or Class 2 slaughterer may slaughter livestock for you under this section unless you furnish to him a signed statement setting forth (1) the address of your farm; (2) that you are a resident operator of a farm on which you reside at least 6 months a year; (3) that during the calendar year 1950 you transferred no more than 6,000 pounds of meat resulting from your slaughter of livestock or the slaughter of livestock for you; (4) a description of the livestock by species, number of head, and live weight; (5) that the transfer of all or any part of the meat will not make your total transfer of meat in the current six-month period, commencing with March 1 or September 1, exceed either 3,000 pounds or the amount you transferred during the corresponding six month period of 1949–50, whichever amount is lower. Furthermore, if any of the meat is to be transferred to persons acquiring it for resale, you must set forth in the statement the names and addresses of such persons and that you transferred meat to such persons in 1950.

(d) Tagging requirements. On and after April 1, 1951, you are required to attach a tag to each leg of every carcass transferred by you and to each wholesale cut transferred by you and you may not transfer meat unless it has been so tagged. Each tag must have on it the words "Class 3 slaughterer", and must also show your name and address.

(e) Invoices. On every transfer of meat you must furnish the buyer with an invoice which contains the date, the buyer's name and address, your own name and address and the amount and kind of meat transferred. Copies of all such invoices must be preserved by you and kept available for inspection by the Office of Price Stabilization.

[Former paragraphs (c) and (d) redesignated paragraphs (d) and (e) by Amdt. 2]

SEC. 6. Limitations upon slaughter of livestock for home consumption. (a) There are only 2 situations in which you may slaughter livestock or have it slaughtered for consumption in your own household or on a farm which you operate: (1) If you operate a farm at which you reside for more than six months a year; or (2) if you actually superintended the raising of the livestock and it was raised on your own premises for at least 90 days immediately before slaughter, or, if the livestock is less than 90 days old at the time of slaughter, then it must have been raised on your own premises from the time of its birth.

(b) No Class 1 or Class 2 slaughterer may slaughter livestock for you under this section unless you furnish to him a signed statement containing: (1) A description of the livestock by species, number of head, and live weight; (2) a statement that you have read paragraph (a) above and that, under the provisions of that paragraph you are eligible to have the particular livestock slaughtered for you.

SEC. 7. Slaughter of "Club" livestock. (a) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 2 (b) of this regulation if you purchase livestock at a sale conducted by members of 4–H Clubs, Future Farmers of America, or other recognized youth organizations, you may have such livestock slaughtered for you until the effective date of an amendment to this regulation which will set forth the conditions under which such livestock may be slaughtered.

[Section 7 amended by Amdts. 3 and 4]

SEC. 8. Class 1A and Class 2A slaughterers (custom slaughterers). (a) If you had livestock slaughtered for you during 1950 by a slaughterer who is designated Class 1 by this order you are a Class 1A slaughterer. You are entitled to have your livestock slaughtered by the same slaughterer and he is required to continue slaughtering livestock for you. There will be a quota on the amount of livestock he may slaughter for you for the period beginning April 29, 1951, and ending May 27, 1951. This quota is determined by multiplying the number of pounds live weight of each species of livestock which he slaughtered for you during the corresponding period in 1950 by the applicable percentages set forth in Supplement 1 to this regulation. Your Class 1 slaughterer is prohibited from slaughtering for you, and you are prohibited from giving him for slaughter, in any quota period, a greater number of pounds of any species of livestock than is provided for in the quota for that period. However, if the resulting quota is less than the live weight of one animal for any species, he may slaughter one animal of that species for you.

[Paragraph (a) amended by Amdts. 3 and 4]

(b) If you had livestock slaughtered for you during 1950 by a slaughterer who is designated Class 2 by this order, you are a Class 2A slaughterer. You are entitled to have your livestock slaughtered by the same slaughterer and he is required to continue to slaughter livestock for you. There will be a quota on the amount of livestock he may slaughter for you beginning April 29, 1951. This quota is found by first taking the number of pounds liveweight of each species of livestock which he slaughtered for you during each accounting period of 1950, as explained in section 4(c). This information will appear on OPS Form DO 1–5. This is your quota base. Your quota for each quota period will be found by multiplying the quota base for each species of livestock by the percentage which will be published in the supplement to this regulation. Your Class 2 slaughterer is prohibited from slaughtering for you, and you are prohibited from giving him for slaughter, in any quota period, a greater number of pounds of any species of livestock than is provided for in the quota for that period. However, if the resulting quota is less than the live weight of one animal for any species, he may slaughter one animal of that particular species for you.

[Paragraph (b) amended by Amdts. 3 and 4]

(c) If the business of a Class 1 or Class 2 slaughterer is transferred to another person for continued operations, the person who acquired the slaughtering establishment (transferee) is required to continue slaughtering livestock for you just as if the transferee were the original slaughterer.

(d) If a Class 1 or Class 2 slaughterer or transferee, refuses or is unable to continue to slaughter for you, you may apply to the Washington Office if you are a Class 1A slaughterer, or to the Regional Office if you are a Class 2A slaughterer, for permission to have your livestock slaughtered by another Class 1 or Class 2 slaughterer. The application must be made in writing and must show:

(1) The name and address of the Class 1 or Class 2 slaughterer who formerly slaughtered for you;

(2) The reasons why such slaughterer will no longer slaughter for you; and

(3) The name and address of the Class 1 or Class 2 slaughterer whom you wish to perform the slaughtering for you.

If the Washington Office or the Regional Office finds that the slaughterer refuses or is unable to continue to slaughter for you it may transfer the quota base from such slaughterer to the Class 1 or Class 2 slaughterer named in the application. However, you must continue to serve the same general class of customers in the same areas that you served previously. If the application is granted the new Class 1 or Class 2 slaughterer and you shall be subject, with respect to that slaughter, to the provisions of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section just as if the Class 1 or Class 2 slaughterer had formerly slaughtered livestock for you.

SEC. 9. Adjustments or other relief. (a) If you find that you need an adjustment or other relief under this regulation you may apply in writing to the Office of Price Stabilization. If you are a Class 1 or Class 1A slaughterer you apply to the Washington Office. If you are a Class 2 or Class 2A slaughterer you apply to the Regional Office. The application must show what adjustment or relief you are requesting and all the facts showing your need for the adjustment or relief. You must give any further information requested by the Office of Price Stabilization.

(b) If the Regional Office finds that you have shown a need for an adjustment, or other relief it will forward your application to the Washington Office with its recommendations for a decision. If the Washington Office finds that you have shown a need for an adjustment, or other relief it will take the necessary steps to grant the adjustment or other relief.

SEC. 10. Sale or transfer of Class 1 or Class 2 slaughtering establishment. (a) If you are a Class 1 or Class 2 slaughterer and wish to sell or transfer your slaughtering establishment to any other person for continued operation, you and the transferee must notify the Washington Office in the case of a Class 1 slaughtering establishment or the Regional Office in the case of a Class 2 slaughtering establishment. The notice must be given in writing at least ten days before the sale or transfer and must show:

(1) The name and address of the establishment and of the persons wishing to sell or transfer and the persons wishing to acquire it; and

(2) Whether the transferee will continue to operate the establishment in the same manner, and will maintain the pattern of distribution of meat from the slaughter of livestock in accordance with the policy of this regulation.

(b) If the Washington Office or the Regional Office finds that the establishment will continue to be operated in the same manner as before the transfer, and that the transferee will maintain the pattern of distribution in accordance with the policy of this regulation, it may, in the case of a Class 1 slaughterer, assign the registration and multipliers of the transferor to the transferee, and, in the case of a Class 2 slaughterer, assign the registration and quota bases of the transferor to the transferee for that establishment, and in each case shall cancel the registration of the transferor.

(c) The transferee of a Class 1 or Class 2 slaughterer may slaughter livestock during the balance of the quota period in which the transfer takes place only to the extent of the unused portion of the quota (including any carry-over) of the transferor for that period.

(d) No such transfer and assignment of registration, multipliers or quota bases may be made while your slaughtering establishment is under suspension by a State, County, Municipal or City government agency.

(e) If you are a Class 1 or Class 2 slaughterer and you wish to move all or part of your slaughtering business to another place, the moving is to be treated as a transfer to a different person under this section. For this purpose, the place from which the establishment is to be moved is considered the transferor and the place to which it is to be moved is considered the transferee.

(f) For the purpose of this regulation a sale or transfer of 10 percent or more of the stock of a corporation or the sale or transfer of 10 percent or more of the ownership of an establishment is considered a sale or transfer of the establishment.

SEC. 11. Registration of new Class 1 and Class 2 slaughtering establishments. (a) If you want to open a new Class 1 or Class 2 slaughtering establishment, you must apply to the Office of Price Stabilization for registration and multipliers or quota bases. Application will be granted only if you establish to the satisfaction of the Office of Price Stabilization that (1) the operation of the establishment is essential to meet civilian needs in the area in which it serves; (2) the products it will produce cannot be obtained from any other source, and (3) the operation of the new establishment will promote the National Defense by facilitating the production and orderly distribution of meat.

(b) If the application is made by a person who wishes to open a Class 1 slaughtering establishment, it must be made in writing to the Washington Office and must contain all the information relied upon to support the application. If the application is made by a person who wishes to open a Class 2 slaughtering establishment it must be made in writing to the Regional Office for the place where the applicant's establishment is or will be located, and must contain all the information relied upon to support the application. The applicant must also give any additional information requested by the Office of Price Stabilization.

(c) In the case of a Class 2 slaughterer the Regional Office must forward the entire file to the Washington Office, with its recommendation for decision, and take such other action as the Washington Office may authorize or direct.

(d) If you are Class 1 or Class 2 slaughterer who already has a quota you may not open another slaughtering establishment and use your quota there, unless you apply under this section and are given permission to do so.

SEC. 12. Records, Reports and Inspections. (a) (1) If you are a Class 1 slaughterer you must within ten (10) days after the end of each quota period mail a report. The U. S. Department of Agriculture will furnish you with Form LS-149 for the purpose of supplying certain information. You may use this form as your reporting form under this regulation by furnishing the information required by the OPS and mailing the form to the Department of Agriculture. For the quota periods April 1, 1951, to April 28, 1951, inclusive, and April 29, 1951, to May 26, 1951, inclusive, you must file the reports for OPS on Form LS-149 on the basis of two four-week operations instead of your usual accounting periods.

(2) If you are a Class 2 slaughterer and your quota bases for all species combined on an annual basis are 100,000 pounds live weight or over (as shown on your DO 1-2), you must within ten (10) days after the end of each quota period mail a report to the OPS Regional Office where you are registered. The report must be made in duplicate on OPS Form DO 1-6 and must contain all the information required by the form. For the quota period April 1, 1951 to April 28, 1951, inclusive, you must file your report on the basis of that four-week operation instead of your usual accounting period. For all subsequent periods you must report on the basis of your regular quota periods. If you have an interim quota period you must show separately on your report the amount of slaughter during the interim quota period.

(b) In addition to other records or documents required to be kept by this regulation each Class 1 and Class 2 slaughterer must keep a record for each establishment, showing:

(1) The number of head and live weight of all cattle, calves, sheep and lambs and swine, stated separately for each such species, which he slaughtered during each quota period.

(2) The name and address of each person for whom he slaughtered cattle, calves, sheep and lambs or swine and the number and live weight of each such species of livestock slaughtered by him for each of said persons during each quota period;

(3) The number of pounds of meat resulting from his slaughter of livestock, stated separately for each species, transferred during each quota period.

(4) The number of pounds of meat resulting from his slaughter of livestock for other persons, stated separately for each species, and each person, transferred during each quota period.

(5) The number of cattle hides, kips, and calfskins and sheep and lamb pelts sold or transferred by the slaughterer during each quota period. Also the names and addresses of the persons to whom they were sold or transferred and the number of each kind transferred to each person.

(c) Each Class 1 and Class 2 slaughterer must keep a copy of his registration under this regulation and the records upon which his registration was based.

(d) Each Class 1 and Class 2 slaughterer must keep a record showing the name and address of each person for whom he slaughtered cattle, calves, sheep and lambs or swine; the dates on which he slaughtered for each such person; and the number and live weight of each such species of livestock which he slaughtered for each such person on each date. He must also keep the statements given to him as required by section 5 (c) and section 6 (b).

[Paragraph (d) amended by Amdt. 2]

(e) Every person subject to this order must keep all records required under this regulation for as long as this regulation shall remain in effect.

(f) All records kept by all persons under this regulation may be inspected by the Office of Price Stabilization through any authorized representative. The inspection may be made at a person's place of business during regular business hours. Every person required to keep records under this regulation must keep them available for such inspection.

(g) The Office of Price Stabilization, through any authorized representative may, at any reasonable time, inspect any place where livestock is or has been slaughtered, and any place at which a Class 1, Class 2 or Class 3 slaughterer is located.

(h) Information and documents obtained from any person under this regulation will not be disclosed, whether in response to a subpoena or in any other way, except to that person, unless the Director of the Office of Price Stabilization (or a representative of the Office of Price Stabilization designated by him) finds that the requested disclosure is not contrary to law and consents to it.

SEC. 13. Additional prohibitions. (a) This regulation prohibits, among other matters:

(1) Making false or misleading statements on any records or reports to the Office of Price Stabilization;

(2) Altering, defacing, mutilating, or destroying any document specified herein;

(3) Forging or counterfeiting any document specified herein;

(4) Acquiring, using, transferring or possessing a forged, counterfeited, altered, defaced, or mutilated document specified herein;

(5) Wrongfully withholding a document specified herein;

(6) Bribing, hindering, or interfering with authorized Office of Price Stabilization officials; and

(7) Attempting to do any act in violation of this regulation, directly or indirectly, or to aid or encourage another to do so.

SEC. 14. Policy of this regulation. It is the policy of this regulation to maintain the normal distribution channels of the livestock and meat industry in order to promote the national defense by facilitating the production and orderly distribution of meat. In accordance with this policy, if the Office of Price Stabilization finds that the base period was not representative of the relative slaughter of Class 1 slaughterers generally, it will adjust multipliers generally in order to obtain a representative relationship. The policy of this regulation requires not only that the slaughter of livestock be maintained in normal channels but also that meat be distributed from the slaughtering plant through the normal classes of customers within geographical areas. All slaughterers, custom slaughterers, wholesalers, processors, and industrial users may be required to reflect a pattern of acquisition and distribution of livestock and meat based on all or any part of the period beginning January 1, 1950.

SEC. 15. Suppliers must sell meats to certain institutional users. (a) Any operator of a prison, jail, insane asylum, home for delinquents, or other institutions of involuntary confinement, or a public or private orphanage, or a hospital or other establishment principally engaged in the care and treatment of the sick is an institutional user. Beginning February 27, 1951, an institutional user may, for each month starting with March 1951, give written notice, personally or by registered mail, to each person from whom meat was acquired during the calendar year 1950 (or if that person transferred his establishment, to any successor currently operating the establishment) containing all of the following information:

(1) The amount, quality and types of meat acquired from the supplier during each month of the calendar year 1950;

(2) The percentage that each such monthly amount bears to the total amount of meat acquired each month by the institutional user during 1950;

(3) The estimated number of persons to be fed during the month for which this notice is given;

(4) The number of persons fed during the corresponding month in 1950;

(5) The total amount of meat required by the institutional user for the month in which the statement is made.

(The information in (1) and (2) may be omitted from any subsequent notice pursuant to (a), to the same supplier or successor to whom a previous notice, containing that information, has been given pursuant to (a).)

(b) Each supplier or successor to whom a notice is given pursuant to (a) must, irrespective of any claimed inaccuracy in the notice, sell or transfer to that institutional user, upon such user's request, during the month specified in the notice, the quantity of meat determined under (c) for the current month, to the extent that such supplier or successor has meat available for sale or transfer regardless of any other contract, agreement or commitment (except any meat which he is required to set aside under this section for any other institutional user). Such sale or transfer of meat must be of the same, comparable or reasonably substitutable types as the institutional user acquired from that supplier during 1950. The supplier or successor, however, need not sell or transfer any such meat to the institutional user unless the user is willing to acquire such meat at ceiling prices established by the Office of Price Stabilization.

NOTE: Examples of comparable and reasonably substitutable types of meat are: (1) Steaks, roasts, or chops or any wholesale cuts from which they are obtained; (2) Ground meat or stew meat and the wholesale cuts from which they are obtained; (3) Smoked meats, such as bacon, ham, or picnics; (4) Dry salt meats, such as bellies, jowls, plates, or fatback; (5) Processed meat products, such as canned meats or sausage; (6) Offal, such as livers, hearts, or kidneys; and (7) Miscellaneous items, such as tails, heads, snouts or ears. Substitutions may be made of one item for another within any of these numbered categories but you cannot substitute an item in one numbered category to replace an item in another numbered category.

(c) The quantity of meat which the supplier or successor is required under (b) to sell or transfer to institutional users giving such notice shall be determined in the following way:

(1) Divide the amount of meat sold or transferred to the institutional user by the supplier during the corresponding month in 1950 by the number of persons fed during that month.

(2) Multiply the result in (1) by the estimated number of persons to be fed in the month for which the notice in (a) is given.

(3) The result in (2), or the amount requested by the institutional user, whichever is less, is the quantity of meat which must be sold or transferred to the institutional user during the month specified in the notice.

(d) If the institutional user, during the month covered by the notice has not acquired from the supplier or successor the quantity specified in (c) for that period, the supplier or successor, upon the institutional user's request, must sell or transfer to the institutional user during the first 15 days of the next month, all or any part of the quantity not so acquired by the institutional user.

(e) Any supplier or successor who refuses to sell or transfer meat to an institutional user in the amounts required by this section may not sell or transfer any meat until he has sold or transferred to the institutional user meat in the amount required by this section. This prohibition is in addition to any action, penalties or proceedings which may be authorized by law for his failure to comply.

(f) Each notice given by the institutional user pursuant to (a) shall be deemed a certification to the Office of Price Stabilization as to the information contained in the notice.

(g) Each person to whom a notice is given pursuant to (a) must keep such notice at his establishment.

[Distribution Regulation 2, Amendment 2]

DR 2—ALLOCATION RECORDS

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.) Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), Delegation of Authority by Secretary of Agriculture to Economic Stabilization Agency with respect to allocation of Meat (16 F. R. 1272) and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order 5 (16 F. R. 1273), this Amendment 2 to Distribution Regulation 2 is hereby issued.

Preamble. This amendment makes three changes in the record keeping requirements of Distribution Regulation 2. The first makes clear that the date shown on the invoice furnished to a buyer may be the date of shipment. The second eliminates the requirement that the classification "Stag" be shown on an invoice covering a sale of beef. This corresponds to a change in CPR 24. Similarly non-official graders need not stamp the class mark "Stag" on a beef carcass. Finally, the requirement that invoices be kept is made applicable to buyers as well as sellers.

It has been represented to the Director of Price Stabilization that the requirement of official grading of meat when that meat would be graded at the lowest grades involves unnecessary expense. In order to eliminate that expense, this amendment authorizes any person to perform his own grading and grade marking of meat where he grades at the two lowest grades for beef or at the lowest grade for veal, calf, lamb, yearling mutton or mutton.

The Director of Price Stabilization has also been advised that in a few areas there are still not available a sufficient number of official graders to grade all meat. As a result, because of the limitation on non-official graders in section 5 (g), a few slaughterers might be forced to grade as "Commercial", superior grades of beef, veal or calf, or forced to grade as "Utility", superior grades of lamb, yearling mutton or mutton. This amendment therefore postpones until May 21 the effective date for the imposition of the limitations in section 5 (g) on grading and grade marking by non-official graders where, and only where, an application for the services of an official grader has been duly made and a letter subsequently received from an authorized representative of the Department of Agriculture stating that an official grader will not be available.

AMENDATORY PROVISIONS

Distribution Regulation 2 is amended in the following respects:

1. Subparagraph (1) of section 3 (a) is amended to read as follows:

(1) The date of the sale, delivery, shipment or transfer to the buyer.

2. The next to the last paragraph of section 3 (a) is amended to read as follows:

You must deliver a copy of such invoice, memorandum of sale or sales slip to the buyer and you and the buyer must each keep a copy.

3. Section 5 (c) is amended by inserting before the first sentence the following: "You may grade a carcass or wholesale cut of beef, 'Cutter' or 'Canner' and may grade mark such carcass or wholesale cut '60' or '70', yourself. You may grade a carcass or wholesale cut of veal, calf, lamb, yearling mutton or mutton, 'Cull' and may grade mark such carcass or wholesale cut '60', yourself. If you wish to have beef graded higher than 'Cutter', or veal, calf, lamb, yearling mutton or mutton graded higher than 'Cull', you must, unless paragraph (d) or (e) is applicable, apply for the services of an official grader."

4. Section 5 (g) is amended by adding after the last sentence the following: "If you perform your own grading and grade marking pursuant to a letter from a duly authorized representative of the Department of Agriculture in accordance with section 5 (c), the limitations of this section 5 (g) shall not become effective with respect to you until May 21, 1951."

5. Section 8 (d) is amended to read as follows:

(d) "Class of meat" means with respect to beef carcasses, "bull".

6. Section 2 of Appendix A is amended to read as follows:

2. GRADE MARKS

The appropriate grade mark for each grade of beef shall be as follows:

Grade	Grade mark
	By official graders	By other than official graders
Prime	Prime	110
Choice	Choice	120
Good	Good	130
Commercial	Commercial	40
Utility	Utility	50
Cutter	Cutter	60
Canner	Canner	70

[1] Not to be used on and after May 21, 1951.

The word "BULL" where applicable shall be stamped on each wholesale cut.

7. The table under section 2 of Appendix B is amended to read as follows:

Grade	Grade mark
	By official graders	By other than official graders
Prime	Prime	11
Choice	Choice	12
Good	Good	13
Commercial	Commercial	4
Utility	Utility	5
Cull	Cull	6

[1] Not to be used on and after May 21, 1951, except when carcass with skin on has been graded by an official grader.

8. The table under section 2 of Appendix C is amended to read as follows:

Grade	Grade mark
	By official graders	By other than official graders
Prime	Prime	11
Choice	Choice	12
Good	Good	13
Utility	Utility	5
Cull	Cull	6

[1] Not to be used on and after May 21, 1951.

(Sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply Title IV, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105, 3 CFR 1950 Supp.)

Effective date. The provisions of this amendment shall be effective on and after May 12, 1951.

NOTE: All record keeping and reporting requirements of this amendment have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Chapter VI—National Production Authority, Department of Commerce

[NPA Order M-3, as amended May 11, 1951]

M-3—COLUMBIUM- AND TANTALUM-BEARING STEELS—PRODUCTION AND USE

This order as amended is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the authority granted by section 101 of the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this order as amended there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations.

This amendment affects NPA Order M-3, as amended April 6, 1951, by amending section 4; by amending section 6 and redesignating it as 6 (a); and by adding new paragraphs (b) and (c) to section 6. As so amended, NPA Order M-3 reads as follows:

Sec.
1. What this order does.
2. DO ratings required.
3. Use of substitutes.
4. Restrictions.
5. Conservation of scrap.
6. Exceptions.
7. Application for adjustment or exception.
8. Communications.
9. Records and reports.
10. Violations.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 10 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105, 3 CFR, 1950 Supp.; sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this order does. This order applies to columbium- and tantalum-bearing steels and to the producers, dealers and users thereof. In view of the fact that columbium, ferro-columbium and ferro-columbium-tantalum are in short supply, it is essential that the production, distribution and use of columbium- and tantalum-bearing steels be limited to DO rated orders and NPA directives. This order, in addition, prohibits the use of columbium-bearing steels in any application or process where columbium - tantalum - bearing steels may be used as a substitute for columbium-bearing steels; forbids the use of either if the use of any other substitute will meet the requirements of the use to be made of the material; and restricts the use of columbium and tantalum in the production of steel.

SEC. 2. DO ratings required. Except as may be otherwise ordered by NPA, no columbium- or columbium-tantalum-bearing steels shall be produced, sold, delivered, or purchased except pursuant to DO rated orders or NPA directives: Provided, That with respect to columbium- or columbium-tantalum-bearing steels, the rating DO-01 shall be valid for deliveries on and after July 1, 1951, only when supported by a certification that delivery of the quantity specified as and when ordered has been approved and authorized by the Aircraft Production Resources Agency. Such certification shall be as follows:

Certified as approved by APRA.

Such certification shall constitute a representation by the purchaser to the supplier and to NPA that the purchaser has been duly authorized by the Aircraft Production Resources Agency to accept delivery of such steel, and is entitled to accept such delivery as permitted in this order. The certification required by this section shall be in addition to the certification required by NPA Reg. 2.

SEC. 3. Use of substitutes. No columbium-bearing steel shall be used or incorporated in any product or material if columbium-tantalum-bearing steel will meet the requirements for the use to be made of the product or material. In no case shall any columbium- or columbium-tantalum-bearing steel be used or incorporated in any product or material if any substitute therefor will meet the requirements for the use to be made of the product or material.

SEC. 4 Restrictions. Subject to the exceptions of section 6 of this order, no person, in the production of any columbium- or columbium-tantalum-bearing steels, shall use more columbium or columbium-tantalum than is reasonably required to assure a ratio between columbium or columbium-tantalum and carbon in such steels greater than 8 to 1 as a minimum: Provided, however, That in cases where the material specifications require corrosion-testing of sensitized specimens, no person shall use more columbum or columbium-tantalum in such steel products than is reasonably required to assure that such steels will meet the specific requirements with respect to corrosion-testing: And provided further, That when practical melting schedules appropriate to achieve maximum production necessitate the inclusion in single heat lots of steels requiring corrosion-testing with steels not requiring such testing, such amount of columbium or columbium-tantalum may be used as will assure steels which will meet the highest corrosion-testing requirements of any such steels included in any such single heat lot.

SEC. 5. Conservation of scrap. No person shall dispose of any columbium- or columbium-tantalum-bearing scrap which is fit for remelting except for use in the production of columbium- or columbium-tantalum-bearing steel.

SEC. 6. Exceptions. (a) This order shall not prohibit the completion of the production and the delivery of materials or products containing columbium or tantalum in any form ordered and accepted prior to April 6, 1951, which, by reason of the condition or nature of the materials or products, cannot, without excessive loss of yield, be used in connection with DO rated orders; nor shall it prohibit the use, in filling DO rated orders, of columbium-bearing steel or columbium-tantalum-bearing steel held on or before April 6, 1951, in the inventory of a producer or fabricator of steel products.

(b) The restrictions of section 4 of this order shall not apply to the production of welding rods.

(c) Any DO-01 rated order for columbium- or columbium-tantalum-bearing steels, authorized by the Aircraft Production Resources Agency pursuant to section 2 of this order, is exempt from the restrictions of section 4 of this order to the extent required by the specifications contained in such APRA authorization.

SECTION 1. What this order does. The purpose of this order is to conserve and provide for an equitable distribution of cattlehides, calfskins, and kips so as best to serve the interests of the national defense. It prohibits, subject to limited exceptions, the sale and delivery of such hides and skins unless specifically allocated by authorizations to be issued by NPA.

SEC. 3. Restrictions on purchase, sale and delivery of domestic cattlehides, calfskins, and kips; allocation by NPA. (a) After the effective date of this order no person shall sell, deliver (including delivery to a tannery owned or controlled by him), purchase, or accept delivery of any untanned domestic cattlehide, calfskin, or kip, the ownership or possession of which was acquired on or after February 5, 1951, except to the extent that the purchaser shall be specifically authorized by NPA on Form NPAF-34, Form NPAF-37: Provided, however, That the following may be effected without such authorization:

(1) The sale and delivery of such hides or skins between domestic collectors or between a domestic producer and a domestic collector for purposes of resale within the United States.

(2) The sale and delivery to and the purchase and acceptance of delivery by any person, other than a tanner or contractor, of less than 100 cattlehides, calfskins, or kips in any calendar month.

(3) The sale and delivery to and purchase and acceptance of delivery by any person of the number of domestic cattlehides, calfskins, or kips for export to any place outside the United States, other than Canada, pursuant to a license to export such hides or skins granted to him by the Office of International Trade, provided that such person duly signs a certification on his purchase order delivered to the seller of such hides or skins, as follows:

Certified under M-35

Such certification constitutes a representation to the seller and to NPA that the purchaser is authorized under the provisions of this order to accept delivery of such hides or skins and that he has received such a license for their export.

(b) An application for the purchase of domestic cattlehides shall be made on Form NPAF-34 and an application for the purchase of domestic calfskins or kips shall be made on Form NPAF-37. Either or both such forms, as the case may be, shall be filed with NPA on or before March 10, 1951, and on or before the 10th day of each succeeding month.

(c) Each person receiving an authorization from NPA to purchase domestic cattlehides, calfskins, or kips, either on Form NPAF-35 or NPAF-37, shall send in a copy thereof all his purchases made pursuant to such authorization. Shall furnish all other information required thereby, and shall return such copy to NPA within 10 days after the date of the expiration of such authorization specified therein.

(d) In any action which may be taken pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section, it will be the policy of NPA, so far as practicable, to grant authorizations to purchase so that:

(1) A tanner or contractor may obtain domestic cattlehides, calfskins, or kips in the proportion that his total wettings in 1950 of cattlehides, calfskins, and kips (including imports), respectively, bear to the total wettings of cattlehides, calfskins, and kips (including imports), respectively, of all contractors and tanners combined in 1950, except that authorizations to tanners or contractors having more than a practicable minimum working inventory or who do not meet a specific defense program as may be directed by NPA, may be reduced or omitted; and

(2) A contractor will contract with the same tanner or tanners, as the case may be, and in the same proportions, as in the most recent period prior to the effective date of this order when such contractual arrangements existed.

SEC. 4. Restrictions upon certain cuttings of untanned cattlehides. No producer or collector shall cut off bellies or shoulders of untanned cattlehides except for a purchaser specifically authorized in writing by NPA to purchase hides with such portions cut off.

SEC. 5. Effect upon other NPA regulations and orders. This order supersedes NPA Order M-35, effective February 5, 1951, but nothing herein shall affect any liabilities incurred under such superseded order. If any provision of this order is in conflict with NPA Reg. 1 or NPA Reg. 2, such provision of this order shall govern. Notwithstanding the provisions of NPA Reg. 2, a DO rating shall not be applied or extended to obtain delivery of any cattlehide, calfskin, or kip.

SEC. 6. Applications for adjustment or exception. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file with NPA a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that such provision works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry or that its enforcement against him would not be in the interests of national defense or in the public interest. In considering requests for adjustment which claim that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each such request shall be in writing and shall set forth all pertinent facts, the nature of the relief sought, and the justification therefor.

SEC. 7. Records. Each person participating in any transaction covered by this order shall retain in his possession for at least 2 years records of receipts, deliveries, inventories, and use, in sufficient detail to permit an audit that determines for each transaction that the provisions of this order have been met. This does not specify any particular accounting method and does not require alteration of the system of records customarily maintained, provided such records supply an adequate basis for audit. Records may be retained in the form of microfilm or other photographic copies instead of the originals.

SEC. 8. Audit and inspection. All records required by this order shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of NPA.

SEC. 9. Reports. (a) Regardless of whether he files any application referred to in section 3 (b) of this order, every contractor shall report to NPA each month on Form NPAF-34 and Form NPAF-36, his wettings and raw stock, and every tanner shall report to NPA each month on such forms, his wettings and raw stock, if any, and his leather production, for the calendar month immediately preceding the month in which such reports are required by this order to be filed. Either or both such forms, as the case may be, shall be filed with NPA on or before March 10, 1951, and on or before the 10th day of each month thereafter. All other information required by such forms shall be furnished.

(b) Persons subject to this order shall make such records and submit such other reports to NPA as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act of 1942 (5 U. S. C. 139–139F).

SEC. 10. Communications. All communications and reports concerning this order shall be addressed to National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: M-35.

SEC. 11. Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provision of this order or any other order or regulation of NPA or who wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information in the course of operation under this order is guilty of a crime and, upon conviction, may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

NOTE: All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This order as amended shall take effect on May 11, 1951.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Production and Marketing Administration

U. S. STANDARDS FOR SWEETPOTATOES FOR CANNING

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

Notice is hereby given that the United States Department of Agriculture is considering the issuance of United States Standards for Sweetpotatoes for Canning under the authority contained in the Department of Agriculture Appropriation Act, 1951 (Pub. Law 759, 81st Cong., approved September 6, 1950).

All persons who desire to submit written data, views or arguments for consideration in connection with the proposed standards should file the same with M. W. Baker, Deputy Director, Fruit and Vegetable Branch, Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, South Building, Washington 25, D. C., not later than 5:30 p. m. e. s. t. on the thirtieth (30) day after the publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

The proposed standards are as follows:

§ 51.372 Standards for sweetpotatoes for canning—(a) Grades—(1) U. S. No. 1. U. S. No. 1 consists of sweetpotatoes of similar type which are firm, fairly well shaped, free from soft rot, black rot, cull material, freezing injury, scald, cork or other internal discoloration, and free from damage caused by dry rot other than black rot, other diseases, bruises, cuts, growth cracks, pithiness, wireworm, weevil, other insects, stringiness, sunburn, mechanical or other means.

(i) Unless otherwise specified, each sweetpotato shall be not more than 5 inches in length, or more than 2 inches in diameter or less than 1½ inches in diameter. (See Tolerances, paragraph (c) of this section.)

(2) U. S. No. 2. U. S. No. 2 consists of sweetpotatoes of similar type which are firm, not badly misshapen, free from soft rot, black rot, cull material, freezing injury, scald, and free from serious damage caused by dry rot other than black rot, other diseases, bruises, cuts, cork or other internal discoloration, growth cracks, pithiness, wireworm, weevil, other insects, stringiness, sunburn, mechanical or other means.

(i) Unless otherwise specified, each sweetpotato shall be not more than 9 inches in length, or more than 2¼ inches in diameter or less than 1¼ inches in diameter. (See Tolerances, paragraph (c) of this section.)

(b) Culls. Culls consists of sweetpotatoes which fail to meet the requirements of either U. S. No. 1 or U. S. No. 2 grades.

(c) Tolerances. In the application of these standards, it is assumed that in most instances sellers will not sort their sweetpotatoes into separate lots of U. S. No. 1 and U. S. No. 2 grades before delivery to the buyer. In such cases there is no need for tolerances. If the contract between the buyer and seller calls for the delivery of lots containing only one grade, such as U. S. No. 1 or U. S. No. 2, or a combination of U. S. No. 1 and U. S. No. 2 grades, then unless otherwise specified, a tolerance of 10 percent, by weight, shall be allowed for sweetpotatoes which fail to meet the requirements of the grade, other than for size and cull material: Provided, That, not more than one-fifth of this amount, or 2 percent, shall be allowed for sweet potatoes affected by soft rot or black rot. In addition, not more than 2 percent, by weight, shall be allowed for cull material. An additional tolerance of 10 percent, by weight, shall be allowed for sweetpotatoes which fail to meet the specified size requirements: Provided, That, not more than one-half of this amount, or 5 percent, shall be allowed for sweetpotatoes below the specified minimum diameter.

(d) Definitions. (1) "Similar type" means that the sweetpotatoes have the same type of flesh and that the flesh of the sweetpotatoes does not show material variation in color. For example, dry type shall not be mixed with moist type and white fleshed varieties shall not be mixed with yellow- or orange-fleshed varieties.

(2) "Firm" means that the sweetpotato is not soft, flabby or excessively shriveled.

(3) "Fairly well shaped" means that the sweetpotato is not materially curved, crooked, constricted, grooved, flattened, or otherwise materially misshapen for canning purposes.

(4) "Cull material" means pieces of sweetpotatoes, vines, root crowns, sprouts, secondary rootlets, loose dirt, adhering caked dirt or other foreign matter. Sweetpotatoes with attached vines, strings, root crowns, sprouts, secondary rootlets, and adhering caked dirt shall not be scored against U. S. No. 1 or U. S. No. 2 grades, but such vines, root crowns, sprouts, secondary rootlets, and adhering caked dirt shall be removed from the sweetpotato and scored as cull material.

(5) "Damage" means any injury or defect which materially affects the edible or canning quality, or which cannot be removed in the ordinary process of trimming without a loss of more than 5 percent of the total weight of the sweetpotato, including peel covering the defective area.

(6) "Badly misshapen" means that the sweetpotato is so curved, crooked, grooved, constricted, flattened, or otherwise misshapen to the extent that the canning quality is seriously affected.

(7) "Serious damage" means any injury or defect which seriously affects the edible or canning quality, or which cannot be removed in the ordinary process of trimming without a loss of more than 10 percent of the total weight of the sweetpotato, including peel covering the defective area.

(8) "Diameter" means the greatest dimension of the sweetpotato measured at right angles to the longitudinal axis.

U. S. STANDARDS FOR SWEETPOTATOES FOR DICING OR PULPING

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

Notice is hereby given that the United States Department of Agriculture is considering the issuance of United States Standards for Sweetpotatoes for Dicing or Pulping under the authority contained in the Department of Agriculture Appropriation Act, 1951 (Pub. Law 759, 81st Cong., approved September 6, 1950).

All persons who desire to submit written data, views or arguments for consideration in connection with the proposed standards should file the same with M. W. Baker, Deputy Director, Fruit and Vegetable Branch, Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, South Building, Washington 25, D. C., not later than 5:30 p. m. e. s. t. on the thirtieth (30) day after the publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

The proposed amendments are as follows:

§ 51.373 Standards for sweetpotatoes for dicing or pulping—(a) Grades (1)—U. S. No. 1. U. S. No. 1 consists of sweetpotatoes of similar type which are firm, not badly misshapen, free from soft rot, black rot, cull material, freezing injury, scald, cork or other internal discoloration, and free from damage caused by dry rot other than black rot, other diseases, bruises, cuts, growth cracks, pithiness, wireworm, weevil, other insects, stringiness, sunburn, mechanical or other means. (See Size and Tolerances, paragraphs (c) and (d) of this section.)

(2) U. S. No. 2. U. S. No. 2 consists of sweetpotatoes of similar type which are firm, free from soft rot, black rot, cull material, freezing injury, and free from serious damage caused by dry rot other than black rot, other diseases, bruises, cuts, cork or other internal discoloration, growth cracks, pithiness, scald, wireworm, weevil, other insects, stringiness, sunburn, mechanical or other means. (See Size and Tolerances, paragraphs (c) and (d) of this section.)

(b) Culls. Culls consists of sweetpotatoes which fail to meet the requirements of either U. S. No. 1 or U. S. No. 2 grades.

(c) Size. The minimum or the minimum and maximum sizes for the foregoing grades may be specified by agreement between buyer and seller. Size shall be stated in terms of diameter.

(d) Tolerances. In the application of these standards, it is assumed that in most instances sellers will not sort their sweetpotatoes into separate lots of U. S. No. 1 and U. S. No. 2 grades before delivery to the buyer. In such cases there is no need for tolerances. If the contract between buyer and seller calls for the delivery of lots containing only one grade, such as U. S. No. 1 or U. S. No. 2, or a combination of U. S. No. 1 and U. S. No. 2 grades, then unless otherwise specified, a tolerance of 10 percent, by weight, shall be allowed for sweetpotatoes which fail to meet the requirements of the grade, other than for size and cull material: Provided, That, not more than one-fifth of this amount or 2 percent, shall be allowed for sweetpotatoes affected by soft rot or black rot. In addition, not more than 2 percent, by weight, shall be allowed for cull material. An additional tolerance of 15 percent, by weight, shall be allowed for sweetpotatoes which fail to meet the specified size requirements: Provided, That, not more than one-third of this amount, or 5 percent, shall be allowed for sweet potatoes below the specified minimum diameter.

(e) Definitions. (1) "Similar type" means that the sweetpotatoes have the same type of flesh and that the flesh of the sweetpotatoes does not show material variation in color. For example, dry type shall not be mixed with moist type and white-fleshed varieties shall not be mixed with yellow- or orange-fleshed varieties.

(2) "Firm" means that the sweetpotato is not soft, flabby or excessively shriveled.

(3) "Badly misshapen" means that the sweetpotato is so curved, crooked, grooved, constricted, flattened, or otherwise misshapen to the extent that the processing quality is materially affected.

(4) "Cull material" means pieces of sweetpotatoes, vines, root crowns, sprouts, secondary rootlets, loose dirt, adhering caked dirt or other foreign matter. Sweetpotatoes with attached vines, strings, root crowns, sprouts, secondary rootlets, and adhering caked dirt shall not be scored against U. S. No. 1 or U. S. No. 2 grades, but such vines, root crowns, sprouts, secondary rootlets, and adhering caked dirt shall be removed from the sweetpotato and scored as cull material.

(5) "Damage" means any injury or defect which materially affects the edible or processing quality, or which cannot be removed in the ordinary process of trimming without a loss of more than 10 percent of the total weight of the sweetpotato, including peel covering the defective area.

(6) "Serious damage" means any injury or defect which seriously affects the edible or processing quality, or which cannot be removed in the ordinary process of trimming without a loss of more than 25 percent of the total weight of the sweetpotato, including peel covering the defective area.

(7) "Diameter" means the greatest dimension of the sweetpotato measured at right angles to the longitudinal axis.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 9th day of May 1951.

U. S. STANDARDS FOR APPLES; REVISION

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

On August 2, 1950, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (15 F. R. 4950) regarding a proposed revision of the United States Standards for Apples. A period of thirty days was allowed for submitting written data, views and arguments for consideration in connection with the proposed standards. During this time representatives throughout most of the eastern apple producing regions requested an extension of time for consideration of the proposed standards. This request was granted and the time was extended until March 31, 1951, for submitting written data, views and arguments regarding the proposed standards (15 F. R. 6257). In view of the comments and suggestions received from apple industry representatives, a new revision of the United States Standards for Apples is hereby proposed, under the authority contained in the Department of Agriculture Appropriation Act, 1951 (Pub. Law 759, 81st Cong., approved September 6, 1950) to supersede United States Standards for Apples (S. R. A.-P. M. A. 154) issued October 1937 and reissued October 1947. The standards are proposed to become effective during July of 1951.

All persons who desire to submit written data, views or arguments for consideration in connection with the proposed standards should file the same with M. W. Baker, Deputy Director, Fruit and Vegetable Branch, Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, South Building, Washington 25, D. C., not later than 5:30 p. m., e. s. t., on the thirtieth (30) day after publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

The proposed standards are as follows:

(2) U. S. Fancy. U. S. Fancy consists of apples of one variety which are mature but not overripe, carefully handpicked, clean, fairly well formed; free from decay, internal browning, internal breakdown, bitter pit, Jonathan spot, scald, freezing injury, broken skins and bruises (except those incident to proper handling and packing), and visible water core. The apples shall also be free from damage caused by russeting, sunburn or spray burn, limb rubs, hail, drought spots, scars, stem or calyx cracks, other diseases, insects, or mechanical or other means. Each apple of this grade shall have the amount of color specified hereinafter for the variety. (See Color Requirements, subparagraph (9) of this paragraph. Tolerances, paragraph (c) of this section, and Condition after Storage or Transit, paragraph (f) of this section.)

(3) U. S. No. 1. The requirements for this grade are the same as U. S. Fancy except for color and russeting. In this grade less color is required for all varieties except yellow and green varieties, for which the requirements for both grades are the same. Apples of this grade shall be free from excessive damage caused by russeting which means that they shall meet the russeting requirements for U. S. Fancy as defined under the definitions of "damage by russeting": Provided, That, the aggregate area of an apple which may be covered by smooth net-like russeting shall not exceed 25 percent: And further provided, That, the aggregate area of an apple which may be covered by smooth solid russeting shall not exceed 10 percent. (See Color Requirements, subparagraph (9) of this paragraph, Tolerances, paragraph (c) of this section, and Condition after Storage or Transit, paragraph (f) of this section.)

(4) U. S. No. 1 Cookers. U. S. No. 1 Cookers consists of apples of one variety which meet the requirements of U. S. No. 1 grade except as to color. This grade is provided for apples which are mature but which may not have sufficient color to meet the specifications of U. S. No. 1. (See Tolerances, paragraph (c) of this section, and Condition after Storage or Transit, paragraph (f) of this section.)

(5) U. S. No. 1 Early. U. S. No. 1 Early consists of apples of one variety which meet the requirements of U. S. No. 1 grade except as to color, maturity and size. Apples of this grade have no color requirements, need not be mature and shall be not less than 2 inches in diameter. This grade is provided for varieties such as Duchess, Gravenstein, Red June, Twenty Ounce, Wealthy, Williams, Yellow Transparent, and Lodi, or other varieties which are normally marketed during the summer months. (See Tolerances, paragraph (c) of this section, and Condition after Storage or Transit, paragraph (f) of this section.)

(6) U. S. Utility. U. S. Utility consists of apples of one variety which are mature but not overripe, carefully handpicked, not seriously deformed; free from decay, internal browning, internal breakdown, scald and freezing injury. The apples shall also be free from serious damage caused by dirt or other foreign matter, broken skins, bruises, russeting, sunburn, spray burn, limb rubs, hail, drought spots, scars, stem or calyx cracks, visible water core, other diseases, insects, or mechanical or other means. (See Tolerances, paragraph (c) of this section, and Condition after Storage or Transit, paragraph (f) of this section.)

(7) Combination grades. Combinations of the above grades can be used as follows:

Combination U. S. Extra Fancy and U. S. Fancy.
Combination U. S. Fancy and U. S. No. 1.
Combination U. S. No. 1 and U. S. Utility.

(i) Combinations other than these are not permitted in connection with the United States apple grades. When Combination U. S. Extra Fancy and U. S. Fancy is packed, at least 25 percent of the apples in any lot shall meet the requirements of the higher grade in the combination. When Combination U. S. Fancy and U. S. No. 1 or Combination U. S. No. 1 and U. S. Utility are packed, at least 50 percent of the apples in any lot shall meet the requirements of the higher grade in the combination. (See Color Requirements, subparagraph (9) of this paragraph, Tolerances, paragraph (c) of this section, and Condition after Storage or Transit, paragraph (f) of this section.)

(8) U. S. Hail grade. U. S. Hail grade consists of apples which meet the requirements of U. S. No. 1 grade except that hail marks where the skin has not been broken and well healed hail marks where the skin has been broken shall be permitted, provided the apples are fairly well formed. (See Color Requirements, subparagraph (9) of this paragraph, Tolerances, paragraph (c) of this section, and Conditions after Storage or Transit, paragraph (f) of this section.)

(9) Color requirements. In addition to the requirements specified for the above grades, apples of these grades shall have the percentage of color specified for the variety in Table I appearing in this subparagraph. For the solid red varieties the percentage stated refers to the area of the surface which must be covered with a good shade of solid red characteristic of the variety: Provided, That, an apple having color of a lighter shade of solid red or striped red than that considered as a good shade of red characteristic of the variety may be admitted to a grade, provided it has sufficient additional area covered so that the apple has as good an appearance as one with the minimum percentage of good red characteristic of the variety required for the grade. For the striped red varieties the percentage stated refers to the area of the surface in which the stripes of good shade of red characteristic of the variety shall predominate over stripes of lighter red, green, or yellow. However, an apple having color of a lighter shade than that considered as a good shade of red characteristic of the variety may be admitted to a grade: Provided, That, it has sufficient additional area covered so that the apple has as good an appearance as one with the minimum percentage of stripes of a good red characteristic of the variety required for the grade. Faded brown stripes shall not be considered as color except in the case of the Gray Baldwin variety.

[6] Duchess, Red Astrachan, Smokehouse, Summer Rambo.
[8] None.
[9] Characteristic ground color.
[10] 75 percent characteristic color. NOTE "Characteristic color", when the white ground the fruit is predominates over the green color, creating a mottling effect on the surface of the apple, it shall be considered as the minimum characteristic color.

(b) Unclassified. Unclassified consists of apples which are not graded in conformity with any of the foregoing grades. The term "unclassified" is not a grade within the meaning of these standards but is provided as a designation to show that no definite grade has been applied to the lot.

(c) Tolerances. In order to allow for variations incident to proper grading and handling, not more than a total of 10 percent of the apples in any lot may fail to meet the requirements of the grade: Provided, That, not more than one-half of this amount, or 5 percent, shall be allowed for apples which are seriously damaged by insects and including not more than 1 percent for apples affected by decay or internal breakdown or both.

(1) When applying the foregoing tolerances to Combination U. S. Extra Fancy and U. S. Fancy grade, no part of any tolerance shall be allowed to reduce, for the lot as a whole, the 25 percent of apples of the higher grade required in the combination, but individual containers shall have not less than 15 percent of the higher grade.

(2) When applying the foregoing tolerances to Combination U. S. Fancy and U. S. No. 1 grade and to Combination U. S. No. 1 and U. S. Utility grade, no part of any tolerance shall be allowed to reduce, for the lot as a whole, the 50 percent of apples of the higher grade required in the combination, but individual containers shall have not less than 40 percent of the higher grade.

(d) Application of tolerances to individual packages. The contents of individual packages in the lot, based on sample inspection, are subject to the following limitations, provided the averages for the entire lot are within the tolerances specified for the grade:

(1) For packages which contain more than 10 pounds, and a tolerance of 10 percent or more is provided (as in the case of size, where a tolerance of 15 percent is provided) individual packages in any lot shall have not more than one and one-half times the tolerance specified. For packages which contain more than 10 pounds and a tolerance of less than 10 percent is provided, individual packages in any lot shall have not more than double the tolerance specified, except that at least one apple which is seriously damaged by insects or affected by decay or internal breakdown may be permitted in any package.

(2) For packages which contain 10 pounds or less, individual packages in any lot are not restricted as to the percentage of defects: Provided, That, not more than one apple which is seriously damaged by insects or affected by decay or internal breakdown may be permitted in any package.

(e) Basis of calculating percentages. (1) When the numerical count is marked on the container, percentages shall be calculated on the basis of count.

(2) When the minimum diameter or minimum and maximum diameters are marked on the container, percentages shall be calculated on the basis of weight.

(3) When the apples are in bulk, percentages shall be calculated on the basis of weight.

(f) Condition after storage or transit. Decay, scald, or any other deterioration which may have developed on apples after they have been in storage or transit shall be considered as affecting condition and not the grade.

(g) Size requirements. (1) The numerical count or the minimum diameter of the apples packed in a closed container shall be indicated on the container.

(2) When the numerical count is marked on the container the minimum size of the largest apple shall be not more than one-fourth inch larger than the minimum size of the smallest apple.

(3) When the numerical count is not shown the minimum diameter shall be plainly stamped, stenciled, or otherwise marked on the container in terms of whole inches, whole and half inches, whole and quarter inches, or whole and eighth inches, as 2½ inches minimum, 2¼ inches minimum, or 2⅝ inches minimum, in accordance with the facts. It is suggested that both minimum and maximum diameters be marked on the container, as 2¼ to 2¾ inches, or 2½ to 2¾ inches, as such marking is especially desirable for apples marketed in the export trade.

(4) The measurement for minimum size shall be the largest diameter of the apple taken at right angles to a line from the stem end to the blossom end. The measurement for maximum size shall be the smallest dimension of the apple determined by passing the apple through a round opening.

(5) In order to allow for variations incident to proper sizing, not more than 5 percent of the apples in any lot may not meet the size requirements: Provided, That, when the maximum and minimum sizes are both stated, an additional 10 percent tolerance shall be allowed for apples which are larger than the maximum size stated.

(h) Packing requirements. (1) Each package shall be packed so that the apples on the shown face shall be reasonably representative in size, color and quality of the contents of the package.

(2) Boxes: (i) Apples packed in the standard northwestern apple boxes shall be arranged in the containers according to the approved and recognized methods with the stems pointing toward the ends of the boxes, except when jumbled. All packages shall be well filled but not to the extent as to cause excessive or unnecessary bruising to the apples because of overfilled packages. Apples packed in the standard northwestern apple boxes shall be tightly packed with sufficient bulge to prevent any appreciable movement of the apples within the containers when lidded. Each wrapped apple shall be completely enclosed by its individual wrapper.

(ii) Apples packed in other type boxes, such as nailed wooden boxes, wire-bound boxes, and fibreboard boxes, may be place packed, jumble packed faced, or jumbled packed, and all packs shall be well filled.

(iii) Apples packed in boxes equipped with cell compartments or molded trays shall be of the proper size for the cells or the molds in which they are packed.

(iv) Apples packed in consumer unit cartons and packed into shipping containers shall completely fill the shipping container.

(3) Baskets: Apples packed in U. S. standard bushel baskets, one-half bushel baskets and five-eighths bushel baskets may be ring faced and shall be tightly packed with sufficient bulge to prevent any appreciable movement of the apples within the containers when lidded.

(4) Barrels: Apples packed in barrels shall be tightly packed.

(5) In order to allow for variations incident to proper packing, not more than 5 percent of the containers in any lot may not meet these requirements.

(i) Suggestions for marking containers. (1) In order to conserve space, abbreviations may be used for marking United States grade names on containers. The following abbreviations are suggested where it is not desired to use the full grade name:

(i) U. S. Ex. Fcy. for U. S. Extra Fancy.
(ii) U. S. Fcy. for U. S. Fancy.
(iii) U. S. No. 1 for U. S. No. 1.
(iv) U. S. Util. for U. S. Utility.
(v) Combination grades may be designated by abbreviations of the grades preceded by the abbreviation "Comb.", as "Comb. U. S. Fcy.-U. S. No. 1".

(j) Standards for export, as applied to condition factors: (1) The apples in any lot shall be generally tightly packed when in barrels or baskets, and generally fairly tightly or tightly packed, when in boxes.

(2) Not more than 5 percent of the apples in any lot shall be further advanced in maturity than firm ripe.

(3) Not more than 5 percent of the apples in any lot shall be damaged by storage scab.

(4) Not more than a total of 5 percent of the apples in any lot shall be damaged by bitter pit, Jonathan spot, scald, internal breakdown, water core, freezing, decay, or other such condition factors: Provided, That,

(i) Not more than 2 percent shall be allowed for apples affected by decay;

(ii) Not more than 2 percent shall be allowed for damage by internal breakdown;

(iii) Not more than 2 percent of slight scald shall be permitted for apples properly packed in oiled paper or which have been especially treated with oil to prevent scald; otherwise, the apples must be free from scald.

(5) Any lot of apples shall be considered as meeting the standards for export if the entire lot averages within the requirements specified: Provided, That, no sample from the containers in any lot is found to exceed double the percentages specified.

(k) Definitions. (1) "Mature" means that the apples have reached the stage of growth which will insure the proper completion of the ripening process. Before a mature apple becomes overripe it will show varying degrees of firmness, depending upon the stage of the ripening process. The following terms are used for describing these different stages of firmness of apples:

(i) "Hard" means apples with a tenacious flesh and starchy flavor. Apples at this stage are suitable for storage and long-distance shipment.

(ii) "Firm" means apples with a tenacious flesh but which are becoming crisp with a slight starchy flavor, except the Delicious variety. Apples at this stage are also suitable for storage and long-distance shipment.

(iii) "Firm ripe" means apples with crisp flesh except that the flesh of the apples of the Gano, Ben Davis, and Rome Beauty varieties may be slightly mealy. Apples at this stage may be shipped long distances but should be moved into consumption within a short period of time.

(iv) "Ripe" means apples with mealy flesh and soon to become soft for the variety. Apples at this stage should be moved immediately into consumption.

(2) "Overripe" means apples which are dead ripe, with flesh very mealy or soft, and past commercial utility.

(3) "Carefully hand-picked" means that the apples do not show evidence of rough handling or of having been on the ground.

(4) "Clean" means that the apples are free from excessive dirt, dust, spray residue and other foreign material.

(5) "Well formed" means that the apple has the normal shape characteristic of the variety, except that the shape may be slightly irregular, provided, it does not detract from the general appearance of the apple.

(6) "Injury" means any defect which more than slightly affects the appearance, or the edible or shipping quality of the apples.

(i) Russeting in the stem cavity or calyx basin which cannot be seen when the apple is placed stem end or calyx end down on a flat surface, shall not be considered in determining whether or not an apple is injured by russeting, except that rough or bark-like russeting in the stem cavity or calyx basin shall be considered as injury when the appearance of the apple is materially affected. The following types and amounts of russeting outside of the stem cavity or calyx basin, shall be considered as injury:

(a) Smooth net-like russeting when an aggregate area of more than 5 percent of the surface is covered, and the color of the russeting shows no very pronounced contrast with the background color of the apple, or lesser amounts of more conspicuous solid russeting when the appearance is affected to a greater extent than the above amount permitted.

(c) Slightly rough russeting which covers an aggregate area of more than one-fourth inch in diameter.

(d) Rough russeting, unless it is well within the stem cavity or calyx basin and is not readily apparent.

(ii) Any one of the following defects, or any combination thereof, the seriousness of which exceeds the maximum allowed for any one defect, shall be considered as injury:

(a) Sunburn or spray burn, when the discolored area does not blend into the normal color of the fruit.

(b) Dark brown or black limb rubs which affect a total area of more than one-eighth inch in diameter, except that light brown limb rubs of a russet character shall be considered under the definition of injury by russeting.

[1] The area refers to that of a circle of the specified diameter.

(c) Hail marks, drought spots or other similar depressions or scars where there is appreciable discoloration other than russetting, or when the indentations are not superficial, or when an individual indentation exceeds one-eighth inch in diameter, or the total affected area exceeds one-fourth inch in diameter.[1]

(d) Stem or calyx cracks which are not well healed, or well healed stem or calyx cracks which exceed a length of one-eighth inch.

(e) Diseases: (1) Cedar rust infection which affects a total area of more than one-eighth inch in diameter.[1]

(2) Sooty blotch or fly speck which is thinly scattered over more than 5 percent of the surface, or dark, heavily concentrated spots which affect an area of more than one-fourth inch in diameter.[1]

(3) Red skin spots which are thinly scattered over more than one-tenth of the surface, or dark, heavily concentrated spots which affect an area of more than one-fourth inch in diameter.[1]

(f) Insects: (1) Any healed sting or healed stings which affect a total area of more than one-eighth inch in diameter including any encircling discolored rings.[1]

(2) Worm holes.

(7) "Fairly well formed" means that the apple may be slightly abnormal in shape but not to an extent which detracts materially from its appearance.

(8) "Damage" means any defect which materially affects the appearance, or the edible or shipping quality of the apples.

(i) Russeting in the stem cavity or calyx basin which cannot be seen when the apple is placed stem end or calyx end down on a flat surface shall not be considered in determining whether or not an apple is damaged by russeting, except that excessively rough or bark-like russeting in the stem cavity or calyx basin shall be considered as damage when the appearance of the apple is materially affected. The following types and amounts of russeting outside of the stem cavity or calyx basin, shall be considered as damage:

(a) Russeting which is excessively rough on Roxbury Russet and other similar varieties.

(c) Smooth solid russeting, when an aggregate area of more than 5 percent of the surface is covered, and the pattern and color of the russeting shows no very pronounced contrast with the background color of the apple, or lesser amounts of more conspicuous solid russeting when the appearance is affected to a greater extent than the above amount permitted.

[1] The area refers to that of a circle of the specified diameter.

(d) Slightly rough russeting which covers an aggregate area of more than one-half inch in diameter.[1]

(e) Rough russeting which exceeds one-fourth inch in diameter, unless it is well within the stem cavity or calyx basin and is not readily apparent.[1]

(ii) Any one of the following defects, or any combination thereof, the seriousness of which exceeds the maximum allowed for any one defect, shall be considered as damage:

(a) Sunburn or spray burn which has caused blistering or cracking of the skin, or when the discolored area does not blend into the normal color of the fruit unless the injury can be classed as russeting.

CIGAR-FILLER TOBACCO, CIGAR-FILLER AND BINDER TOBACCO, AND MARYLAND TOBACCO

NOTICE OF FORMULATION OF REGULATIONS RELATING TO ESTABLISHMENT OF FARM ACREAGE ALLOTMENTS AND NORMAL YIELDS FOR THE 1952–53 MARKETING YEAR

Pursuant to the authority contained in the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended (7 U. S. C. 1301, 1312, 1313), the Secretary of Agriculture is preparing to formulate regulations governing the establishment of farm acreage allotments and normal yields for the 1952 crops of cigar-filler (type 41) tobacco and Maryland (type 32) tobacco if marketing quotas are in effect during the 1952–53 marketing year for either one or both of such kinds of tobacco.

The applicability of the regulations to be issued for either of such kinds of tobacco will be contingent upon the proclamation of a national marketing quota for such kind of tobacco pursuant to section 312 of the act (7 U. S. C. 1312), and upon approval of quotas by growers voting in a referendum.

It is contemplated that the regulations for these two kinds of tobacco will be substantially the same as those issued with respect to the 1951 crops (15 F. R. 7203 and 15 F. R. 7433). It is proposed that paragraphs (d) of §§ 723.223 and 727.224 of the regulations for the 1951–52 marketing year be omitted from the regulations for the 1952–53 marketing year. Such paragraphs provide that a farm is not eligible for a "new" farm allotment if it has an allotment for any other kind of tobacco. In the case of Maryland tobacco, it is proposed that § 727.317 (b) will read "90 percent of the average acreage of tobacco harvested on the farm in the three years 1949–51." Section 727.217 (b) of the regulations for the 1951–52 marketing year provided for 80 percent of the average acreage of tobacco harvested on the farm in the three prior years.

Prior to the final adoption and issuance of the regulations, consideration will be given to any data, views, and recommendations pertaining thereto which are submitted in writing to the Director, Tobacco Branch, Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C. All submissions must be postmarked not later than 15 days from the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER in order to be considered.

Issued at Washington, D. C., this 9th day of May 1951.

(d) "Subcontractor" includes any person who, for the account or benefit of an employer, delivers, or causes to be delivered, to a homeworker goods to be produced in or about a home and thereafter to be returned in accordance with the direction of such employer.

(f) "Operation" means any work or any process other than the distribution of goods to or collection of goods from homeworkers.

§ 545.3 Filing and notification requirements. Every employer prior to the distribution of work to any homeworker or prior to the commencement of work by a homeworker, in cases where the homeworker purchases the raw materials, shall file with the Wage and Hour Division in Puerto Rico (a) a copy of each design, if any, and (b) a description in writing of each operation to be performed by any homeworker, whether or not part of a design, together with the full piece rate schedule designation, if any,[2] the corresponding piece rates to be paid for each such operation, and the style numbers, if any, of the goods upon which such designs are to be made and operations are to be performed.

§ 545.4 Preparation of goods for delivery. Where goods for production in a home are distributed to the homeworker by the employer, the employer shall make up the goods to be delivered to a subcontractor into a lot, each lot to comprise goods on which the same operations are to be performed.

§ 545.5 Delivery and collection of goods. Where goods for production in a home are distributed to the homeworker by the employer, the goods shall be personally distributed to and collected from the homeworker who is to work on the goods, either directly at the factory or by employees expressly employed by an employer or subcontractor to distribute and collect such goods outside the factory.

§ 545.6 Payment for work. When an employer receives goods on which work has been completed, he shall pay immediately the homeworker or subcontractor, as the case may be, for such work: Provided, That in cases where payment is made to a subcontractor, the homeworker shall be paid within seven days after such subcontractor has collected the goods from such homeworker. Payment shall be made to each homeworker at rates not less than those required under §§ 545.10 and 545.11, and in accordance with the requirements of sections 6 and 7 of the act. In addition, any costs for materials incurred by the homeworker shall be reimbursed by the employer.

(4) The signature of the person acting in behalf of the employer.

(c) No employer shall employ any homeworker for more than 40 hours in any workweek unless, in addition to the records which he is required to keep pursuant to paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, such employer makes and keeps available at his principal Puerto Rican office and enters in the handbook of each such homeworker a record of the following information:

(1) The hours worked by the homeworker on the goods in each lot of work delivered to the employer or on goods purchased by the employer.

(2) The total hours worked each week.

(3) The wages paid the homeworker each week at regular piece rates.

(4) The extra amount paid to the homeworker for hours worked in excess of 40 in each week.

§ 545.8 Maintenance of records. Every employer shall keep and preserve for a period of not less than three years at his place of business all records required above except the handbook, which shall be kept by the homeworker for a period of two years subsequent to the date of the last entry therein. All such records shall be open at any time to inspection and transcription by the Administrator or his authorized representative.

§ 545.9 Reporting names of subcontractors, agents, or other homework distributors. Every employer shall report to the office of the Wage and Hour Division, United States Department of Labor, Mayaguez, Puerto Rico, (a) the names and addresses of all persons employed as subcontractors, as that term is defined in this part, or as agents or supervisors in charge of any branch office, and (b) the permit numbers issued to such persons by the Department of Labor of Puerto Rico.

§ 545.10 Minimum piece rates prescribed by the Administrator. Pursuant to the provisions of section 6 (a) (2) of the act, each homeworker shall be paid,

[2] See § 545.14 for the schedule of piece rates prescribed in accordance with § 545.10. As an example of how to state the piece rate schedule designation, if "plain scallops" were to be made on articles in the "Infants' Wear Division," the full piece rate schedule designation would be "Operation 74, Col. 3."

[3] Although responsibility for making the record is placed upon the employer, the actual work of doing so may be performed by supervisory or clerical employees, agents, subcontractors, or other persons acting in behalf of the employer.

No particular order or form of records is prescribed by the regulations contained in this part. The employer may keep his own record system, so long as he keeps all the required information available in understandable form.

The records must be kept in the employer's principal Puerto Rican office. Where it is not possible for a record of one or more of the items to be made in the first instance at the employer's principal office, at the employer's direction the record of such items may be made away from that office by a subcontractor, agent, employee, or other person acting in behalf of the employer. In such event, however, the records shall be delivered to the principal Puerto Rican office of the employer as soon as possible after the making of such entries, and shall there be preserved and be available for inspection.

[4] Although responsibility for making the record is placed upon the employer, the actual work of doing so may be performed by supervisory or clerical employees, agents, subcontractors, or other persons acting in behalf of the employer.

in lieu of the applicable hourly rate established by the wage order for the needlework and fabricated textile products industry, not less than the piece rates prescribed in § 545.14 for the operations described therein.

§ 545.11 Piece rates adopted by employers. Pursuant to the provisions of section 6 (a) (2) of the act, in the event that a homeworker is to perform an operation for which no minimum piece rate has been prescribed by regulation or order of the Administrator or his authorized representative, he shall be paid a piece rate adopted by the employer which shall yield to homeworkers of ordinary skill, under prevalent operating conditions and with equipment ordinarily found in homes, an amount not less than the applicable minimum hourly wage rate established by wage order.[5] No employer shall adopt such a piece rate until he has first notified the Division of his intention to establish a rate for such operation, the rate fixed and the basis on which the piece rate has been computed. Such an employer piece rate shall be lawful only if it actually satisfies the requirements of this section, and such a rate shall remain in effect only until such time as the Administrator or his authorized representative, by regulation or order, establishes a minimum piece rate for such operation.

§ 545.12 Penalties. Section 15 of the act makes it unlawful for any person to violate the provisions of this part and subjects any such person to the penalties provided by section 16 and section 17 of the act.

§ 545.13 Petition for amendment of regulations. Any person wishing a revision of any of the terms of this part may submit in writing to the Administrator or his authorized representative a petition setting forth the changes desired and the reasons for proposing them. If, upon inspection of the petition, the Administrator or his authorized representative believes that reasonable cause for amendment of this part is set forth, the Administrator or his authorized representative will either schedule a hearing with due notice to interested parties, or will make other provision for affording interested parties an opportunity to present their views, either in support of or in opposition to the proposed changes.

Interested persons may submit data, views, or arguments with respect to the above proposed revisions within 15 days from the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Such material should be addressed to the Administrator, Wage and Hour Division, United States Department of Labor, Washington 25, D. C., and will be fully considered before the Administrator makes any of the proposed revisions effective.

Signed at Washington, D. C., this 10th day of May 1951.

ALGONQUIN GAS TRANSMISSION CO.

NOTICE OF FILING

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 7th day of May A. D. 1951.

Notice is hereby given that an application-declaration has been filed with this Commission pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 (the "Act"), by Algonquin Gas Transmission Company ("Algonquin"), a subsidiary of New England Gas and Electric Association ("Negea"), a registered holding company. Applicant-declarant has designated sections 6 (b) and 7 of the act and Rule U-50 promulgated thereunder as applicable to the proposed transactions.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than May 21, 1951, at 5:30 p. m., e. d. s. t., request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the nature of his interest, the reasons for such request and the issues, if any, of fact or law raised by said application-declaration proposed to be controverted, or may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C. At any time thereafter, said application-declaration, as filed or as amended, may be granted or permitted to become effective as provided in Rule U-23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act, or the Commission may exempt such transactions as provided in Rules U-20 (a) and U-100 thereof.

All interested persons are referred to said application-declaration which is on file in the office of this Commission for a statement of the transactions therein proposed, which are summarized as follows:

Algonquin proposes to issue and sell privately to insurance companies $24,000,000 aggregate principal amount of its First Mortgage Pipeline Bonds, 3¾ percent series, due 1971. Under certain circumstances described below, the company may issue and sell an additional principal amount of such bonds not to exceed 15 percent of the $24,000,000 specified above. The names of the companies to which the bonds are to be sold and the respective amounts of bonds to be sold to each of them, subject, in each case to a possible increase of up to 15 percent of the amount shown, are as follows:

Metropolitan Life Insurance Co	$12,000,000
John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co	8,500,000
Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co	2,000,000
New England Mutual Life Insurance Co	1,500,000

The bonds are to be issued under and secured by a First Mortgage and Deed of Trust to be dated as of March 1, 1951. In accordance with the terms of a bond purchase agreement to be entered into between Algonquin and the purchasers, the bonds are to be sold for cash at 100 percent of principal amount, plus accrued interest, and will be issued and sold in lots of not less than $4,000,000 principal amount when and as funds are required. A commitment fee of ½ of 1 percent of the unused balance of the total commitment from the date of the purchase contract to the date the commitment is exercised will be paid.

The filing indicates that the proceeds from the issuance and sale of the bonds will be used to provide a portion of the funds required for the development and construction of pipeline facilities to supply natural gas to distribution companies in New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts. It also indicates that, based on present price levels, the estimated cost of such development and construction, including an allowance of about $2,000,000 for working capital, amounts to approximately $32,000,000. Of this amount, $5,609,325 has been obtained through the issuance and sale of common stock, and subscriptions have been received for the purchase of additional common stock in the amount of $2,390,675 or an aggregate of $8,000,000.

The applicant-declarant states that the cost of labor and material and of acquiring rights-of-way may increase during the period of construction. In such event, Algonquin contemplates increasing its capitalization by not more than 15 percent in such a manner as to maintain the presently contemplated ratio of bonds and common stock to total capitalization of 75 percent and 25 percent respectively.

Applicant-declarant requests an exemption from the competitive bidding requirements of Rule U-50 and that the Commission's order be issued as soon as possible and that it become effective forthwith upon issuance.

By the Commission.

Grades of Extracted Honey" effective April 16, 1951; Except that, honey having little or no acceptability for table use, even in most areas in which produced, as determined by the President, CCC, will not be eligible honey. Such ineligible honey includes Bitterweed, Broomweed, Carrot, Chinquapin, Gumweed, Mescal, Onion, Prickly Pear, Prune, Tarweed, and similar strong-flavored honeys or strong-flavored blends.

§ 624.205 Purchases from packers. CCC will purchase from eligible packers all eligible honey tendered to CCC pursuant to the terms and conditions of the 1951 Honey Program Packer contract. Eligible honey purchased by CCC shall be delivered to CCC f. o. b. cars or trucks at packers' usual shipping points, as specified in the Notices of Intention to Deliver.

§ 624.206 Determination of grade. (a) Packer and vendor, whether or not such vendor is a beekeeper, shall sign a descriptive statement in duplicate for each lot of honey purchased by packer, stating the amount of honey acquired, predominant floral source or sources, color, the applicable support price, if any, the price paid vendor, and such other data as may be called for by CCC, and in such form as shall be prescribed by CCC. Packer shall retain the original of this statement, and deliver the duplicate to vendor. In the event that the vendor is other than a beekeeper, a certification shall be made by the vendor stating that he has paid the producer the price specified in § 624.209 for such honey delivered to his place of business.

(b) Any honey for which packer pays less than the applicable support price as specified in § 624.209 must be covered by an inspection certificate following inspection performed by a representative of the Processed Products Standardization and Inspection Division, Fruit and Vegetable Branch, Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, unless vendor waives such inspection and accepts packer's grade determination. If inspection is performed, the cost of such inspection shall be borne by vendor, and if the cost of such inspection is paid by packer, such cost may be deducted from the price which packer pays for such honey.

(c) The grade of each lot of honey delivered to CCC shall be as stated in the Notice to Deliver issued by CCC. Such grade shall be determined at time of delivery to CCC by a representative of the Processed Products Standardization and Inspection Division, Fruit and Vegetable Branch, Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture. Packer shall pay the cost of inspection of honey delivered to CCC and shall be reimbursed for such cost by CCC. CCC shall not be responsible for any costs or expenses incurred by packer on honey which is unacceptable to CCC under the terms of this bulletin or of the contract between packer and CCC.

§ 624.207 Minimum quantity. Purchases by CCC of eligible honey from packers shall be limited to quantities of not less than 36,000 pounds net or such other quantity as may be moved at the minimum carlot rate in effect for rail shipment.

§ 624.208 Settlement. Packers delivering eligible honey to CCC, will submit applications for payment to, and be paid through, the PMA Commodity Office of the area in which the packer's billing office is located. Applications for payment will be prepared and submitted in accordance with billing information furnished by the PMA Commodity Office.

§ 624.209 Support price. The price for eligible honey purchased by packers under contract with CCC shall not be less than the following:

(a) For honey having general national acceptability for table use delivered to packer's plant in clean, sound containers with a standard capacity of not less than 60 pounds nor greater than 150 pounds, 10.1 cents per pound, or with a standard capacity greater than 150 pounds, 9.85 cents per pound.

(b) For honey having limited national acceptability for table use but considered to be of table grade in most areas in which it is produced, delivered to packer's plant in clean, sound containers with a standard capacity of not less than 60 pounds nor greater than 150 pounds, 9 cents per pound, or with a standard capacity greater than 150 pounds, 8¾ cents per pound. Such honey includes Aster, Blueweed, Boneset, Brunnichia, Buckwheat (Western Wild Buckwheat is in category (a) above), Eucalyptus, Goldenrod, Heartsease (Smartweed), Horsemint, Mangrove, Palmetto, Partridge Pea, Spanish Needle, Sunflower, Tamarisk, Thyme, Ti-ti, Yellow Top, and similar strong-flavored honeys or strong-flavored blends.

(c) The determination of the President, CCC, or his designee, shall be final as to whether honey of a specific floral source, or the honey in a specific lot, has either general or limited national acceptability, or whether such honey has little or no acceptability for table use even in most areas in which produced. If in doubt as to the category in which honey of a specific floral source or lot falls, packer can submit a small representative sample of such lot for determination to F. M. Graham, United States Department of Agriculture, Fruit and Vegetable Branch, Production and Marketing Administration, Washington 25, D. C.

§ 624.210 Price to packers. Eligible honey will be purchased by CCC from eligible packers at a price equal to the applicable support price plus amounts to cover such costs as may be specified in the 1951 Honey Program Packer Contract.

§ 331.1 Offering of notes. The Secretary of the Treasury, pursuant to the authority of the Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended, offers for sale to the people of the United States, at par and accrued interest as provided in § 331.12, an issue of notes of the United States designated Treasury Savings Notes, Series A., which notes, if inscribed in the name of a Federal taxpayer, will be receivable as hereinafter provided at par and accrued interest in payment of income, estate and gift taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code, or laws amendatory or supplementary thereto. The notes may also be redeemed for cash at par and accrued interest, with certain exceptions applicable to banking institutions, as provided in § 331.16.

§ 331.2 Withdrawal of Series D Notes. The sale of Treasury Savings Notes, Series D, offered under Department Circular No. 833 (Part 327 of this subchapter), dated August 17, 1948, as amended, is hereby terminated at the close of business May 14, 1951.

§ 331.3 Duration of offer. The sale of notes of Series A offered by this circular will begin on May 15, 1951, and will continue until terminated by the Secretary of the Treasury.

§ 331.4 Definitions. (a) The word "month" as used in this part means the period from and including the 15th day of any one calendar month to but not including the 15th day of the next succeeding month.

(b) The words "issue date" mean the date as of which a note is issued and will always be the 15th day of a calendar month.

(c) The words "interest accrual date" or "accrual date" mean the date upon which a month's interest accrues on a note, the first accrual date being the 15th day of the calendar month next following the issue date.

SUBPART B—DESCRIPTION OF NOTES

§ 331.5 General. Treasury Savings Notes, Series A, will in each instance be dated as of the 15th day of a calendar month. The issue date will be determined by the day of the month on which payment at par and accrued interest, if any, is received and credited by an agency authorized to issue the notes. For example, payment received and credited on any day during the period from and including May 15, 1951, to and including June 14, 1951, would result in the issue of notes dated May 15, 1951. They will mature three years from that date and may not be called by the Secretary of the Treasury for redemption before maturity. All notes bearing issue dates within any one calendar year shall constitute a separate series indicated by the letter "A" followed by the year of maturity. At the time of issue the issuing agency will inscribe on the face of each note the name and address of the owner, will enter the issue date and will imprint its dating stamp (with current date). The notes will be issued in denominations of $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, $100,000, $500,000 and $1,000,000. Exchange of authorized denominations from higher to lower, but not from lower to higher, may be arranged at any agency that issues Treasury Savings Notes, Series A.

§ 331.6 Acceptance for taxes or cash redemption. If inscribed in the name of an individual, corporation, or other entity paying income, estate or gift taxes imposed under the Internal Revenue Code, or laws amendatory or supplementary thereto, the notes will be receivable, subject to the provisions of § 331.15, at par and accrued interest, in payment of such income, estate or gift taxes assessed against the owner or his estate. If not presented in payment of taxes, or if not inscribed in the name of a taxpayer liable to the above-described taxes, and subject to the provisions of § 331.16, the notes will be payble at maturity, or at the owner's option and request they will be redeemable before maturity at par and accrued interest.

§ 331.7 Interest. Interest on each $1,000 principal amount of Treasury Savings Notes, Series A, will accrue monthly on the 15th calendar day of each month after the issue date on a graduated scale, as follows:

	Each month
First to Sixth months, inclusive	$1.20
Seventh to Twelfth months, inclusive	1.50
Thirteenth to Eighteenth months, inclusive	1.60
Nineteenth to Twenty-fourth months, inclusive	1.70
Twenty-fifth to Thirty-sixth months, inclusive	1.80

The table appended to this circular shows for notes of each denomination, for each consecutive month after issue date to maturity, (a) the amount of interest accrual, (b) the principal amount of the note with accrued interest (cumulative) added, and (c) the approximate investment yields. Subject to the provisions of §§ 331.15 and 331.16, when Treasury Savings Notes, Series A, are to be paid on an interest accrual date, the payment will include interest accruing on that date; otherwise, interest will be paid only to the interest accrual date next preceding the date of payment. Interest will be paid only with the principal amount, and will not accrue beyond the maturity date of the note.

§ 331.8 Forms of inscription. Treasury Savings Notes, Series A, may be inscribed in the name of an individual, corporation, unincorporated association or society, or a fiduciary (including trustees under a duly established trust where the notes would not be held as security for the performance of a duty or obligation), whether or not the inscribed owner is subject to taxation under the Internal Revenue Code, or laws amendatory or supplementary thereto. They may also be inscribed in the name of a town, city, county or State or other governmental body and in the name of a partnership, but notes in the name of a partnership are not acceptable in payment of taxes, since a partnership is not a taxpaying entity under the Internal Revenue Code. The notes will not be inscribed in the names of two or more persons as joint owners or coowners; or in the name of a public officer, whether or not named as trustee, where the notes would in effect be held as security for the performance of a duty or obligation.

§ 331.9 Nontransferability. The notes may not be transferred in ordinary course; except that (a) if inscribed in the name of a married man they may be reissued in the name of his wife, or if inscribed in the name of a married woman they may be reissued in the name of her husband, upon request of the person in whose name the notes are inscribed and the surrender of the notes to the agency that issued them; (b) if inscribed in the name of a corporation owning more than 50 percent of the stock, with voting power, of another corporation, the notes may be reissued in the name of the subsidiary upon request of the corporation and surrender of the notes to the agency that issued them; (c) upon the death or disability of an individual inscribed owner or the dissolution, consolidation or merger of a corporation, unincorporated association or partnership named as owner, reissue or payment may be made in accordance with §§ 331.22 and 331.23; and (d) payment but not reissue, may be made as a result of legal proceedings as set forth in §§ 331.24 and 331.25. The notes may not be hypothecated and no attempted hypothecation or pledge as security will be recognized by the Treasury Department: Provided, however, That the notes may be pledged as collateral for loans from banking institutions and if title thereto is acquired by a bank because of the failure of a loan to be paid, the notes will be redeemed at par and accrued interest to the interest accrual date next preceding the date of such acquisition, unless acquired on an interest accrual date, on surrender to the agency which issued them, accompanied by proof of the date of acquisition and by request of the pledgee under power of attorney given by the pledgor in whose name the notes are inscribed. The notes will not be transferred to a pledgee. The notes will not be acceptable to secure deposits of public moneys.

§ 331.10 Taxation. Income derived from the notes shall be subject to all taxes now or hereafter imposed under the Internal Revenue Code or laws amendatory or supplementary thereto. The notes shall be subject to estate, inheritance, gift or other excise taxes, whether Federal or State, but shall be exempt from all taxation now or hereafter imposed on the principal or interest thereof by any State, or any of the possessions of the United States, or by any local taxing authority.

SUBPART C—PURCHASE OF NOTES

§ 331.11 Official agencies. In addition to the Treasury Department, the Federal Reserve Banks and their Branches are hereby designated agencies for the issue and redemption of Treasury Savings Notes, Series A. The Secretary of the Treasury, from time to time, in his discretion, may designate other agencies for the issue of the notes, or for accepting applications therefor, or for making payments on account of the redemption thereof.

§ 331.12 Applications and payment. Applications will be received by the Federal Reserve Banks and Branches and by the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Banking institutions generally may submit applications for the account of customers but only the Federal Reserve Banks, their Branches and the Treasury Department are authorized to act as official agencies. The use of an official application form is desirable but not necessary. Such forms may be obtained upon request from any Federal Reserve Bank or Branch or the Treasurer of the United States. Every application must be accompanied by payment in full, at par and accrued interest, if any. The amount of accrued interest payable by the purchaser will be computed at the rate at which interest accrues on the notes ($1.20 per month per $1,000 par amount) for the actual number of days from but not including the issue date to and including the date funds are credited to the account of the Treasurer of the United States. For example, if funds are credited on the 20th day of January the issue date will be January 15, and five days' accrued interest must be paid by the purchaser. If collection is delayed so that credit is not given until February 15, the issue date will be February 15, and no accrued interest will be collectible. One day's accrued interest for a thirty-one day period is $0.03871 per $1,000, for a thirty day period $0.04 per $1,000, for a twenty-nine day period $0.04138 per $1,000, and for a twenty-eight day period $0.04286 per $1,000. Any form of exchange, including personal checks, will be accepted, subject to collection, and should be drawn to the order of the Federal Reserve Bank or the Treasurer of the United States, as payee, as the case may be. Any depositary qualified pursuant to the provisions of Treasury Department Circular No. 92, Revised (Part 203 of this chapter), as amended, will be permitted to make payment by credit for notes applied for on behalf of itself or its customers up to any amount for which it shall be qualified in excess of existing deposits.

§ 331.13 Reservations. The Secretary of the Treasury reserves the right to reject any application in whole or in part, and to refuse to issue or permit to be issued hereunder any notes in any case or in any class or classes of cases if he deems such action to be in the public interest, and his action in any such respect shall be final. If an application is rejected, in whole or in part, any payment received therefor will be refunded.

§ 331.14 Delivery of notes. Upon acceptance of a full-paid application, notes will be duly inscribed and, unless delivered in person will be delivered, at the risk and expense of the United States at the address given by the purchaser, by mail, but only within the United States, its Territories and Island Possessions, and the Canal Zone. No deliveries elsewhere will be made.

SUBPART D—PRESENTATION IN PAYMENT OF TAXES

§ 331.15 Presentation in payment of taxes. At any time after two months from the issue date, during such time and under such rules and regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may prescribe, notes issued hereunder in the name of a Federal taxpayer, may be presented by such taxpayer, his agent or his estate for credit against any income (current and back, personal and corporation taxes, and excess profits taxes) or any estate or gift taxes (current and back) imposed by the Internal Revenue Code, or laws amendatory or supplementary thereto, assessed against the inscribed owner or his estate. For example, a note dated January 15 may be presented for credit against taxes due March 15. The notes will be receivable by the Collector at par and accrued interest to the day (but no accrual beyond maturity) when the taxes are due, if such day falls on the 15th day of a calendar month, whether the notes are received on or before that day. If the taxes are due on any other day of the month than the 15th, accrued interest will be credited to the accrual date next preceding the day when the taxes are due. Notes are receivable only in payment of taxes equal to or exceeding the entire value of the notes, including accrued interest. The notes must be forwarded to the Collector at the risk and expense of the owner and, for his protection, should be forwarded by registered mail, if not presented in person.

SUBPART E—CASH REDEMPTION AT OR BEFORE MATURITY

§ 331.16 General. Any Treasury Savings Note, Series A, not presented in payment of taxes will be paid at maturity, or, at the option and request of the owner, and without advance notice, will be redeemed before maturity, at any time after four months from the issue date. For example, a note dated January 15 may be redeemed for cash on or after May 15. If redemption prior to maturity is requested on an interest accrual date the redemption will include interest accruing on that date, otherwise redemption will be at par and accrued interest to the interest accrual date next preceding the redemption date, except in the case of a note inscribed in the name of a bank that accepts demand deposits, in which case payment, whether at or before maturity, will be made only at par, with a refund of any accrued interest which may have been paid at the time of purchase of the note. If a note is acquired by a banking institution through forfeiture of a loan, payment will be made at par and the accrued interest payable as of the date of acquisition.

§ 331.17 Execution of request for payment. The owner in whose name the note is inscribed must appear before one of the officers authorized by the Secretary of the Treasury to witness and certify requests for payment, establish his identity, and in the presence of such officer sign and complete the request for payment appearing on the back of the note. After the request for payment has been executed, the witnessing officer should execute the certificate provided for his use.

§ 331.18 Officers authorized to certify requests for payment. All officers authorized to certify requests for payment of United States Savings Bonds, as set forth in Treasury Department Circular No. 530, Sixth Revision (Part 315 of this subchapter), as amended, are hereby authorized to certify requests for cash redemption of Treasury savings notes issued under this circular. Such officers include, among others, United States postmasters, certain other post office officials, officers of all banks and trust companies incorporated in the United States or its organized territories, including officers at branches thereof, and commissioned and warrant officers of the Armed Forces of the United States.

§ 331.19 Presentation and surrender. Notes bearing properly executed requests for payment must be presented and surrendered to any Federal Reserve Bank or Branch or to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington 25, D. C., at the expense and risk of the owner. For the owner's protection, notes should be forwarded by registered mail, if not presented in person.

§ 331.20 Partial redemption. Partial cash redemption of a note, corresponding to an authorized denomination, may be made in the same manner as full cash redemption, appropriate changes being made in the request for payment. In case of partial redemption of a note, the remainder will be reissued in the same name and with the same issue date as the note surrendered.

§ 331.21 Payment. Payment of any note, either at maturity or on redemption before maturity, will be made by any Federal Reserve Bank or Branch or the Treasurer of the United States, following clearance with the agency of issue, which will be obtained by the agency to which the note is surrendered. Unless otherwise instructed, payment will be made by check drawn to the order of the owner, and mailed to the address given in his request for payment.

SUBPART F—PAYMENT OR REISSUE TO OTHER THAN INSCRIBED OWNER

§ 331.22 Death or disability. In case of the death or disability of an individual owner, if the notes are not to be presented in payment of taxes, payment will be made to the duly constituted representative of his estate, or they may be reissued to one or more of his heirs or legatees upon satisfactory proof of their right; but no reissue will be made in two names jointly or as coowners.

§ 331.23 Dissolution or merger of corporations, etc. If a corporation or unincorporated body in whose name notes are inscribed is dissolved, consolidated, merged or otherwise changes its organization, the notes may be paid to, or reissued in the name of, those persons or organizations lawfully entitled to the assets of such corporation or body by reason of such changes in organization.

§ 331.24 Bankruptcy. If an owner of notes is declared bankrupt or insolvent, payment, but not reissue, will be made to the duly qualified trustee, receiver or similar representative if the notes are submitted with satisfactory proof of his appointment and qualification.

§ 331.25 Creditors' rights. Payment, but not reissue, will be made as a result of judicial proceedings in a court of competent jurisdiction, if the notes are submitted with proper proof of such proceedings and their finality.

§ 331.26 Instructions and information. Before executing the request for payment or submitting the notes under the provisions of this subpart, instructions should be obtained from a Federal Reserve Bank or Branch or from the Treasury Department, Division of Loans and Currency, Washington 25, D. C.

SUBPART G—GENERAL PROVISIONS

§ 331.27 Regulations. Except as provided in this part, the notes issued under this part will be subject to the general regulations of the Treasury Department, now or hereafter prescribed, governing bonds and notes of the United States; the regulations currently in force are contained in Department Circular No. 300 (Part 306 of this subchapter), as amended.

§ 331.28 Loss, theft or destruction. In case of the loss, theft or destruction of a savings note immediate notice (which should include a full description of the note) should be given the agency which issued the note and instructions should be requested as to the procedure necessary to secure a duplicate.

§ 331.29 Fiscal agents. Federal Reserve Banks and their Branches, as fiscal agents of the United States, are authorized to perform such services or acts as may be appropriate and necessary under the provisions of this circular and under any instructions given by the Secretary of the Treasury, and they may issue interim receipts pending delivery of the definitive notes.

§ 331.30 Amendments. The Secretary of the Treasury may at any time or from time to time supplement or amend the terms of this part or of any amendments or supplements thereto, and may at any time or from time to time prescribe amendatory rules and regulations governing the offering of the notes, information as to which will promptly be furnished to the Federal Reserve Banks.

Compliance with the notice, public procedure, and effective date requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act (Pub. Law 404, 79th Cong.; 60 Stat. 237) is found to be impracticable with respect to this part. This is a matter of fiscal policy and it was deemed inadvisable to make determination with respect thereto at an earlier date.

[SEAL] E. H. FOLEY,
Acting Secretary of the Treasury.

(Sec. 5, 38 Stat. 719, as amended; 15 U. S. C. 45) [Cease and desist order, Ralph Dweck et al doing business as Berkshire Manufacturing Company, Docket 5801, March 10, 1951]

In the Matter of Ralph Dweck et al, Doing Business as Berkshire Manufacturing Company

This proceeding was heard by William L. Pack, trial examiner, upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondents, and hearings at which testimony and other evidence in support of and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint were introduced before said trial examiner, which testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission.

Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final consideration by the trial examiner on the complaint, the answer thereto, and testimony and other evidence (the filing of proposed findings and conclusions having been waived), and the trial examiner, having duly considered the record, and found that the proceeding was in the interest of the public, made his initial decision, comprising certain findings as to the facts, conclusion drawn therefrom, and order to cease and desist and order of dismissal.

No appeal having been filed from said initial decision of said trial examiner as provided for in Rule XXII, nor any other action taken as thereby provided to prevent said initial decision becoming the decision of the Commission thirty days from service thereof upon the parties, said initial decision, including said order accordingly, under the provision of said Rule XXII, became the decision of the Commission March 10, 1951.

The said order to cease and desist is as follows:

It is ordered, That respondents Ralph Dweck, Bert Dweck, Isaac Dweck, Jack Dweck and David Levy, individually and as copartners trading under the name Berkshire Manufacturing Company, or trading under any other name, and their agents, representatives and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of handkerchiefs in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the word "manufacturing" or any other word of similar import in respondents' trade name; or otherwise representing, directly or by implication, that respondents manufacture the handkerchiefs sold by them.

2. Using in advertisements or otherwise any photograph or picturization of a manufacturing plant in such manner as to represent or imply that such plant is owned or operated by respondents.

It is further ordered, That the complaint be, and it hereby is, dismissed as to respondent Solomon Levy, without prejudice to the right of the Commission to institute further proceedings against said respondent should future facts warrant such action.

By "Decision of the Commission and order to File Report of Compliance", Docket 5801, March 12, 1951, which announced fruition of said initial decision on March 10, 1951, report of compliance with said cease and desist order, was required as follows:

It is ordered, That respondents Ralph Dweck, Bert Dweck, Isaac Dweck, Jack Dweck, and David Levy shall, within sixty (60) days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with the order to cease and desist.

TITLE 32A—NATIONAL DEFENSE, APPENDIX

Chapter III—Office of Price Stabilization, Economic Stabilization Agency

[Ceiling Price Regulation 22, Supplementary Regulation 3]

CPR 22—MANUFACTURERS' GENERAL CEILING PRICE REGULATION

SR 3—SALES BY PRINTERS ALLOWED TO BE EXCLUDED FROM GROSS SALES

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Public Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Supplementary Regulation 3 to Ceiling Price Regulation 22 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

Ceiling Price Regulation 22 allows manufacturers to elect not to use such regulation if their gross sales were less than $250,000 in their last fiscal year.

Many small printers produce and sell, among other things, newspapers, magazines, periodicals or other publications which are exempt from price control under the Defense Production Act of 1950. From available data and consultations with industry representatives, it appears that the dollar volume from the sales of these publications represent the major portion of gross sales of many of these small printers. It would not appear to be equitable to require printers to include in gross sales, the dollar volume resulting from the sales of those publications which are beyond price control. This action will not result in any inflationary price increases since sales of remaining commodities by printers are subject to price control under the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization, the provisions of this Supplementary Regulation are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

In formulating this supplementary regulation the Director has consulted with representatives of industry to the extent practicable under the circumstances and has given consideration to their recommendations.

REGULATORY PROVISIONS

Sec.
1. What this supplementary regulation does.
2. Sales by printers allowed to be excluded from gross sales.
3. Definitions.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 3 issued under sec. 704, Public Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply Title IV, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong., E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105, 3 CFR, 1950 Supp.

SECTION 1. What this supplementary regulation does. This Supplementary Regulation 3 modifies section 1 of Ceiling Price Regulation 22 by allowing printers to exclude certain sales in computing gross sales.

SEC. 2. Sales by printers allowed to be excluded from gross sales. On and after the effective date of this Supplementary Regulation 3, printers, otherwise subject to Ceiling Price Regulation 22, in computing whether or not their gross sales are less than $250,000 for their last fiscal year, so as to exercise the option not to use such regulation, may exclude from their gross sales the amount of sales attributable to the sales of newspapers, magazines, periodicals or other publications which are exempt from price control under the Defense Production Act of 1950.

All other provisions of Ceiling Price Regulation 22 are unaffected by this supplementary regulation.

SEC. 3. Definitions. (a) When used in this supplementary regulation, the term:

(1) "Printers" shall include all phases of the graphic arts industry including, but not limited to, photo-engraving, typesetting, electrotyping, stereotyping, plate making, printing, binding and related services in connection therewith.

Effective date. This supplementary regulation to Ceiling Price Regulation 22 shall become effective May 28, 1951.

[General Overriding Regulation No. 8, Amendment 1]

GOR-8—PAPER, PAPERBOARD, CONVERTED PAPER AND PAPERBOARD PRODUCTS, ALLIED PRODUCTS AND SERVICES

EXEMPTION OF SALES OF COMMODITIES WHICH HAVE EDITORIAL CONTENT, EXPRESS IDEAS OR DISSEMINATE INFORMATION AND SERVICES RELATED THERETO

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Public Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this amendment to General Overriding Regulation 8 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATION

General Overriding Regulation 8 created a clearing house for future exemptions for specific paper, paperboard, converted paper and paperboard products, allied products and services. This amendment exempts from all price control sales and deliveries of certain printed commodities whose primary value depends upon editorial content, expression of ideas or dissemination of information and the printing and allied services rendered in connection therewith. It also exempts for the year 1951 sales and services by persons whose printing business did not exceed $50,000 in 1950. Such exemption applies in any year subsequent to 1951 when sales in the preceding calendar year do not exceed $50,000.

In 1947, according to official statistics of the U. S. Department of Commerce, the printing, publishing and related industries, including typesetting, platemaking and similar services, consisted of 28,986 establishments employing 715,000 persons, and producing goods and services valued at approximately 6.4 billion dollars.

The Congress, in writing the Defense Production Act of 1950, specifically exempted from price control sales of books, magazines, periodicals and newspapers which, in 1947, amounted to 3.7 billion dollars, or about 60 percent of these industries total value of products.

This amendment extends exemption from control to a number of other articles whose primary value, like the articles specifically exempted by Congress, depends upon their editorial content, or expression of ideas or dissemination of information and to services rendered in connection with their production; it also exempts from control all the products and services performed by persons engaged primarily in these industries and having gross sales of not more than $50,000 for the calendar year of 1950. The value in 1947 of products and services of the latter group are estimated to have been between 300 to 600 million dollars. It is estimated that most of the business of the approximately 21,000 small firms with annual sales of not more than $50,000 is exempt from control by congressional action and this amendment; exemption of the smaller printer from any control merely removes from regulation the balance of his sales.

Printing and allied services are characterized by the presence of a higher number of small firms which account for a relatively low percentage of the industry's total value of production. The high number of establishments and the fact that wages, the most important element of cost in most segments of these industries, are generally uniform throughout a given area, result in a competition for available work which is particularly keen among small concerns and frequently result in work being taken at a price which will cover only cost or part of costs. Consequently, as shown below, the net operating profits, before federal income taxes, for establishments with annual sales of not more than $50,000 are consistently well below the industry average and the average for large firms.

Year	Less than $35,000	$35,000 to $75,000	$75,000 to $150,000	$150,000 to $1,500,000	$1,500,000 and over	Industry average
1946	4.31	8.56	9.50	12.48	10.77	10.53
1947	5.75	7.33	9.81	10.15	9.72	9.58
1948	7.28	6.48	8.15	9.20	9.65	9.11
1949	2.99	4.90	5.81	6.96	8.90	7.50

This amendment is necessary because now, as during the price control program of World War II, the high number of establishments and the heterogeneous nature of the commodities and services involved would make administration of an effective price control program extremely difficult. It is believed that action taken in this amendment will not result in inflationary price increases because of the close competition which characterizes this industry and because the prices charged by the larger firms, which will remain subject to control, will prevent such price increases.

All exemptions provided for the commodities and services covered by this amendment were also exempt from control under OPA. With regard to those commodities and services covered by section 3 of this amendment, however, exemption under OPA was extended only to those firms having annual sales of less than $20,000. This amendment recognizes that increases in labor, raw materials and general operating costs since World War II have been reflected in higher prices and, to assure coverage of approximately the same group provided for under OPA, it is made applicable to establishments with annual sales of not more than $50,000.

Taking into consideration the above facts, the Director of Price Stabilization finds that amendment 1 to the General Overriding Regulation 8 is generally fair and equitable and contains such classifications and differentiations as in his judgment are necessary and proper to effectuate the purposes of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

AMENDATORY PROVISIONS

Section 1 (a) of General Overriding Regulation 8 is amended by the addition of subparagraphs (2) and (3) after subparagraph (1), as follows:

(2) Sales of commodities whose primary value depends upon editorial content, expression of ideas or dissemination of information and the rates, fees, charges, or compensation for the services of printing, publishing, typesetting, plate making, binding, or related services in connection with such commodities, including, but not limited to, books, magazines, periodicals, newspapers, materials furnished for publication by any press association or feature service, pamphlets, leaflets, sheet music, music rolls, stamp albums, globes, maps, charts, catalogs, directories, programs, house organs, menus, advertising matter printed on paper (except such articles as containers, labels and book matches, the form of which serves a purpose other than that of advertising), time tables, tariffs and price lists.

(3) Sales of all papers and paper products when sold by persons engaged primarily in the business of publishing, printing, typesetting, plate making, binding, or rendering related services, or any combination thereof, whose total gross sales in the calendar year 1950 of printed papers and printed paper products and services in connection therewith did not exceed $50,000. This exemption applies in any subsequent year when such total gross sales in the preceding calendar year did not exceed $50,000: Provided, That records of such total gross sales for 1950 and any subsequent year of printed paper and printed paper products and services in connection therewith be maintained and preserved for inspection by the Office of Price Stabilization for the life of the Defense Production Act of 1950 and for two years thereafter.

Effective date. This amendment shall become effective on May 19, 1951.

NOTE: The record-keeping and reporting requirements of this regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Chapter VI—National Production Authority, Department of Commerce

[NPA Order M-55A]

M-55A—FARM EQUIPMENT, THIRD QUARTER 1951

This order is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to authority granted by section 101 of the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this order consultation with industry representatives was impracticable due to the necessity for immediate action and because the order affects a large number of users in different segments of the industry.

Sec.
1. What this order does.
2. Definitions.
3. Limitation of production.
4. Authorization of rating.
5. Effect of other regulations and orders.
6. Certification of ratings.
7. Inventory limitations.
8. Application for adjustment or exception.
9. Records and reports.
10. Communications.
11. Violations.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 11 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105, 3 CFR, 1950 Supp.; sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this order does. This order authorizes producers of farm equipment to apply a rating to obtain delivery of production materials and component parts for July, August, and September 1951 consumption and use, and limits production of farm equipment during such period.

SEC. 2. Definitions. As used in this order:

(a) "Farm equipment" means any item of farm machinery, equipment, or repair parts listed in Schedule I of this order.

(b) "Producer" means any person engaged in the manufacture or production of farm equipment.

(c) "Production material" means aluminum, copper, steel, or zinc.

(d) "Component part" means a component part required to be physically incorporated into or attached to any piece of farm equipment, and includes textiles.

(e) "Base period" means the period commencing July 1, 1949, and ending June 30, 1950.

(f) "Third quarter 1951" means the months of July, August, and September 1951.

(g) "Third quarter 1951 requirements" of any production material means the tonnage required by a producer for his July, August, and September 1951 consumption of such production material, limited, however, to the tonnage of such production material required by such producer to manufacture, at his option, either of the following percentages of the total quantity by weight of farm equipment produced by him during the base period: (a) 25 percent thereof, or (b) the percentage thereof actually produced by him during the months of July, August, and September 1949. In determining the tonnage of any production material so required, a producer shall exclude the tonnage of such production material included in those component parts not manufactured by him but incorporated by him into such farm equipment.

(h) "Third quarter 1951 requirements" of any component part means the quantity required by a producer for his July, August, and September 1951 production of farm equipment (measured by units in group classifications in accordance with trade custom or industry practice).

SEC. 3. Limitation of production. During the third quarter 1951 no producer shall manufacture more than either of the following percentages of total quantity by weight of farm equipment produced by him during the base period: (a) 25 percent thereof, or (b) the percentage thereof actually produced by him during the months of July, August, and September 1949, whichever is greater.

SEC. 4. Authorization of rating. It is the intent of NPA that there shall be made available to each producer of farm equipment his third quarter 1951 requirements of each production material and each component part and that, pending the making of allotments under the Controlled Materials Plan for the third quarter, each producer of farm equipment shall be authorized to apply ratings to obtain delivery of 92 percent of his said third quarter requirements. Accordingly, each producer of farm equipment is hereby authorized to apply, until September 30, 1951, a DO–87 rating to obtain delivery of not to exceed 92 percent of his third quarter 1951 requirements of each production material and of each component part: Provided, That no producer shall place orders calling for delivery in any one month of more than 40 percent of his third quarter 1951 requirements of any production material, unless such 40 percent is less than the minimum quantity procurable under existing trade or industry practice, or the minimum mill quantity established by applicable NPA orders or regulations, in which case the producer may place rated orders for such minimum quantity of such production material for delivery in any one month. DO–87 rated orders for third quarter 1951 requirements must be placed in accordance with lead time requirements of applicable NPA orders. No producer shall apply a DO–87 rating, and no other person shall extend a DO–87 rating, to secure a production material or a component part except to a person who during the 2 years preceding the effective date of this order has been a regular supplier of the producer so applying or other person so extending: Provided, however, That a producer may place a DO–87 order with a new supplier whenever an order for needed production material or a component part or parts has been rejected by his regular supplier because of the provisions of any NPA order or regulation, or because the needed production material or component part is no longer manufactured or handled by the regular supplier.

SEC. 5. Effect of other regulations and orders. When a DO–87 rating is applied by a producer to a supplier, it may be extended in accordance with NPA Reg. 2 (except in those cases mentioned in the last sentence of this section), but no person shall apply or extend a DO–87 rating except in accordance with the provisions of this order and said Reg. 2. The provisions of this order shall prevail over such provisions of NPA Reg. 2 as may be in conflict herewith, but all other provisions of NPA Reg. 2 shall continue in full force and effect. Until the Controlled Materials Plan becomes fully effective, no producer shall use any quantity of aluminum or copper exceeding the percentage thereof used by him in relation to the quantity of carbon steel used by him during the months of January, February, and March 1951. Any producer of component parts who has received special authorization from NPA to adjust his base quota to permit use of additional aluminum, copper, copper forms or products, or zinc, for component parts for farm equipment shall reduce any such additional use of any such material by an amount equal to the quantity of such material which he obtains by the use of the DO–87 rating.

SEC. 6. Certification of ratings. When a person applies or extends a DO–87 rating, the certification shall read as follows:

Certified under NPA Order M–55A and NPA Reg. 2

Such certification constitutes a representation to the recipient and to NPA that the person applying or extending the rating is authorized under the provisions of this order to so apply or extend a DO–87 rating.

SEC. 7. Inventory limitations. Nothing in this order shall be construed as modifying the provisions of NPA Reg. 1 with respect to practicable minimum working inventories, or the provisions of any NPA order establishing limitations with respect to the inventory of any production material. Accordingly, no producer shall apply, and no other person shall extend, a DO–87 rating to order any production material for delivery at a time when his inventory thereof exceeds, or by receipt of the material covered by the order would be made to exceed, the inventory permitted by all applicable NPA regulations and orders.

SEC. 8. Application for adjustment or exception. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, that any provision otherwise works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry, or that its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of the national defense or in the public interest. In examining requests for adjustment claiming that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of the public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each request shall be in writing and shall set forth all pertinent facts and the nature of the relief sought, and shall state the justification therefor.

SEC. 9. Records and reports. (a) Each person participating in any transaction covered by this order shall retain in his possession for at least 2 years records of receipts, deliveries, inventories, and use, in sufficient detail to permit an audit that determines for each transaction that the provisions of this order have been met. This does not specify any particular accounting method and does not require alteration of the system of records customarily maintained, provided such records supply an adequate basis for audit. Records may be retained in the form of microfilm or other photographic copies instead of the originals.

(b) All records required by this order shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority.

(c) Persons subject to this order shall make such records and submit such reports to the National Production Authority as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act of 1942 (5 U. S. C. 139–139F).

"FUNCTIONAL MUSIC" OPERATIONS

POLICY STATEMENT

MAY 4, 1951.

On April 11, 1951, the Commission addressed the following letter to 4 FM stations engaged in "Functional Music" or "Planned Music" operations, stating that certain aspects of such operations are not in accordance with the Communications Act and the Commission's rules and regulations and requesting them to inform the Commission by April 30, 1951, as to how they propose to achieve compliance with all lawful requirements:

We have your letter of • • •, 1951, informing us of your comments concerning the questions raised in our communication to you of January 29, 1951, with regard to the consistency of the "beep" operations in which your FM facility is engaged with the obligations of licensees of broadcast stations, as enunciated in the Communications Act and the Commission's rules and policies in the public interest.

It may be remarked at the outset that the Commission has devoted considerable effort to analysis of FM's problems, and is fully cognizant of the character of the financial difficulties which such licensees have encountered in the past several years; it accordingly views with sympathy attempts on the part of pioneers in this meritorious, and, as yet, in the main unprofitable, field of broadcasting, to ensure the solvency of their operations. However, we are constrained to conclude from our study of your replies to our inquiries, that the "beep" services in which you are presently engaged, are inconsistent with basic statutory and administrative duties incumbent upon licensees of broadcast facilities.

In the first place, contrary to the interpretation urged in your letter, we are of the view that the contractual arrangements governing your transmission of this "special service" affirmatively commit your FM station to provide subscribers with predominantly "planned music" during the stipulated periods. It of course follows from this construction, that in the light of the protracted—or indefinite—future periods during which you are bound under the relevant agreements, to provide this specific type of programming during such a substantial portion of the broadcast day to subscribers thereto, these arrangements must be considered to constitute an invalid abdication of your duty as a licensee to retain discretion, responsibility and control, and to remain free to alter your service as the changing needs of the public in your area may require.

Similarly, the Commission is of the opinion that since the remuneration received by you for transmission of the "planned music" in question under these agreements is based upon the payments therefor made by the individual subscribers concerned, such subscribers are the sponsors of such programs within the meaning of section 317 of the Communications Act. Hence your failure to announce and to log this material as sponsored and to make other required announcements is in plain contravention of Section 317 of the Communications Act and of §§ 3.281, 3.289, 3.284, 3.287, and 3.288 of the Commission's rules and regulations.

Further, the Commission considers that your practice, concededly integral to your "beep" operations under the instant agreements, of confining your broadcasts of the various categories of intelligence required by the rules and the Statute to be carried by radio licensees, such as sponsorship and station identification announcements, to the material transmitted to the general public, while simultaneously eliminating them from reception by subscribers, is violative of the express terms of the relevant provisions of the act and of the Commission's rules and regulations; The requirements there stated are plainly of general application and contemplate that the categories of information there defined will be transmitted to the station's entire audience; they admit of no discretion on the part of the licensees to introduce exceptions thereto for the benefit of subscribers to "special services" or other selected listeners.

Your contention that radio operators enjoy equal privileges with non-licensees under the act, to employ mechanical or electronic devices to eliminate undesired broadcast material from reception, at the request of members of their audiences, is clearly inadmissible. Members of the public are free to tune in or tune out any material they desire. Licensees are required to operate their stations in accordance with the requirements of the Communications Act and the Commission's rules and regulations. One of these requirements is that certain announcements be made to the audience. Obviously this obligation is not carried out when you broadcast a signal the very purpose of which is to prevent a portion of the audience from hearing those announcements. You cannot prevent members of the audience from voluntarily tuning out such announcements. This does not, however, permit you to broadcast a tone which prevents a portion of the audience from hearing the announcements.

The Commission's conclusions with regard to the remaining questions raised in its letter of January 29, 1951, since they pertain not only to the "planned music" activities of the "beep" stations but to all types of "supersonic" operations—including the question as to whether such operations constitute point-to-point communication not authorized by the broadcast rules—will be issued when its study of the problems common to all these special services is completed.

In view of the foregoing, the Commission is of the view that your operations are not in accordance with the requirements of the Communications Act and the Commission's rules and regulations. This is being called to your attention pursuant to section 9 (b) of the Administrative Procedure Act so that you may have an opportunity, before further proceedings are instituted by the Commission, to submit a statement showing how you intend to achieve compliance with all lawful requirements. The statement should be submitted on or before April 30, 1951.

The above letter was addressed only to the 4 stations which had submitted in response to the Commission's request, extensive comments concerning the legality of their "Functional Music" operations. However, the Commission's determinations in the April 11th letter apply equally to all FM stations engaged in similar "Functional Music operations.

It is accordingly requested, pursuant to section 9 (b) of the Administrative Procedure Act, that every station engaged in the transmission of such a "Functional or Planned Music" service, submit a statement to the Commission indicating how it intends to achieve compliance with all lawful requirements. Licensees which have in the past engaged in "Functional Music" operations but have since discontinued such activities, should advise the Commission of the date on which such operations were discontinued.

Replies in response to this public notice should be submitted on or before May 22, 1951.

NOTE: Commissioners Jones and Sterling dissenting.

[Docket No. G-1634]

PANHANDLE EASTERN PIPE LINE CO.

ORDER SUSPENDING SUPPLEMENTS TO FILED RATE SCHEDULE

On April 9, 1951, Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company (Panhandle) filed five supplements to its presently filed and effective Rate Schedule FPC No. 113, covering the sale of natural gas to Michigan Gas Storage Company (Michigan Storage). The five supplements have been designated in the files of the Commission as Supplements 12, 13, 14 (in two parts designated A and B), 15 and 16 to Panhandle's Rate Schedule FPC No. 113.

Supplement No. 12 to Rate Schedule FPC No. 113 covers periodic increases in deliveries of natural gas for the years 1948 through 1952. Panhandle's maximum volume obligation pursuant to Supplement No. 12 is 29,446,000 Mcf. in 1951 and 31,440,000 Mcf. in 1952.

Supplements Nos. 13, 14, 15, and 16 to Rate Schedule FPC No. 113 contemplate substantial future increases in the specific volumetric obligations and entitlements of Panhandle and Michigan Storage respectively for the years 1951 through 1956, inclusive. These supplements, if permitted to become effective, would provide for the following specific annual volumetric obligations with respect to deliveries of natural gas by Panhandle to Michigan Storage:

1952	33,440,000
1953	35,440,000
1954	37,440,000
1955	37,440,000
1956	37,440,000

The specific volumetric obligations contemplated by the proposed Supplements Nos. 13, 14, 15, and 16 to Rate Schedule FPC No. 113 may be unjust, unreasonable, unduly discriminatory or preferential, or otherwise unlawful.

There is presently pending before the Commission the proceedings In the Matter of Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company, et al., Docket Nos. G-1116, G-1240, G-1317, G-1344, G-1417, G-1152, G-1415 and G-1379, in which one of the issues has been specified by the Commission as follows:

"What would be a fair, reasonable and equitable distribution among present and prospective customers of the volumes of natural gas which will be available upon completion of the Trunkline and Panhandle facilities authorized in Docket Nos. G-832 and G-1317. (Commission's orders issued July 13 and 31, and November 30, 1950, and February 27, 1951, in Docket Nos. G-1116, et al.)"

Michigan Storage, among other customers of Panhandle, has participated in the proceedings and has presented testimony with respect to its future requirements for natural gas from Panhandle.

Panhandle, in filing the aforementioned supplements has not requested any specific effective date. The supplements therefore, would take effect upon the expiration of the 30-day notice period, or on May 9, 1951.

The Commission finds: It is necessary and proper in the public interest and to aid in the enforcement of the provisions of the Natural Gas Act that the Commission enter upon a hearing, pursuant to the authority contained in section 4 of such act, concerning the lawfulness of Panhandle's proposed Supplements Nos. 13, 14, 15, and 16, and that said supplements be suspended as hereinafter provided and the use thereof be deferred pending hearing and decision thereon.

The Commission orders:

(A) Pursuant to the authority contained in section 4 of the Natural Gas Act a public hearing be held upon a date to be fixed by further order of the Commission concerning the lawfulness of rates, charges, classifications and services provided in proposed Supplements Nos. 13, 14, 15 and 16 to Panhandle's Rate Schedule FPC No. 113.

(B) Pending such hearing and decision thereon said proposed Supplements Nos. 13, 14, 15, and 16 to Panhandle's Rate Schedule FPC No. 113 be and the same are hereby suspended and the use thereof is deferred until October 9, 1951, and until such further time thereafter as said supplements be made effective in the manner prescribed by the Natural Gas Act.

(C) Interested State Commissions may participate as provided by §§ 1.8 and 1.37 (f) (18 CFR 1.8 and 1.37 (f)) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure.

Date of issuance: May 8, 1951.

However, in no case shall the total weight be less than 70,000 pounds.

The waybills shall show reference to this general permit and all consignors shipping cars under this permit shall furnish the Permit Agent the car numbers, initials, and destinations of the cars shipped under this permit.

A copy of this general permit has been served upon the Association of American Railroads, Car Service Division, as Agent of the railroads subscribing to the car service and per diem agreement under the terms of that agreement, and notice of this permit shall be given to the general public by depositing a copy in the Office of the Secretary of the Commission at Washington, D. C., and by filing it with the Director, Division of the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Issued at Washington, D. C., this 8th day of May 1951.

GENERAL PUBLIC UTILITIES CORP. AND JERSEY CENTRAL POWER & LIGHT CO.

SUPPLEMENTAL ORDER EXCEPTING CERTAIN STOCK FROM COMPETITIVE BIDDING REQUIREMENTS

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the the 8th day of May, 1951.

By order dated March 14, 1951 (Holding Company Act Release No. 10444), as modified by order dated April 23, 1951 (Holding Company Act Release No. 10510), this Commission granted and permitted to become effective a joint application-declaration with an amendment thereto, of General Public Utilities Corporation, a registered holding company, and its public utility subsidiary, Jersey Central Power & Light Company ("Jersey Central"), proposing, inter alia, the issuance and sale by Jersey Central, pursuant to the competitive bidding requirements of Rule U-50 promulgated under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act"), of 40,000 shares of its Cumulative Preferred Stock, --Percent Series.

On April 18, 1951, Jersey Central filed a further amendment with this Commission stating that, pursuant to the competitive bidding requirements of Rule U-50, it invited bids for the purchase of said preferred stock and in response to such invitation it received but one bid which it returned unopened, it being Jersey Central's opinion that effective competitive bidding was not possible under the circumstances.

Said amendment sought, inter alia, entry of an order of this Commission excepting said issuance and sale of preferred stock from the competitive bidding requirements of Rule U-50, so as to permit Jersey Central to enter into negotiations looking to the private sale of such stock.

Notice of the filing of said amendment having been duly given, and opportunity having been afforded all interested persons to request a hearing with respect to said requested exception, and the Commission not having received a request for hearing and not having ordered a hearing thereon; and

The Commission finding that compliance with the competitive bidding requirements of Rule U-50 (b) and (c) is not appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors or consumers as a condition to the exemption of such issuance and sale from the provisions of section 6 (a) of the act, or to aid the Commission in carrying out the provisions of section 6 (b) of the act) to determine such terms and conditions as it may be appropriate to impose in the public interest or for the protection of investors or consumers in exempting such issuance and sale from the provisions of section 6 (a) of the act;

It is hereby ordered, That the issuance and sale by Jersey Central of 40,000 shares of its Cumulative Preferred Stock, -- Percent Series, be, and the same hereby is, excepted from the competitive bidding requirements of Rule U-50 (b) and (c), subject, however, to the conditions prescribed by Rule U-24 and the further condition that such issuance and sale shall not be consummated until a further amendment shall have been filed with this Commission setting forth the terms and conditions under which any sale of such preferred stock is proposed to be made and a further order shall have been entered by this Commission in the light of such further information, which order shall contain such further terms and conditions, if any, as may then be deemed appropriate.

LOUISIANA POWER & LIGHT CO.

ORDER EXTENDING TIME FOR DISPOSITION OF CERTAIN PROPERTIES

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 9th day of May A. D. 1951.

Louisiana Power & Light Company ("Louisiana"), having purchased all of the outstanding shares of stock of The Grant Utilities, Inc. ("Grant"), which transaction was submitted to this Commission and was the subject of an order dated March 8, 1950 (Holding Company Act Release No. 9720), granting the application and permitting the declaration to become effective, and Louisiana having subsequently acquired all of the assets of Grant and having liquidated the latter company; and

Louisiana having previously undertaken to dispose of the water and ice facilities of Grant within one year from April 26, 1950, the date of the acquisition of the stock of such company, unless the Commission should extend such time; and

Louisiana having requested that the Commission extend the time for such disposition for an additional period of 12 months, and having represented that it had made certain efforts to dispose of such property which had not yet been successful; and

The Commission being of the opinion that sufficient showing has been made to warrant an extension of time for six months from April 26, 1951, for disposition of such properties, but being of the opinion that such facts do not justify an extension for the full period requested;

It is hereby ordered, That Louisiana Power & Light Company be and is hereby granted an extension of time until October 26, 1951, to dispose of the water and ice facilities acquired by it as part of the acquisition of the assets of The Grant Utilities, Inc.

F. M. CANTRELL ET AL.

ORDER GRANTING APPLICATION

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 8th day of May A. D. 1951.

In the matter of F. M. Cantrell, Rhoton P. Clift, and Phil B. Whitaker; File No. 70-2617.

F. M. Cantrell, Rhoton P. Clift and Phil B. Whitaker having filed with this Commission an application and amendments thereto pursuant to section 9 (a) (2) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 with respect to the acquisition of shares of common stock of Chattanooga Gas Company ("Chattanooga"), a gas utility company, by the applicants who presently own, control, or hold with power to vote 5% or more of the outstanding voting securities of another public utility holding company, as follows:

The application indicates that the applicants own or control with power to vote 5 percent or more of the outstanding voting securities of Tennessee Natural Gas Lines, Inc., a public utility holding company, which company has on file with the Commission an application for exemption as a holding company pursuant to section 3 (a) (1) of the act. Applicants, along with approximately 53 other individuals who for the most part reside in Chattanooga, Tennessee, propose to acquire 195,000 shares (30 percent of the common stock of Chattanooga from Equitable Securities Corporation at a price of $3.30 per share. Of the 195,000 shares of common stock of Chattanooga, applicants propose to acquire an aggregate amount of 27,500 shares (which represents about 4.2 percent of the total outstanding common stock of Chattanooga) as follows: F. M. Cantrell, 7,500 shares; Rhoton P. Clift, 10,000 shares; and Phil B. Whitaker, 10,000 shares. The applicants state that such purchase is for investment only and that no brokerage fees or commissions will be paid, but that the expenses of Phil B. Whitaker and the Trustees' fee for delivering the stock will be paid by adding one cent per share to the purchase price of all the members of the group.

The application further indicates that, after the proposed acquisition is effected, the applicants, together with Thomas W. Goodloe, Chairman of the Board of Directors of Chattanooga, will own in excess of 5 percent of the voting securities of Chattanooga and at least 5 percent of the voting securities of Tennessee Natural Gas Lines, Inc., of which Thomas W. Goodloe is Vice President and a Director. In the event the Commission approves the proposed transaction, applicants state that they, together with Thomas W. Goodloe, will file an exemption statement on Form U-3A-2, pursuant to Rule U-2 under the act, for exemption as a holding company by reason of the stock interests held by such applicants and Thomas W. Goodloe in Tennessee Natural Gas Lines, Inc.

Said application having been filed on April 20, 1951, and amendments thereto having been filed on April 26 and May 1, 1951, and notice of said filing having been given in the form and manner prescribed by Rule U-23 promulgated pursuant to the act, and the Commission not having received a request for a hearing with respect to said application, as amended, within the period of time specified in said notice, or otherwise, and not having ordered a hearing thereon, and

The Commission finding with respect to the application, as amended, that the applicable provisions of the act are satisfied and that no adverse findings are necessary, and the Commission deeming it appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers that said application, as amended, be granted subject to the terms and conditions of Rule U-24, and the Commission further deeming it appropriate to grant the request of the applicants that this order become effective forthwith;

It is ordered, Pursuant to Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, and subject to the terms and conditions prescribed in Rule U-24, that said application, as amended, be, and the same hereby is granted, so as to permit consummation of the proposed transactions forthwith.

WAYNE D. RUSE ET AL.

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER REVOKING REGISTRATIONS

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 8th day of May A. D. 1951.

In the matter of Wayne D. Ruse, 406 Chickasha Street, Chickasha, Oklahoma; Benjamin E. Stearns d/b/a Stearns & Co., 926 Exchange Street, Rochester, New York; Warren Lee Sterling d/b/a W. L. Sterling Company, 114 East 52d Street, New York, New York; E. Van Benschoten, Hotel Roosevelt, 45th Street & Madison Ave., New York, New York; Charles J. Werner, 44 Whitehall Street, New York, New York; Matthew P. Wilson, 627 Park Avenue, Dunkirk, New York.

These are proceedings pursuant to section 15 (b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("the act") to determine whether the registrants named above, each of whom is registered as broker and dealer or as a dealer only, willfully violated section 17 (a) of the act and Rule X-17A-5 thereunder and, if so, whether it is in the public interest to revoke their registrations.[1]

The proceedings were instituted by separate notices and orders for hearing issued on January 22, 30, 31 and February 2, 1951, setting the hearing dates for March 7, 1951, as to all of the registrants except Wayne D. Ruse for whom February 26, 1951, was set as the date of hearing. On January 22, 31, February 2 and 6, 1951, copies of the notices and orders were sent by registered mail to the addresses last furnished us by the registrants. With the exception of the notices sent to Ruse and to Wilson, which were receipted for by persons other than the registrants, the notices were returned to us by the Post Office Department with notations indicating that the registrants could not be found at the addresses given. None of the registrants appeared in person on the dates set for hearing.[2]

On November 28, 1942, we promulgated Rule X-17A-5 under section 17 (a) of the act, which provides, among other things, that every registered broker or dealer must file with this Commission a report of financial condition during each calendar year commencing with the year 1943. Promulgation of the rule was announced by publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER, by release to the press, and by distribution to persons on our mailing list.

The registrations of the registrants became effective prior to 1943 and have not been withdrawn, cancelled, revoked or suspended. Our records show that Van Benschoten failed to file the required reports during any year from 1945 through 1949, that Wilson failed to do so from 1946 through 1949 and that the remaining four registrants failed to file from 1943 through 1949.

Upon review of the records in these proceedings we have concluded that each of the registrants violated section 17 (a) of the act and Rule X-17A-5 thereunder as a result of his failure to file such reports. We conclude also that such violations were willful within the meaning of section 15 (b).[3]

We conclude, on the basis of the foregoing, that it is necessary in the public interest to revoke the registration of each of the registrants. However, in view of the fact that our records do not show whether any of them actually received personal notice of the scheduled hearings, and to avoid any possible prejudice to them, our order will provide that the revocation of registrations be without prejudice to a motion on the part of any registrant to reopen the proceedings and to seek, upon a proper showing, to set aside the order of revocation applicable to said registrant.[4]

Accordingly, it is ordered, That the registrations of Wayne D. Ruse, Benjamin E. Stearns, doing business as Stearns & Co., Warren Lee Sterling, doing business as W. L. Sterling Company, E. Van Benschoten, Charles J. Werner and Matthew P. Wilson be, and they hereby are, revoked without prejudice to a motion by any of the said registrants to reopen the record in the proceeding naming him, and, upon a proper showing, to set aside the order of revocation applicable to said registrant.

By the Commission.

[1] Section 15 (b) provides in part: "The Commission shall, after appropriate notice and opportunity for hearing, by order * * * revoke the registration of any broker or dealer if it finds that such * * * revocation is in the public interest and (1) such broker or dealer * * * (D) has willfully violated any provision * * * of this title, or of any rule or regulation thereunder."

[2] Our orders and notices instituting these proceedings provided that the same be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER not later than 15 days prior to the dates of hearing. Chapter III—Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, Department of Agriculture

[B. E. P. Q. 485, 19th Rev.]

PART 301—DOMESTIC QUARANTINE NOTICES

WHITE-FRINGED BEETLE; CERTAIN ARTICLES EXEMPTED FROM CERTIFICATION REQUIREMENTS

On April 5, 1951, there was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (16 F. R. 2972) a notice of proposed amendment of administrative instructions exempting certain regulated articles from the certification requirements of §§ 301.72–4 and 301.72–5 of the regulations supplemental to Notice of Quarantine No. 72 relating to white-fringed beetles (7 CFR, Supp., 301.72–4 and 301.72–5). After due consideration of all relevant matters presented and pursuant to the authority conferred upon the Chief of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine by the second proviso of the white-fringed beetle quarantine (7 CFR, Supp., 301.72), revised administrative instructions are hereby adopted as follows:

§ 301.72a Administrative instructions exempting articles from certification. (a) The following articles are hereby exempt from the certification requirements of §§ 301.72–4 and 301.72–5 when they are free from soil, when they have not been exposed to infestation, and when sanitation practices are maintained as prescribed by or to the satisfaction of the inspector:

(1) Hay and straw, except that peanut hay is not exempt.

(2) Uncleaned grass, grain, and legume seed.

(3) Seed cotton and cottonseed.

(4) Forest products, such as cordwood, stump wood, logs, lumber, timbers, posts, poles and cross ties.

(b) Certification will be required for the following articles and materials:

(2) Nursery stock.

(3) Grass sod.

(4) Plant crowns or roots for propagation.

(5) Potatoes (Irish), when freshly harvested, other than those grown in the regulated area in Baldwin County, Alabama.

(6) True bulbs, corms, tubers, and rhizomes of ornamental plants, when freshly harvested or uncured.

(9) Scrap metal and junk.

(Sec. 8, 37 Stat. 318, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 161)

The foregoing revised administrative instructions shall become effective on May 16, 1951, and on that date shall supersede B. E. P. Q. 485, 18th Revision, which was effective June 14, 1950 (7 CFR 301.72a, 15 F. R. 2871).

Following publication of the notice of rule making relating to these instructions, it was determined that there are no plantings of Irish potatoes in the sections of Baldwin County, Alabama, actually infested by white-fringed beetles. Such potatoes have therefore been added to the list of exempt articles in order to relieve the growers of unnecessary certification requirements. This relief should be afforded the growers immediately. Accordingly, it is found for good cause that notice and public procedure under section 4 (a) of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003 (a)), in respect to this article, are impracticable, unnecessary, and contrary to the public interest. These administrative instructions relieve restrictions and are within the exception in section 4 (c) of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003 (c)). Good cause is therefore found for the issuance of these administrative instructions effective less than 30 days after their publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 24th day of April 1951.

LIMITATION OF SHIPMENTS

a. Findings. (1) Pursuant to Marketing Agreement No. 98 and Order No. 57, as amended (15 F. R. 311), regulating the handling of Irish potatoes grown in certain designated counties in Idaho and Malheur County, Oregon, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (48 Stat. 31, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and upon the basis of the recommendation and information submitted by the Idaho-Eastern Oregon Potato Committee, established pursuant to said marketing agreement and amended order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the amended limitation of shipments, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER (5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) in that (i) the time intervening between the date when the information upon which this amendment is based became available and the time when this amendment must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient, (ii) this amendment merely extends the effective period of the present regulation, (iii) compliance with this regulation will not require any preparation on the part of handlers which cannot be completed by such effective date, (iv) a reasonable time is permitted, under the circumstances, for such preparation, and (v) information regarding the committee's recommendation has been made available to producers and handlers in the production area.

b. Order, as amended. The provisions in paragraph (b) (1) of § 957.307 (16 F. R. 1) shall, on and after the effective date hereof, read as follows:

(1) During the period beginning 12:01 a. m., m. s. t., February 6, 1951, and ending 12:01 a. m., m. s. t., July 1, 1951, no handler shall ship potatoes of any variety unless (i) such potatoes of the Russet Burbank and long white varieties meet the requirements of the U. S. No. 2 or better grade and are at least 2 inches minimum diameter or 4 ounces minimum weight, and (ii) such potatoes of the red skin varieties meet the requirements of the U. S. No. 2 or better grade and are at least $1^{1}/_{2}$ inches minimum diameter, as such terms, grades, and sizes, are defined in the U. S. Standards for Potatoes (7 CFR 51.366), including the tolerances set forth therein.

(Sec. 5, 49 Stat. 753, as amended, 7 U. S. C. and Sup. 608c)

Done at Washington, D. C., this 11th day of May 1951, to become effective 12:01 a. m., m. s. t., June 1, 1951.

TITLE 14—CIVIL AVIATION

Chapter I—Civil Aeronautics Board

Subchapter A—Civil Air Regulations

[Supp. 18]

CERTIFICATION OF REVERSE THRUST PROPELLER INSTALLATIONS AND LIMITATIONS OF THESE INSTALLATIONS IN ESTABLISHMENT OF TAKE-OFF AND LANDING FIELD LENGTHS

The following policies are hereby adopted. The sections of the regulations being implemented are repeated here to assist the public in understanding how the Administrator's policies apply to them.

§ 4b.10 Eligibility for type and airworthiness certificates. An airplane shall be eligible for type and airworthiness certification under the provisions of this part if it complies with the airworthiness provisions hereinafter established, or if the Administrator finds that the provision or provisions not complied with are compensated for by other design features which provide an equivalent level of safety. Provided, That the Administrator finds no feature or characteristic of the airplane which renders it unsafe for the transport category.

§ 4b.10–1 Approval of reverse thrust propellers (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.10). A reverse thrust propeller is a design feature which is not specifically covered in the Civil Air Regulations. When an airplane incorporates a reverse thrust propeller installation, the Administrator will approve the installation in accordance with the policies set forth in § 4b.400–1, provided it has no feature or characteristic which renders its use unsafe in transport category airplanes.

§ 4b.115 Accelerate-stop distance. (a) The accelerate-stop distance shall be the sum of the following:

(1) The distance required to accelerate the airplane from a standing start to the speed V_1,

(2) Assuming the critical engine to fail at the speed V_1, the distance required to bring the airplane to a full stop from the point corresponding with the speed V_1.

(b) In addition to, or in lieu of, wheel brakes, the use of other braking means shall be acceptable in determining the accelerate-stop distance: Provided, That such braking means shall have been proven to be safe and reliable, that the manner of their employment is such that consistent results can be expected under normal conditions of operation, and that exceptional skill is not required to control the airplane.

(c) The landing gear shall remain extended throughout the accelerate-stop distance.

§ 4b.115–1 Reverse thrust used in accelerate-stop distance (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.115). See § 4b.400–1 (a) (14).

§ 4b.123 Landplanes. The landing distance referred to in § 4b.122 shall be determined on a dry, hard-surfaced runway in accordance with the following:

(a) The operating pressures on the breaking system shall not be in excess of those approved by the manufacturer of the brakes,

(b) The brakes shall not be used in such manner as to produce excessive wear of brakes or tires,

(c) Means other than wheel brakes may be used in determining the landing distance: Provided, That:

(1) Exceptional skill is not required to control the airplane,

(2) The manner of their employment is such that consistent results could be expected under normal service, and

(3) They are regarded as reliable.

§ 4b.123–1 Landing distances (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.123 (c)). See § 4b.400–1 (b).

GROUND HANDLING CHARACTERISTICS

§ 4b.170 Longitudinal stability and control. (a) There shall be no uncontrollable tendency for landplanes to nose over in any reasonably expected operating condition or when rebound occurs during landing or take-off.

(b) Wheel brakes shall operate smoothly and shall exhibit no undue tendency to induce nosing over.

(c) When a tail-wheel landing gear is used, it shall be possible during the take-off ground run on concrete to maintain any attitude up to thrust line level at 80 percent of V_{S_1}.

§ 4b.170–1 Ground handling characteristics with reverse thrust (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.170). See § 4b.400–1 (a) (1), (a) (4), and (a) (5).

§ 4b.171 Directional stability and control. (a) There shall be no uncontrollable ground-looping tendency in 90° cross winds of velocity up to 0.2 V_{S_0} at any ground speed at which the airplane is expected to operate.

(b) All landplanes shall be demonstrated to be satisfactorily controllable with no exceptional degree of skill or alertness on the part of the pilot in power-off landings at normal landing speed during which brakes or engine power are not used to maintain a straight path.

(c) Means shall be provided for directional control of the airplane during taxying.

§ 4b.171–1 Ground handling characteristics with reverse thrust (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.171–1). See § 4b.400–1 (a) (1), (a) (4), and (a) (5).

§ 4b.172 Shock absorption. The shock absorbing mechanism shall not produce damage to the structure when the airplane is taxied on the roughest ground which it is reasonable to expect the airplane to encounter in normal operation.

§ 4b.172–1 Ground handling characteristics with reverse thrust (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.172). See § 4b.400–1 (a) (1).

§ 4b.173 Demonstrated cross wind. There shall be established a cross component of wind velocity at which it has been demonstrated to be safe to take off or land.

§ 4b.173–1 Ground handling characteristics with reverse thrust (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.173). See § 4b.400–1 (a) (1) and (a) (5).

WATER HANDLING CHARACTERISTICS

§ 4b.180 Stability and control. (a) Seaplanes shall exhibit no uncontrollable porpoising at any speed at which the airplane is normally operated on water.

(b) There shall be no uncontrollable looping tendency in 90° cross winds of velocity up to 0.2 V_{S_0} at any speed at which the airplane is expected to operate on water.

(c) Means shall be provided for directional control of the airplane during taxying on water.

§ 4b.180–1 Water handling characteristics with reverse thrust (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.180). See § 4b.400–1 (a) (1), (a) (4), and (a) (5).

§ 4b.181 Spray characteristics. Spray during taxying, take-off, or landing shall at no time dangerously obscure the vision of the pilots nor produce damage to the propeller or other parts of the airplane.

§ 4b.181–1 Water handling characteristics with reverse thrust (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.181). See § 4b.400–1 (a) (1).

§ 4b.182 Demonstrated cross wind. There shall be established a cross component of wind velocity at which it has been demonstrated to be safe to take off and land.

§ 4b.182–1 Water handling characteristics with reverse thrust (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.182). See § 4b.400–1 (a) (1) and (a) (5).

§ 4b.337 Brakes—(a) General. (1) All airplanes shall be equipped with approved brakes.

(2) The brake system shall be so designed and constructed that in the event of a single failure in any connection or transmitting element in the brake system (excluding the operating pedal or handle), or the loss of any single source of hydraulic or other brake operating energy supply, it shall be possible to bring the airplane to rest under conditions specified in § 4b.122 with a mean deceleration during the landing roll of at least 50 percent of that obtained in determining the landing distance as prescribed in that section.

(3) In applying the requirement of subparagraph (2) of this paragraph to hydraulic brakes, the brake drum, shoes, and actuators (or their equivalents) shall be considered as connecting or transmitting elements, unless it is shown that the leakage of hydraulic fluid resulting from failure of the sealing elements in these units would not reduce the braking effectiveness below that specified in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph.

(b) Brake controls. Brake controls shall not require excessive control forces in their operation.

(c) Parking brake controls. A parking brake control shall be provided and installed so that it can be set by the pilot and, without further attention, will maintain sufficient braking to prevent the airplane from rolling on a paved, level runway while take-off power on the critical engine is being applied.

§ 4b.337–1 Reverse thrust as substituted for dual brake system (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.337). See § 4b.400–1 (a) (14).

§ 4b.351 Pilot compartment vision—(a) Nonprecipitation conditions. (1) The pilot compartment shall be arranged to afford the pilots a sufficiently extensive, clear, and undistorted view to perform safely all maneuvers within the operating limitations of the airplane, including taxying, take-off, approach, and landing.

(2) It shall be demonstrated by day and night flight tests that the pilot compartment is free of glare and reflections which would tend to interfere with the pilots' vision.

(b) Precipitation conditions. (1) Means shall be provided for maintaining a sufficient portion of the windshield clear so that both pilots are afforded a sufficiently extensive view along the flight path in all normal flight attitudes of the airplane. Such means shall be designed to function under the following conditions without continuous attention on the part of the crew:

(i) In heavy rain at speeds up to 1.6 V_{S_1}, flaps retracted.

(ii) In the most severe icing conditions for which approval of the airplane is desired.

(2) In addition to the means prescribed in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph at least the first pilot shall be provided with a window which, when the cabin is not pressurized, is openable under the conditions prescribed in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, and which provides the view specified in that subparagraph. The design shall be such that when the window is opened sufficient protection from the elements will be provided against the impairment of the pilot's vision.

§ 4b.351–1 Vision with reverse thrust (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.351). See § 4b.400–1 (a) (8).

GENERAL

§ 4b.400 Scope. (a) The powerplant installation shall be considered to include all components of the airplane which are necessary for its propulsion. It shall also be considered to include all components which affect the control of the major propulsive units or which affect their safety of operation between normal inspection or overhaul periods. (See § 4b.604 and § 4b.613 for instrument installation and marking.)

(b) All components of the powerplant installation shall be constructed, arranged, and installed in a manner which will assure their continued safe operation between normal inspections or overhaul periods.

(c) Accessibility shall be provided to permit such inspection and maintenance as is necessary to assure continued airworthiness.

(d) Electrical interconnections shall be provided to prevent the existence of differences of potential between major components of the powerplant installation and other portions of the airplane.

§ 4b.400–1 Reverse thrust propeller installations (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.10 and § 4b.400). (a) The Administrator may approve reverse thrust propeller installations which comply with the following:

(1) Exceptional pilot skill should not be required in taxying or in any condition in which reverse thrust is to be used.

(2) Recommended operating procedures and operating limitations and placards should be established.

(3) Throttle movement should be such that the motion is in the direction of the desired acceleration of the airplane.

(4) The airplane control characteristics should be satisfactory with regard to control forces encountered, and buffeting should not be likely to cause structural damage.

(5) The directional control should be adequate using normal piloting skill.

(6) It should be determined that no dangerous condition is encountered in the event of sudden failure of one engine in any likely operating condition.

(7) The operating procedures and airplane configuration should be such as to provide reasonable safeguards against serious structural damage to parts of the airplane due to the reverse airflow.

(8) It should be determined that the pilot's vision is not dangerously obscured under normal operating conditions on dusty or wet runways and where light snow is on the runway.

(9) It should be impossible, except by the use of a manual override which requires separate and deliberate action on the part of the pilot, to place the propellers in the reverse thrust position until the airplane is on the ground, unless it is demonstrated that it is safe to reverse the propellers in any likely flight condition. Consideration should be given to possible rebound of the airplane following initial contact, at which point propeller reversal has taken place.

(10) The procedures and mechanisms for reversing should, without requiring exceptional piloting skill, maintain sufficient power to keep the engine running at an adequate speed to prevent engine stalling during or after the propeller reversing operation.

(11) It should not be possible using normal pilot technique to cause overspeed of the propeller during the propeller reversing operation.

(12) The propeller control arrangement should be such as to provide adequate safeguards against inadvertent reversal of propellers.

(13) The engine cooling characteristics should be satisfactory when functioning within the operating limitations.

(14) The use of reverse thrust will be permitted, in combination with the brakes installed, to establish the accelerate-stop distance, if it is shown that such use provides a level of safety equivalent to that when wheel brakes alone are used, taking into consideration pilot skill required and the likelihood of attaining the necessary performance under conditions of simulated engine failure. Either of the following conditions and limitations should be used:

(i) Symmetrical reverse thrust on (n–2) engines with power not to exceed the maximum continuous rating, where n is equal to the number of engines.

(ii) Asymmetrical reverse thrust on (n–1) engines in normal idle setting but this idle setting power should not exceed 25 percent of the maximum continuous rating. This operation should be permitted only where it can be shown that with use of this asymmetrical reverse thrust the airplane can be satisfactorily controlled on a wet runway.

(b) The Administrator will not approve the use of landing distances obtainable with the use of reverse thrust propellers in establishing landing field lengths until such time as sufficient experience with their use is obtained for proper consideration of all related factors involved in the establishment of adequate airport lengths for routine landings.

COOLING SYSTEM

§ 4b.450 General. The powerplant cooling provisions shall be capable of maintaining the temperatures of major powerplant components, engine fluids, and the carburetor intake air within the established safe values under all conditions of ground and flight operation. (For cooling system instruments see §§ 4b.604 and 4b.734.)

§ 4b.450–1 Cooling with reverse thrust (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.450). See § 4b.400–1 (a) (13).

EMERGENCY DECISIONS

The following interpretations are hereby adopted. The section of the regulations being implemented is repeated here to assist the public in understanding how the Administrator's interpretations apply to it.

§ 41.63 First pilot rules. • • •

(b) Emergency decisions. (1) The pilot in command is authorized to follow any course of action which appears necessary in emergency situations which, in the interest of safety, require immediate decision and action. He may, in such situations, deviate from prescribed methods, procedures, or minimums to the extent required by considerations of safety. When such emergency authority is exercised the pilot shall keep the proper control station fully informed regarding the progress of the flight. He shall submit a written report of any such deviation to the Administrator of Civil Aeronautics within seven days after the completion of the trip.

§ 41.63–1 Emergency decisions (CAA interpretations which apply to § 41.63 (b) (1). The term "emergency situations," as used in this section, is interpreted to mean an unexpected occurrence or condition requiring immediate action to meet its danger. Under certain circumstances, an unexpected occurrence or condition might include icing conditions, engine or structural failure, weather conditions, danger of collision, etc. It is not intended that such an occurrence or condition must become critical before emergency authority is exercised. The pilot shall make a common sense evaluation of the factors and information available to him. If, after such an evaluation, he reasonably believes that an emergency exists or will be created, he is permitted to exercise his emergency authority and deviate from prescribed regulations and procedures to the extent required by considerations of safety.

This interpretation shall become effective May 15, 1951.

Subchapter C—Procedural Regulations

[Reg., Serial No. PR–11]

PART 302—RULES OF PRACTICE IN ECONOMIC PROCEEDINGS

PETITIONS TO CONDUCT CHARTER TRIPS AND SPECIAL SERVICES IN FOREIGN AND OVERSEAS TRANSPORTATION

Adopted by the Civil Aeronautics Board at its office in Washington, D. C., on the 10th day of May 1951.

With the coming into effect May 1, 1951, of Part 207 of the Economic Regulations covering charter trips and special services it becomes desirable to fix a procedure whereby petitions to perform such trips in overseas and foreign air transportation may be made to the Board in accordance with the substantive requirements of § 207.8.

Interested persons have been afforded an opportunity to participate in the making of this regulation, and due consideration has been given to all relevant matter presented. Since this is the rule of agency procedure and practice, the amendment may be made effective without prior notice.

In consideration of the foregoing, the Civil Aeronautics Board hereby amends Part 302 of the Procedural Regulations (14 CFR, Part 302, as amended) effective May 10, 1951.

By adding a new § 302.20 to read as follows:

§ 302.20 Petitions to conduct charter trips or special services into areas protected by § 207.8 of the Economic Regulations. The rules set out in this section shall govern proceedings brought by air carriers holding certificates of public convenience and necessity who seek to obtain Board approval to perform charter trips or special services in overseas or foreign air transportation to points or areas where such service would otherwise be contrary to the provisions of § 207.8 of the Economic Regulations.

(a) Petitions filed pursuant to this section need not conform to the requirements of §§ 302.2 and 302.3 but must be submitted in triplicate, signed by a managing officer of the Company. Such petition shall set forth the proposed date(s), number of trips, and area(s) or point(s) between which the service is desired to be performed, together with the equipment to be utilized, the approximate number of passengers or amount and kind of cargo to be carried, and the compensation to be received. In the case of charter trips, a copy of the proposed charter agreement(s) shall be annexed to the petition. A copy of the petition, together with all supporting documents, shall be served upon the air carrier certificated to serve the points or areas concerned at its principal office, and proof of such service shall accompany the petition when filed with the Board.

(b) The air carrier certificated to serve the points or areas concerned shall have five days (not including Saturday or Sunday or legal holidays) after the filing of such a petition in which to file notice of objection thereto, if any, with the Board and if such notice is filed, an additional ten days (not including Saturday or Sunday or legal holidays) in which to file supporting reasons or arguments as to why the petition should not be granted in the public interest. Such objections shall include a statement as to the objecting carrier's ability to handle the traffic and may, if desired, include the terms upon which the service requested would be performed by it.

(c) Thereafter the Board will grant the petition to such extent and subject to such terms and conditions as it finds to be in the public interest. Petitions for the approval of service which it finds not in the public interest will be denied.

(Sec. 205, 52 Stat. 984; 49 U. S. C. 425. Interprets or applies sec. 1001, 52 Stat. 1017; 49 U. S. C. 641)

By the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Subchapter C—Miscellaneous Excise Taxes

[T. D. 5840]

PART 314—TAXES ON GASOLINE, LUBRICATING OIL, AND MATCHES

CREDIT OR REFUND OF TAX PAID ON CERTAIN SUPPLIES FOR CERTAIN VESSELS

In order to conform Regulations 44 (1944 ed.) (26 CFR Part 314), relating to taxes on gasoline, lubricating oil, and matches under Chapter 29 of the Internal Revenue Code, to the provisions of section 609 of the Revenue Act of 1950 (Public Law 814, 81st Congress, 2d Session), approved September 23, 1950, such regulations are hereby amended as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. There is inserted immediately following section 3443 set forth with certain other provisions of the Internal Revenue Code preceding § 314.64 the following:

SEC. 609. ARTICLES SOLD FOR USE OF AIRCRAFT ENGAGED IN FOREIGN TRADE (REVENUE ACT OF 1950, APPROVED SEPTEMBER 23, 1950).

Effective with respect to articles purchased (by the user thereof) on or after the first day of the first month which begins more than ten days after the date of the enactment of this act, section 3443 (a) (3) (A) (ii) (relating to refunds in the case of articles used or resold for use as ships' stores, etc.) is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(ii) used or resold for use for any of the purposes, but subject to the conditions, provided in section 3451;".

PAR. 2. Section 314.64, as amended by Treasury Decision 5674, approved November 23, 1948 is further amended by striking out paragraph (j) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

(j) (1) Under the provisions of section 3443 (a) (3) (A) (ii), prior to November 1, 1950, no credit or refund was allowable with respect to tax paid on articles sold for use on certain aircraft, even though it was known at the time of the sale that the articles would be so used. By virtue of the provisions of section 609 of the Revenue Act of 1950, a manufacturer may be allowed a refund, or may take credit against the tax shown to be due upon any subsequent monthly return, in the amount of tax paid by him with respect to the sale of any article which is used, or resold for use on or after November 1, 1950, for any of the purposes, but subject to the conditions, provided in section 3451. (See § 314.28.) Refund or credit will be made or allowed in such cases only upon the submission of the evidence required by the preceding paragraphs relating to transactions within the scope of section 3443 (a) (3) (A).

(2) Where articles are sold by the manufacturer in accordance with the provisions of section 317 (b) of the Tariff Act of 1930, as added by the act approved June 25, 1938, for use as supplies (including equipment) upon, or in the maintenance or repair of, aircraft registered in any foreign country and actually engaged in foreign trade or trade between the United States and any of its possessions, the manufacturer who paid the tax to the Government may be allowed a refund or may take credit against the tax due upon any subsequent monthly return, provided he has in his possession the evidence outlined in § 314.29.

Because of the technical nature of the amendment made herein, it is found that it is unnecessary to issue this Treasury decision with notice and public procedure thereon under section 4 (a) of the Administrative Procedure Act, approved June 11, 1946, or subject to the effective date limitation of section 4 (c) of said act.

Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

§ 575.1 Military Academy—(a) Direction and supervision. (1) The United States Military Academy is under the general direction and supervision of the Department of the Army. The Secretary of the Army has designated the Chief of Staff of the Army as the officer in direct charge of all matters pertaining to West Point.

(2) The immediate government and military command of the Academy and the military post at West Point are vested in the Superintendent. Subordinate to the Superintendent is the Dean of the Academic Board who has charge of the faculty and all academic work, and who acts as representative of the academic departments and as adviser on academic matters to the Superintendent. The administration and training of the Corps of Cadets is in charge of the Commandant of Cadets, who is also head of the Department of Tactics.

(b) Aim. The aim of West Point is to provide instruction, experience, and motivation to each student so that he will graduate with the knowledge and the qualities of leadership required of a junior officer and with a basis for continued development throughout a lifetime of service to his country, leading to readiness for responsibilities of the highest order in the Department of Defense.

§ 575.2 Admission; general. (a) The requirements for admission to the Military Academy differ somewhat from those for admission to a civilian college or university. These requirements are set forth in detail in this part. Each candidate should study carefully those which apply to his individual case. Paragraphs (b) through (g) of this section summarize briefly the steps which all candidates must take.

(b) The initial step in gaining admission is to secure a nomination. No one may take the entrance examination unless he has been designated a nominee by one of the nominating authorities. Usually the candidate obtains his nomination either from his Representative in Congress or from one of his United States Senators. Other sources of nomination are described in detail in §§ 575.3 to 575.5. To be eligible for appointment a candidate must have had his seventeenth birthday and not have had his twenty-second birthday on July 1 of the year in which he seeks admission.

(c) The second step is to satisfy the mental and physical requirements for admission to the Academy. For the vast majority of candidates this opportunity comes during the first week in March each year (a supplemental examination is held in June for certain classes of appointees) when entrance examinations are held at certain military installations throughout the country and overseas. The entrance examination is in three parts: Mental, medical (physical), and physical aptitude.

(d) The mental examination required of a candidate depends upon the kind of nomination he has received and upon the extent of his education. Any candidate who has graduated from high school with good grades, particularly in mathematics and English, should be able to pass the mental examination.

(e) All candidates must take the medical examination. To qualify, a candidate must be in good health, have no deformities, and have good vision and hearing. All candidates must also take the physical aptitude examination. Qualification in this examination requires that a candidate have the physical strength, endurance, coordination, and agility normally found in active young men in their late teens.

(f) Several weeks after a candidate has taken the examinations, he is notified whether or not he is fully eligible for admission. If so, and if a vacancy exists under the terms of his appointment, he reports at West Point on the first Tuesday of July. At that time he is sworn in as a cadet of the United States Military Academy and assumes an obligation to serve in the Army or Air Force for the period required by law.

(g) Detailed statements of the general, scholastic, medical, and physical aptitude requirements are contained in § 575.6. Each candidate should make a careful study of the scholastic requirements in particular to find out specifically in what category he falls. Once a candidate has succeeded in securing a nomination he will receive definite instructions from The Adjutant General, Department of the Army, concerning further action on his part that is necessary to complete his admission requirements.

§ 575.3 Appointments. (a) Admission to the Military Academy may be gained only by appointment to one of the 2,496 cadetships authorized by law. Graduation of the senior class, normally leaves about 750 vacancies each year. Candidates may be nominated for these vacancies only during the year preceding the admission date, the first Tuesday in July.

(b) Letters of appointment are issued by the Department of the Army, in the name of the President, upon receipt of a nomination from one of the sources described below.

§ 575.4 Sources of nomination. The 2,496 cadetships authorized at the Military Academy are allocated among the various sources of nomination as follows:

Noncompetitive:
Representatives (4 each)	1,740
Senators (4 each)	384
Miscellaneous:
Hawaii and Alaska (4 each)	8
District of Columbia	6
Panama Canal	2
Puerto Rico	4
Vice Presidential	3
Total miscellaneous	23
Competitive:
Army and Air Force:
Regular Components	50
Reserve Components (National Guard of the United States; Air National Guard of the United States; Organized Reserve Corps; Air Force Reserve)	99
Presidential	89
Sons of deceased veterans	40
Honor military and Honor naval schools	40
Total	2,496

(a) Noncompetitive. Nomination of candidates for appointment from noncompetitive sources (whether or not based upon preliminary competitive examination) is entirely in the hands of the nominating authority who has the cadetship at his disposal, and all applications must be addressed to him. For each vacancy four candidates may be nominated: one to be named as principal, one as first alternate, one as second alternate, and one as third alternate. The first alternate, if qualified, will be admitted if the principal fails; the second alternate, if qualified, will be admitted if both the principal and first alternate fail; and the third alternate, if qualified, will be admitted if the principal and the first and second alternates fail. The law requires that candidates appointed from States at large, congressional districts, the Territories, the District of Columbia, or the island of Puerto Rico, must be actual residents of the geographical unit from which nominated.

(1) Vice Presidential. The Vice President may nominate candidates from the United States at large.

(2) States at large and congressional districts. The nominating authorities of the States at large are the United States Senators; of the congressional districts, the Representatives in Congress. Inasmuch as many Congressmen hold their own competitive examinations to facilitate selection of the best qualified applicants, candidates seeking congressional nomination should apply to their Senators and Representatives at the earliest possible date.

(3) Territories, District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico. Nominating authorities for these vacancies are the following:

Territory of Alaska—Delegate in Congress.
Territory of Hawaii—Delegate in Congress.
District of Columbia—Commissioners of District of Columbia.
Puerto Rico—The Resident Commissioner.

(4) Panama Canal. Appointments are made upon nomination of the Governor of the Panama Canal from among the sons of civilians residing in the Canal Zone and sons of civilian personnel of the United States Government and the Panama Railroad Company residing in the Republic of Panama.

(b) Competitive. Appointments to vacancies within competitive groups are awarded to those fully qualified candidates within each category who attain the highest scores on the West Point Achievement Tests in Mathematics and English and the West Point Aptitude Test. Candidates for these vacancies can qualify only by taking these three tests on the first Tuesday in March, regardless of the extent of their education and regardless of performance on entrance examinations of previous years. Failure of a competitive candidate to report for the March examination—regardless of the circumstances—will vacate his nomination. There is no restriction on the residence of any competitive candidate.

(1) Army and Air Force. (i) One hundred and eighty (180) cadet-ships at the Military Academy are divided equally between enlisted men of the United States Army and the United States Air Force as follows:

(a) Ninety (90) from the Regular components (Regular Army and Regular Air Force); (b) Ninety (90) from the Reserve components (National Guard of the United States, the Air National Guard of the United States, the Organized Reserve Corps, and the Air Force Reserve).

(ii) On or about June 1 each year The Adjutant General estimates the number of vacancies that will be available for appointments to the class entering the Military Academy on the first Tuesday in July of the following year. The number of candidates that may be nominated from each of the Regular components is three times the number of available vacancies. For each available vacancy in the ninety (90) cadet spaces authorized the non-Regular components, the Army and Air Force National Guard of the United States are authorized to nominate from among their combined enlisted personnel three candidates; and the Organized Reserve Corps and Air Force Reserve are authorized to nominate from among their combined enlisted personnel three candidates. Admission of candidates to fill Regular component vacancies is made from among all Regular Army and Regular Air Force competitors regardless of the command from which nominated; to fill Reserve vacancies, from among all National Guard, Air National Guard, Organized Reserve Corps, and Air Force Reserve competitors regardless of the State, Territory, District, or command from which nominated.

(a) Regular components. An applicant must have completed one full year of active enlisted service in the Regular Army or Regular Air Force on the date of his admission to the Military Academy. Although his service need not have been continuous, he must be in an active enlisted status at the time of his admission. Candidates are selected nearly 1 year in advance of the scheduled date of admission to permit them to attend the United States Military Academy Preparatory School at Stewart Air Force Base, Newburgh, N. Y. A joint Army-Air Force publication, issued annually on or about 1 May, gives detailed directions about making application for Regular component appointments.

(b) Reserve components. An applicant must be an enlisted man of one of the Reserve components at the time of nomination and at the time of his admission to the United States Military Academy. He must have served as an enlisted man in the component from which he is nominated not less than 1 year preceding the date of his admission. It is not essential that the service have been continuous. The Department of the Army issues a letter of appointment to each candidate selected authorizing him to report the following March for the annual entrance examination. At that time he must take the West Point Achievement Tests in Mathematics and English and the West Point Aptitude Test in competition with the entire number of Reserve component candidates. A joint Army-Air Force publication, issued annually on or about May 1, gives detailed directions about making application for Reserve component candidates.

(2) Presidential. Eighty-nine (89) cadetships are reserved for disposition by the President of the United States. For nearly a century these appointments have been reserved by each President for the sons of members of the regular components of the Army, Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, who are still in service, retired, or who died while serving therein. The administration of these appointments has been delegated to the Department of the Army. Applications by those eligible should be made by letter (no prescribed form) addressed to The Adjutant General, Department of the Army, Washington 25, D. C., giving the name, rank, service number, and branch of service that the parent carries or carried as a member of such regular component; and the full name, address, and date of birth of the applicant (complete military address and service number if in the Armed Forces). Adopted sons are eligible for appointment if they were adopted prior to their fifteenth birthday; a copy of the order of court decreeing adoption, duly authenticated and certified by the clerk of the court, must accompany the application.

(3) Sons of deceased veterans of World Wars I or II. Forty (40) cadetships are provided for the sons of members of the Armed Forces of the United States who were killed in action or who died of wounds, injuries, or disease resulting from active service during World Wars I or II. The Veterans' Administration determines the eligibility of all applicants, and its decisions are final and binding on the Department of the Army. Application should be made by letter (no form is prescribed) addressed to The Adjutant General, Washington 25, D. C. The letter should state the full name, date of birth, and address of the applicant (complete service address should be given if the applicant is in the Armed Forces), and the name, rank, serial number, and last organization of the veteran parent, together with a brief statement concerning the time, place, and cause of death. The claim number assigned to the veteran parent's case by the Veterans' Administration should also be furnished.

(4) Honor military and honor naval schools. Forty (40) cadetships are provided for Honor Military and Honor Naval schools. Each such school of the essentially military type, as determined by annual Department of the Army and Navy inspections, may nominate three candidates annually from among its honor graduates, to compete for admission at the regular entrance examination in March. The number of available vacancies will be filled in the order of merit established at the regular examination, regardless of the schools from which the candidates are nominated. Each nomination must contain a certification by the head of the institution that the candidate is an honor graduate of a year for which the institution was designated an honor military or naval school. No student may be rated as an honor graduate unless he has shown proficiency in subjects of his school work amounting to not less than the 15 units prescribed by the regulations for admission to the United States Military Academy. However, the institution is not limited to those graduates of the current year.

(c) Sons of Congressional Medal of Honor winners. Sons of recipients of the Congressional Medal of Honor may be appointed to the Military Academy, provided they are qualified for admission. The administration of these appointments has been delegated to the Department of the Army. Application by those eligible should be made by letter (no form is prescribed) to The Adjutant General, Washington 25, D. C. The letter should contain the applicant's full name, address, and date of birth (complete service address should be given if the applicant is in the Armed Forces), the name, rank, and branch of service of the parent and a brief statement of the date and circumstances of the award. Candidates appointed from this source may qualify in the same manner as a congressional principal candidate. All who are found fully qualified will be admitted as cadets, regardless of the number.

(d) Filipino cadets. In addition to the 2,496 cadetships authorized, the Secretary of the Army may permit one Filipino for each entering class to be designated by the President of the Republic of the Philippines to receive instruction at the United States Military Academy.

(e) Foreign cadets. (1) The act of 26 June 1946 (as amended) authorizes the President of the United States to permit not more than 20 persons at a time from the Latin-American republics and Canada to receive instruction at the United States Military Academy. Not more than three persons from any one country may be cadets at the same time. Such persons receive the same pay and allowance (including mileage from their homes in proceeding to the Military Academy for initial admission) as cadets appointed from the United States. They are not entitled, however, by reason of their graduation to appointment to any office or position in the United States Army.

(2) Citizens of other foreign countries have been permitted from time to time to attend the Military Academy upon specific authorization of the United States Congress in each case. Applications must be submitted to the United States Government through diplomatic channels by the governments concerned. Requirements for the admission, advancement, and graduation of foreign cadets are identical with those for United States cadets. In addition, such cadets must be provided with exactly the same amount of funds provided by the United States Government for United States cadets.

§ 575.5 Qualified alternates and qualified competitors. An act of Congress approved June 30, 1950, provides that when upon determination that upon the admission of a new class to the Military Academy the total number of cadets will be less than the number authorized, the Secretary of the Army may, within his discretion and within the capacity of the Academy, nominate additional cadets to be admitted in such class in such number to meet the needs of the armed services, but not to exceed the authorized strength of the corps of cadets, from qualified candidates holding alternate appointments and other qualified candidates holding competitive appointments from the remaining sources of admission authorized by law, recommended and found to be qualified by the Academic Board of the Academy, at least two-thirds of those so appointed to be from among qualified alternate candidates nominated by the Vice President, Members of the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, Delegates and Resident Commissioners, the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, and the Governor of the Panama Canal, and not more than one-third of those so appointed to be from among qualified candidates holding competitive appointments from sources authorized by law other than those holding such alternate appointments. This law provides that these appointments shall be in addition to and not in lieu of appointments otherwise authorized by law. The only candidate eligible for consideration under this law are those found mentally and physically qualified in connection with an appointment held for admission the first Tuesday in July of the year concerned. No application is necessary since all candidates found fully qualified but not otherwise admitted are rated by the Academic Board. Their records are studied and the selections made based upon academic grades and other pertinent factors which affect the qualifications of the various candidates to become officers of the Army or Air Force. Those selected under this provision are admitted as cadets on or about July 15.

§ 575.6 Entrance requirements. This section describes the specific requirements which candidates must fulfill after obtaining an appointment as outlined in §§ 575.3 to 575.5.

(a) General—(1) Age. On July 1 of the year admitted to the Military Academy a candidate must have attained the age of 17 years and must not have reached the age of 22. The age requirements for all candidates are statutory and cannot be waived.

(2) Citizenship. A candidate must be a citizen of the United States, except for those appointed specifically as foreign cadets.

(3) Character. Every candidate must be of good moral character.

(4) Marital status. A candidate must never have been married. A cadet may not marry until he has graduated from the Academy; and if any cadet is found to have been married, he will be immediately separated from the Academy.

(5) Height and weight. No candidate will be admitted who is shorter than 5 feet 6 inches or taller than 6 feet 4 inches. The weight of a candidate must be within certain limits which depend upon his height. Height-weight tables will be found in § 575.8 (d).

(6) Admission date. New cadets report to West Point for admission on the first Tuesday in July, except when July 4th falls on Tuesday in which event they report on the first Wednesday in July.

(7) Engagement to serve. Upon admission each cadet (except foreigners) must sign articles, with the consent of his parents or guardian if he is a minor, by which he shall engage, unless sooner discharged by competent authority:

(i) To complete the course of instruction; and

(ii) If tendered an apointment as a commissioned officer in the Regular Army or Regular Air Force upon graduation from the United States Military Academy, to accept such appointment and to serve under such appointment for not less than three consecutive years immediately following the date of graduation; and

(iii) In the event of the acceptance of his resignation from a commissioned status in the Regular component of such armed service prior to the sixth anniversary of his graduation, or in the event of an appointment in such Regular service not being tendered, to accept a commission which may be tendered him in the Reserve component of such Regular service and not to resign from such Reserve component prior to such sixth anniversary.

(8) Examination of candidates. Every candidate for admission to the Military Academy must take three types of examination: medical, mental, and physical aptitude. The entrance examinations begin on the first Tuesday in March of each year, being conducted at various military installations throughout the country and overseas. Each candidate holding a letter of appointment will be authorized by the Department of the Army to report at the examination center most convenient either to his home, to his station, or to the school which he is attending. The examinations normally require 3 to 6 days.

(b) Scholastic—(1) General. A candidate who has graduated from secondary school (or will have so graduated by the date of his admission to West Point), in the upper portion of his class, and who has attained good grades in his mathematics and English courses should be able to pass the Military Academy's entrance examinations without a long period of intensive cramming or special preparation. To qualify for admission all candidates (competitive and noncompetitive), must:

(i) Submit their full educational records to date on forms furnished them by The Adjutant General with their letter of appointment.

(ii) Pass the West Point Aptitude Test, a $2\frac{1}{2}$-hour examination requiring no special preparation other than that implicit in the completion of a secondary school course. It includes sections designed to measure likelihood of success in subjects such as mathematics, English, foreign languages, science, and engineering.

(iii) Qualify in United States history, either by presenting evidence that they have satisfactorily completed a standard course in United States history or its equivalent (1 year in secondary school or 1 semester in college), or by passing the special West Point Achievement Test in United States History.

(2) Competitive candidates. A candidate who seeks to qualify for admission under a competitive appointment—Army and Air Force (regular and reserve components), Honor Military and Honor Naval Schools, Presidential, or Sons of Deceased Veterans—must take the West Point Achievement Tests in Mathematics and in English, and the West Point Aptitude Test at the March examination. In addition, a competitive candidate must have satisfied the required credit in United States History by the time of the March examination, or take the United States History Achievement Test at that time. The vacancies available within each of the four competitive categories are awarded to those candidates within each category who attain the highest proficient scores on the West Point Achievement Tests in Mathematics and English and the West Point Aptitude Test. Failure of a competitive candidate to report for the March examination automatically vacates his appointment.

(3) Noncompetitive candidates. There are two methods by which a candidate may qualify mentally for a noncompetitive (congressional, etc.) appointment;

(i) By passing the West Point Achievement Tests in Mathematics and in English, and the West Point Aptitude Test. The Mathematics Achievement Test is a $1\frac{1}{2}$-hour test covering high school plane geometry and first and second year algebra, to include systems of equations involving quadratics, progressions, the binomial theorem, logarithms, and elementary numerical trigonometry. The English Achievement Test is a $1\frac{1}{2}$-hour test covering English grammar, composition, and literature at the level to be expected of high school graduates. Each candidate must submit his complete educational record. This record should show that he has graduated (or will have by the time of his admission) from a secondary school, with satisfactory grades accounting for 15 units credit. A unit credit is interpreted as satisfactory completion in secondary school of a standard academic year's study of a course below.

(a) Seven of the 15 units should be in the following courses:

Course	Maximum unit credit
Mathematics (algebra, first year)	1
Mathematics (algebra, second year)	1
Mathematics (plane geometry)	1
English, first year	1
English, second year	1
English, third year	1
History, United States	1

(b) The remaining eight units should be chosen from the following optional courses:

Course	Maximum unit credit
Mathematics (advanced algebra)	½
Mathematics (solid geometry)	½
Mathematics (trigonometry)	½
English, fourth year	1
History (ancient)	1
History (European)	1
History (English)	1
History (World)	1
Economics	1
Sociology	1
Social Democracy	1
Problems of American Democracy	1
Contemporary Problems	1
Citizenship	½
Government	½
Civics	½
Latin, first year	1
Latin, second year	1
Latin, third year	1
Latin, fourth year	1
Greek, grammar and composition	1
Any modern foreign language, first year	1
Any modern foreign language, second year	1
Any modern foreign language, third year	1
Any modern foreign language, fourth year	1
Physics	1
Chemistry	1
General Science	1
Biology	1
Botany	1
Zoology	1
Geography	1
Drawing (mechanical or freehand)	1
Bookkeeping	1
Physiology	1
Psychology	1
Astronomy	½
Geology	½

(c) No candidate will be refused permission to take the entrance examination because he does not have an acceptable educational record. However, the lack of a complete secondary school education or its equivalent may prove a handicap in passing the entrance examinations and maintaining proficiency after admission as a cadet.

(ii) (a) By submitting an acceptable college record and passing the West Point Aptitude Test. A candidate who submits an acceptable record of at least one semester's credits earned at a recognized college, university, or technical school, and who was admitted thereto after having earned in secondary school the 15 units credit described in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph, is specifically excused by the Academic Board at the Military Academy from taking the Achievements Tests in mathematics and English. He is then authorized to take only the West Point Aptitude Test which he must pass in order to qualify mentally. If his record lacks not more than two units of the secondary school credits described in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph, he may make up his deficiency in college. One semester of college work is considered the equivalent of one academic year of secondary school study.

(b) In judging what constitutes a semester of acceptable college work the Academic Board takes into account the entire academic record of the candidate. Low marks, failures, or conditions in college, or failure on a prior Military Academy entrance examination are considered good reasons for the rejection of a college certificate. A candidate whose college certificate has been rejected must qualify under the method of subdivision (i) of this subparagraph.

(c) Medical—(1) Preliminary examination. (i) Time permitting, prior to reporting for the entrance examination, candidates should ascertain whether they have physical defects which would permanently disqualify them for admission, or defects which could be corrected. Many candidates are disqualified at the entrance examinations for defects that might have been corrected if dental or surgical treatment had been undertaken in time. Candidates whose teeth are defective cannot be admitted to the Military Academy. Carious teeth should be restored by permanent fillings and missing teeth should be replaced by fixed bridgework, as described in § 575.8, before reporting for the entrance examination. In cases of malocclusion (excessive overbite, underbite, protruding teeth, etc.), which may require lengthy treatment, candidates are invited to submit dental plaster models and full mouth X-rays to The Adjutant General, Washington 25, D. C., Attention: Military Academy Section, for advance determination as to acceptability.

(ii) Medical officers at Army, Air Force, or Navy installations having adequate medical facilities to conduct final type physical examinations are authorized to accomplish preliminary physical examinations of applicants or candidates for admission to the United States Military Academy: Provided, That such persons present written requests therefor signed by one of the following: Any Member of Congress; a parent or guardian of an applicant entitled to a Presidential or Son of Deceased Veteran appointment; or any officer of the Army, Navy, or Air Force.

(iii) A candidate who finds it impractical to report to a military installation for a preliminary physical examination should consult a civilian physician and dentist to ascertain if he has any disqualifying defect. The candidate should invite the attention of the physician and dentist to the physical requirements and causes for rejection which are given in detail in § 575.8.

(iv) No charge will be made for an examination conducted at a military installation, but the applicant or candidate is responsible for travel and personal expenses, and for all costs in connection with examination by civilian doctors or dentists.

(v) A preliminary physical examination, whether conducted by military or civilian examiners, is advisory only and does not commit or obligate the Department of the Army to accept a candidate who is found by an entrance examination medical board to have a disqualifying physical defect.

(2) Final physical examination. Every candidate is required to undergo a very thorough physical examination at the conclusion of his mental examinations. His hearing must be normal (15/15) in each ear for the whispered voice, and the ears must be free from acute or chronic disease. His vision must not fall below 20/30 in either eye without glasses, correctable with glasses to 20/20 in each eye. Both his eyes must be free from disease. No candidate will be accepted unless he has a minimum of 12 masticating teeth and 8 incisor teeth, all of which must be so opposed as to serve the purposes of biting and chewing. Details relating to physical requirements and causes for physical disqualifications will be found in § 575.8.

(d) Physical aptitude. (1) Every candidate is required to take a 1 hour physical aptitude examination designed to measure strength, coordination, muscular power, endurance, speed, and flexibility. The examination items will be selected from those listed below. Candidates may consider themselves qualified to meet the minimum standard of the Physical Aptitude Examination if they can achieve the performances indicated. The examination will be graded on the basis of the total score. In other words, if a passing grade is achieved on the whole examination, failure to achieve a passing score on any single test will not cause disqualification.

(i) Vertical jump The difference between the height an individual can reach and the height he can jump and reach.	17 inches.
(ii) Standing broad jump for distance	6 feet 9 inches.
(iii) 3 broad jumps for distance Standing start with 3 continuous broad jumps.	20½ feet.

(xxii) Rope climb (7 seconds) Climb a regulation gymnasium rope as high as possible in 7 seconds, using hands and feet or hands alone, starting from a standing position.	10½ feet.

(2) Candidates should prepare for this examination by engaging in allround vigorous activities such as running, conditioning exercises, or competitive games, rather than by practicing on specific test items.

§ 575.7 Physical conditioning. Because of the nature of the new cadets' training during their first 2 months at the Academy, the physical demands upon them are necessarily great. Experience indicates that those cadets who, prior to admission, have conditioned themselves physically are best able to meet the training requirements. The needed amount of conditioning will vary depending on the candidate's athletic background, but, in general, the more nearly he can acquire a degree of conditioning approximately that required for vigorous athletic team sports the less difficulty he will experience in the very rigorous summer training program. He is advised to practice heavy physical-conditioning exercises until many repetitions of the exercises can be performed without severe physical strain. In addition, he should strengthen his legs and wind by regular cross country running and, if possible, fast climbing on steep slopes. A program of vigorous competitive sports should be followed with emphasis on variety of sports rather than on one favorite activity. Any candidate in doubt as to physical conditioning methods will be wise to consult a high school or college physical education department.

§ 575.8 Physical requirements.—(a) Hearing. Auditory acuity of all candidates will be determined by the whispered voice, and by the audiometer using the following frequencies: 256, 512, 1024, 2048, 4096, and 8192. At the time of examination the candidate should be free of upper respiratory infection. Hearing when tested by the whispered voice must be 15/15 in each ear and loss of hearing as determined by the audiometer must not be greater than fifteen (15) decibels in any of the frequencies 512, 1024, 2048, nor greater than thirty (30) decibels in either of the frequencies 4096 or 8192. The following conditions are causes for rejection: total loss of an ear, marked hypertrophy or atrophy, or disfiguring deformity of the organ; atresia of the external auditory canal, or tumors of this part; acute or chronic suppurative otitis media, or chronic catarrhal otitis media; mastoiditis, acute or chronic; existing perforation of the membrane tympani from any cause whatever.

(b) Vision. (1) Vision as determined by the visual test types (without a cycloplegic) must not fall below 20/30 in either eye without glasses, correctable with glasses to 20/20 in each eye, when no organic disease in either eye exists. Both eyes must be free from acute or chronic disease. Errors of refraction, if considered excessive, may be a cause for rejection even though the visual acuity falls within acceptable limits. Total hyperopia of more than two diopters or total myopia of more than three quarters (0.75) diopter in any meridian in either eye is considered cause for rejection.

(2) The following conditions are also cause for rejection: manifest disturbance of muscle balance; esophoria of more than 10 prism diopters, exophoria or more than 5 prism diopters, or hyperphoria of more than 1 prism diopter; impairment of the sense of color perception in a pronounced degree; trachoma, or xerophthalmia; chronic conjunctivitis; pterygium encroaching upon the cornea; complete or extensive destruction of the eyelids; disfiguring cicatrices, adhesions of the lids to each other or to the eyeball; inversion or eversion of the eyelids, or lagophthalmus; trichiasis, ptosis, blepharospasm, or chronic blepharitis; epiphora, chronic dacryocystitis, or lachrymal fistula; chronic keratitis, ulcers of the cornea, staphyloma, or corneal opacities encroaching on the pupillary area and reducing the acuity of vision below the standard noted above; irregularities in the form of the iris, or anterior or posterior synechiae sufficient to reduce the visual acuity below the standard; opacities of the lens or its capsule, sufficient to reduce the acuity of vision below the standard, or progressive cataract of any degree; extensive coloboma of the choroid or iris, absence of pigment, glaucoma, iritis, or extensive or progressive choroididits, retinitis, detachment of the retina, neuroretinitis, optic neuritis or atrophy of the optic nerve; loss or disorganization of either eye, or pronounced exophthalmus, true nystagmus; or permanent or well-marked strabismus; diplopia, or night blindness; abnormal conditions of the eyes due to disease of the brain; malignant tumors of the lids of the eyeballs; ashtenopia accompanying any ocular defect.

(c) Teeth. (1) No candidate will be accepted unless he has a minimum of 6 serviceable vital masticating teeth (bicuspids and molars) above and 6 below serviceably opposing and also 4 serviceable vital incisor teeth (incisors and cuspids) above and 4 below serviceably opposing. Therefore, the minimum requirement consists of a total of 12 masticating teeth and 8 incisor teeth, all of which must be so opposed as to serve the purpose of incision and mastication. In cases in which insufficiency of teeth may be remedied by the eruption of third molars, if an X-ray of the third molar region determines a normal third molar properly positioned and developed, it may be assumed that it will have a normal eruption, and the candidate may be credited with possession of this tooth.

(2) Vital teeth properly filled with permanent filling material, or well crowned, will be considered serviceable if otherwise acceptable. A one or two tooth replacement by a standard method of fixed bridgework will be accepted in lieu of a serviceable vital tooth when the abutment teeth are otherwise acceptable and the bridge well constructed.

(3) A tooth will not be considered serviceable if it is a deciduous tooth, or if it fails to enter into serviceable occlusion with an opposing tooth, if it has an unfilled cavity, if it supports a defective filling or crown, if it is nonvital, or if there is destruction of the supporting tissues of the tooth, such as results from chronic gingivitis, pyorrhea, etc.

(4) Causes for rejection are: failure to meet the standard of minimum requirements outlined above; the loss of three adjoining masticating teeth in either side of the upper or lower jaw; disfiguring spaces between anterior teeth, such as result from the extraction of a tooth; marked irregularity of the teeth; and marked malocclusion. No candidate will be accepted until all cavities in teeth have been filled with proper permanent fillings.

(d) Physical proportions. The requirements of the following tables on physical proportions are for growing youths and are for guidance in connection with the other data of the examination, a consideration of all of which will determine the candidate's physical eligibility. Mere fulfillment of the requirements of the standard tables does not determine eligibility.

NOTE: Fractions of an inch will be reduced to the quarter of an inch, but candidates must be at least 66 inches in height. No candidate will be accepted who is more than 76 inches in height. Heights to be taken without shoes and weight without clothes.

Medical examiners will recommend rejection of individuals who show poor physical development and those who appear to be undesirable candidates because of excess fat, even though their measurements may come within the figures stated in the above table. In such instances, the report will show in detail the findings upon which recommendation for rejection is based.

Recommendation for waiver of excess weight will be made in cases in which the general appearance and conformation of the candidate and the remainder of the examination clearly indicate that he is of the robust type and there is no tendency to obesity, endocrine imbalance, cardiovascular disease, or other defect which is likely to shorten the period of useful active service normally expected of an Army or Air Force officer.

An authentic history of syphilis of any type is cause for rejection without further laboratory procedure. A repeated positive serologic test, in the absence of a history of syphilis, will be accepted as evidence of the disease and considered cause for rejection. If, on repeated serologic tests, the results remain doubtful or positive and, after careful history and physical examination, the individual presents no evidence of having had syphilis at any time, the Department of the Army will notify him whether or not he is eligible for a 3-month observation period and designate the time and place for the reexamination. § 575.9 Entrance examinations—March. (1) The Military Academy examinations begin at 8:00 a. m. on the first Tuesday in March each year. All candidates are expected to report between 1:00 and 5:00 p. m. of the preceding afternoon, as explained in the original letter of appointment furnished the candidate by The Adjutant General. Three to six days normally are required for the completion of all mental, medical, and physical aptitude examinations. During this period sleeping accommodations and meals are made available to candidates at nominal cost. The cost of transportation and all personal expenses must be borne by the candidate.

(2) Failure to report for examination automatically vacates any competitive appointment. Failure to report vacates a noncompetitive appointment unless failure is attributable to sickness or other unavoidable cause.

(3) Each candidate will be authorized to report for examination to the military installation listed below which is most convenient either to his home, to his station, or to the school which he may be attending just prior to the March examination. A candidate may request from The Adjutant General the authority to change his place of examination if he finds that his home or school address changes.

§ 575.10 Previous qualification. (a) A candidate (except an ex-cadet) once found mentally qualified for admission to the Academy will be considered mentally qualified for any subsequent noncompetitive appointment and will not be required to take further mental examination.

(b) A candidate who once has qualified in Physical Aptitude will not be required to take another Physical Aptitude Test.

(c) A candidate must undergo the medical examination in the year preceding the proposed date of admission, even though he may have been found fully qualified in a previous year.

§ 575.11 Candidate submission of records. All necessary papers, certificate forms, and detailed instructions for the accomplishment and submission of each will be furnished the candidate by The Adjutant General along with the candidate's original letter of nomination. Before writing to The Adjutant General or to the Military Academy for additional information, candidates should study these instructions thoroughly.

§ 575.12 USMA Preparatory School. (a) The USMA Preparatory School at Stewart Air Force Base, Newburgh, N. Y., was established to prepare members of the Armed Forces for the entrance examinations. Participation in this preparatory training program is limited strictly to personnel on active duty who hold appointments to the Military Academy. The school is operated under the direction of the Superintendent, USMA.

(b) Prospective candidates may obtain information about the preparatory training program by writing to The Adjutant General, Department of the Army, Washington 25, D. C.

§ 575.13 Deposit upon entrance. (a) Three hundred dollars ($300) must be mailed to the treasurer of the Academy before the cadet is admitted. This sum is used to pay part of the cost of the uniform and personal equipment with which the net cadet is provided immediately after admission. Parents of candidates are advised to forward the required deposit by draft, payable to the Treasurer, United States Military Academy, who will credit it to the new cadet's account. Cadets who exercise proper economy will have upon graduation a sufficient balance to their credit with the treasurer to purchase the initial supply of uniforms and equipment which they will need as officers.

(b) Candidates should, on leaving home for admission, take with them no more money than is needed for traveling expenses. Any balance in their possession at the time of admission will be deposited to their credit with the Treasurer, USMA. Except for members of the Armed Forces, who are provided transportation or are allowed mileage as provided in Army regulations, cadets are allowed 5 cents per mile for traveling expenses from their homes in the United States or point of entry in the United States to West Point. Such mileage is credited to the cadet's account after his admission unless he makes a specific written request to the Commandant of Cadets that the mileage allowance be sent to his parents.

§ 575.14 Pay and allowances. (a) Cadets receive their entire education at Government expense and in addition are paid $936 a year plus an allowance of the cost of one ration a day. From this total the cadet pays for food, books, clothing, etc. The cost of the ration approximates the actual cost of the food. Quarters and medical attention are provided. With proper economy during his 4 years the cadet is able to save enough to purchase the initial supply of uniforms and equipment he will need as an officer.

(b) The deposit of $300 the cadet must make before he enters the Academy is used to pay part of the cost of the uniforms and personal equipment he is provided with immediately after admission.

§ 575.15 Course of study. (a) The United States Military Academy offers a 4-year course of undergraduate study leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science. The Military Academy is accredited by the Association of American Universities and by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. Except for a choice of one of five languages, the curriculum is prescribed.

(b) The course of study is designed to prepare the graduate for the diverse intellectual problems that confront an officer during his career. To solve these problems the officer must have knowledge and understanding of our culture and technology, capacity for dealing with foreign allies, and a talent for adjusting military plans and operations to the status of the national economy. Because of such requirements and their resulting curricular objectives, the West Point course of study cannot be classed as either liberal arts or engineering but has somewhat the character of both.

(c) After he graduates, the officer may do advanced study in civilian universities and he will invariably do advanced study in one or more graduate schools of the Armed Forces. These are of several levels: the branch schools; the Command and General Staff colleges; and, at the highest level, the War colleges (Army, Navy, Air) and the joint colleges (National War College, Industrial College of the Armed Forces). Selected students from all the armed forces attend the joint colleges.

§ 575.16 Promotion after graduation. When any cadet of the United States Military Academy (other than foreign cadets) has completed the prescribed course of instruction and meets the required physical standards he may, upon graduation, be promoted and appointed a second lieutenant in the Regular Army or United States Air Force, and whenever any such appointment would result in there being a number of active list commissioned officers in the Regular Army or in the United States Air Force in excess of the authorized active list commissioned officer strength, such strength shall be temporarily increased as necessary to authorize such appointment (sec. 506 (f), Public Law 381, 80th Congress).

TITLE 32A—NATIONAL DEFENSE, APPENDIX

[Ceiling Price Regulation 9, Amdt. 2]

CPR 9—TERRITORIES AND POSSESSIONS

EXEMPTION PROVISIONS

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Amendment 2 to Ceiling Price Regulation 9 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

Under section 1 of CPR 9 those commodities which are "specifically exempt under any price regulation or order issued under the authority of the Director of Price Stabilization" are exempted from the provisions of CPR 9. This has resulted in certain territorial sellers substantially increasing their margins of gross profit on commodities so exempted. This amendment changes the exemption provisions of the regulation so as to exempt only those commodities which are specifically exempted by the Defense Production Act of 1950.

The ceiling prices established under CPR 9 are comprised of the direct cost to the seller of a commodity plus a base period dollar-and-cents markup. Therefore, this amendment does not establish a ceiling price on any agricultural commodity below the "legal minimum" requirements of section 402 (d) (3) of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization the ceiling prices established by this regulation are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

So far as practicable the Director of Price Stabilization gave due consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objectives of the Defense Production Act of 1950; parity prices and the other legal minimum requirements of the Act including prices prevailing during the period from May 24, 1950, to June 24, 1950, inclusive; and to relevant factors of general applicability.

AMENDATORY PROVISIONS

Ceiling Price Regulation 9 is amended as follows:

1. Section 1 is amended to read as follows:

SECTION 1. What this regulation does. The purpose of this regulation is to establish ceiling prices for all commodities (except those specifically exempt under the Defense Production Act of 1950) which are not actually manufactured or produced in the particular territory or possession in which they are sold, upon the basis of the direct cost plus the dollar-and-cents markup in effect during the period from December 19, 1950, to January 25, 1951, inclusive. This period is referred to as the "base period." This regulation supersedes the General Ceiling Price Regulation for all commodities included within this section.

(Sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interprets or applies Title IV, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong., E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105; 3 CFR, 1950 Supp.)

Effective date: This amendment shall become effective on the 21st day of May 1951.

EDWARD F. PHELPS, Jr.,
Acting Director of Price Stabilization.

[NPA Order M-29, As Amended May 15, 1951]

M-29—DEERSKINS

This order, as amended herein, is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the authority granted by section 101 of the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this order, as first issued January 17, 1951, there was consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration was given to their recommendations. In the formulation of this order, as amended herein, however, consultation with industry representatives has been rendered impracticable due to the necessity for immediate action.

This amended order affects NPA Order M-29, as amended February 19, 1951, as follows: It changes the title to "Deerskins" and deletes all references to horsehide fronts in sections 1, 5, and 6 thereof. It deletes paragraph (d) in section 2 and redesignates paragraphs (e) through (h) of section 2 as paragraph (d) through (g) respectively. It deletes section 3 and redesignates sections 4 through 10 as sections 3 through 9 respectively. In the redesignated section 5, last sentence, the references to section numbers "4" and "5" are changed to "3" and "4" respectively. Such deleted references, paragraph and section are in substance included in NPA Order M-62.

3. Restrictions on tanning or dressing of deerskins.
4. Restrictions on sale and use of deerskin leather.
5. Exception.
6. Applications for adjustment and exception.
7. Records, audit, inspection, and reports.
8. Communications.
9. Violations.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 9 issued under sec. 704 Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105; 3 CFR, 1950 Supp.; sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951; 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this order does. This order applies to tanners and dressers of deerskins, and to persons who sell and commercially use leather made from these skins. In view of the fact that deerskins are in extremely short supply, it is essential that the leather produced therefrom be limited insofar as possible to DO rated orders. This order prohibits the dressing or tanning of deerskins except for the purpose of producing military leather if such skins are suitable for the production of military leather. It also forbids any person to sell, deliver, accept delivery of, or use commercially leather made from deerskins for other than DO rated orders if such leather is capable of being used to fill such orders.

SEC. 2. Definitions. As used in this order:

(a) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of persons, and includes any agency of the United States or any other government.

(b) "Tanner" or "dresser" means a person engaged in the business of tanning, dressing, or similarly processing hides or skins.

(c) "Converter" means a person engaged in the business of causing hides or skins to be tanned or dressed for his account in any tannery not owned or controlled by him.

(d) "Deerskin" means the skin of any domestic or foreign deer, and includes the skin of the elk, moose, and caribou.

(e) "Military leather" means leather meeting any military specifications in force at the time.

(f) "DO rated order" means an order for leather bearing a DO rating pursuant to NPA Reg. 2.

(g) "NPA" means National Production Authority.

SEC. 3. Restrictions on tanning or dressing of deerskins. Unless specifically directed by NPA, no tanner or dresser shall put into process, or continue to process, and no converter shall cause to be put into process, any deerskin except for the purpose of processing it into military leather: Provided, however, That this restriction shall not apply to any deerskin which is not capable of being processed into military leather.

SEC. 4. Restrictions on sale and use of deerskin leather. Unless specifically directed by NPA, no person shall sell, deliver, accept delivery of, or incorporate into any product for commercial purpose, except for DO rated orders, any deerskin leather suitable for military leather.

SEC. 5. Exceptions. This order shall not prohibit the completion of the production and delivery of materials or products containing deerskin leather in any form previously ordered and accepted, which by reason of the condition or nature of the materials or products cannot without excessive loss of yield be used in connection with DO rated orders. The restrictions of sections 3 and 4 shall not apply to any deerskin the owner of which causes it to be processed or incorporated into any product for use by him personally or as a gift.

SEC. 6. Applications for adjustment and exception. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file with NPA a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that such provision works an exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry or that its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of national defense or in the public interest. In considering requests for adjustment which claim that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each such request shall be in writing and shall set forth all pertinent facts, the nature of the relief sought, and the justification therefor.

SEC. 7. Records, audit, inspection, and report. (a) Each person participating in any transaction covered by this order shall retain in his possession for at least 2 years records of receipts, deliveries, inventories, and use, in sufficient detail to permit an audit that determines for each transaction that the provisions of this order have been met. This does not specify any particular accounting method and does not require alteration of the system of records customarily maintained, provided such records supply an adequate basis for audit. Records may be retained in the form of microfilm or other photographic copies instead of the originals.

(b) All records required by this order shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of NPA.

(c) Persons subject to this order shall make such records and submit such reports to NPA as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act (5 U.S.C. 139–139F).

SEC. 8. Communications. All communications concerning this order shall be addressed to National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref. M–29.

SEC. 9. Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provision of this order or any other order or regulation of NPA or who wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information in the course of operation under this order is guilty of a crime and, upon conviction, may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against such person to suspend his privileges of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

NOTE: All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This order as amended shall take effect May 15, 1951.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 14 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105, 3 CFR, 1950 Supp.; sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this order does. The purpose of this order is to provide a procedure whereby necessary materials and parts may be obtained for use in the manufacture of certain components and related products so as to provide for increased production thereof during the third quarter of 1951 or until the NPA Controlled Materials Plan shall be effective as to such items. It provides a procedure to be used by producers of such items for the application of DO ratings to obtain materials and parts necessary for the manufacture by them, during the third quarter, of such items in quantities adequate to meet the current and anticipated demand.

SEC. 2. Definitions. For the purposes of this order:

(a) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of persons, and includes any agency of the United States or any other government.

(b) "Item" means those components and related products which are included within any Product Class Code Number of list A attached hereto. Items listed in list A shall include all of the products contained under a single Product Code Classification Number as listed in the NPA Official CMP Class B Product List, except as otherwise expressly indicated in said list A.

(c) "Base period" means the 3-month period ending March 31, 1951.

(d) "Controlled Materials Plan" means the procedures now or hereafter established by regulations of the National Production Authority to provide for the quantitative control of the distribution and use of certain materials in short supply.

(e) "Third quarter" means the third calendar quarter of 1951.

(f) "Metal product" as used herein refers to any of the following: (1) Any iron and steel product listed in table I of NPA Order M–1, as amended, hereinafter referred to as an "iron and steel product." (2) Any aluminum form or product listed in section 3 of NPA Order M–7, as amended, hereinafter referred to as an "aluminum product." (3) Any copper form or product listed in section 3 of NPA Order M–12, as amended, hereinafter referred to as a "copper product."

SEC. 3. Application of this order. This order applies to any person who manufactures or assembles any product included as an item in list A during the third quarter.

SEC. 4. DO ratings assigned. Subject to the limitations contained in section 5, any person who schedules production of any item during the third quarter is hereby assigned the right to use a DO rating digit symbol DO–70 for the procurement of such quantities of materials and parts as are necessary for use in his scheduled production of such item during said period. Effective May 17, 1951, the procurement of materials and parts for use in the production of any item during the third quarter shall be made only pursuant to the DO rating specified above and no person shall otherwise procure any materials or parts for use in the production of any item during such period: Provided, however, That (a) no person shall be required to apply or extend said rating to any order already accepted by his supplier, and (b) any person may use any parts and materials already in inventory, and apply or extend said rating to replace such parts and materials, to the extent that his inventory is not, or by receipt of such parts and materials will not then become, in excess of that permitted by applicable orders of the National Production Authority, or by NPA Reg. 1, as amended, whichever applies.

SEC. 5. Procurement limitation. Unless otherwise authorized in writing by the National Production Authority, no person shall procure, whether pursuant to this order or otherwise, quantities of metal products and parts made wholly or partly therefrom for use in the production of any item during any month of the third quarter in excess of his average monthly consumption of such metal products by weight and of parts by dollar value during the base period, multiplied by the applicable percentage rate for metal product or metal product content of parts set forth in list A attached hereto. In applying such percentage rates to parts made from more than one type of metal product the lesser of the applicable percentages shall be used. In cases where production of any item during any month of the third quarter is confined exclusively to the filling of rated orders, said procurement limitation may be exceeded to the extent necessary to fill such orders. In cases where said procurement limitation will delay or prevent the filling of rated orders for any item, the producer thereof may request an adjustment or exception under section 12. For the purpose of this section, there shall be included, in computing quantities of metal products and parts procured, the quantities of metal products and parts taken from inventory for use in production during any month of the third quarter, and the quantities of metal products and parts heretofore procured in any manner for use in production in such month.

SEC. 6. Relation to other regulations and orders. (a) This order supplements NPA Reg. 2, as amended, which sets forth the basic rules of the priorities system, and the provisions of that regulation govern the use of the DO rating herein assigned, except to the extent that the provisions of this order are inconsistent with that regulation.

(b) The provisions of this order do not authorize the use of any materials where such use is prohibited by any other applicable order of the National Production Authority, but any producer of an item who uses the DO rating herein assigned may use any materials or parts so obtained regardless of the limitations on the rate of use of materials stated in any applicable order of the National Production Authority. However, the provisions of this order will be subject to the provisions of other applicable orders of the National Production Authority which limit the specifications of a product as to material content or which control the distribution of any material, part or product by allocation. Nothing contained herein shall supersede any provision of any NPA CMP Regulation.

SEC. 7. Certification. The DO rating assigned in this order shall be applied and certified as provided in section 8 of NPA Reg. 2, except that such certification shall read as follows:

Certified under NPA Reg. 2 and Order M–60.

This certification shall constitute a representation to the supplier and to the National Production Authority that the person making it is authorized under the provisions of this order to use the rating to obtain the materials and parts covered by the order, and that he will use the materials and parts so obtained in the production of items pursuant to the terms of this order.

SEC. 8. NPA assistance in placing rated orders. Any person who is unable to place an order rated under the provisions of this order should apply to the National Production Authority, Ref: M–60. The National Production Authority will arrange to assist him in locating sources of supply.

SEC. 9. Records to be kept. Each person participating in any transaction covered by this order shall retain in his possession for at least 2 years records of receipts, deliveries, inventories, and use, in sufficient detail to permit an audit that determines for each transaction that the provisions of this order have been met. This does not specify any particular accounting method and does not require alteration of the system of records customarily maintained, provided such records supply an adequate basis for audit. Records may be retained in the form of microfilm or other photographic copies instead of originals.

SEC. 10. Audit and inspection. All records required by this order shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of NPA.

SEC. 11. Reports. Persons subject to this order shall make such records and submit such reports to NPA as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act of 1942 (5 U. S. C. 139–139F).

SEC. 12. Applications for adjustment or exception. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for an adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, that any provision otherwise works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry, or that its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of the national defense or in the public interest. In considering requests for adjustment claiming that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of the public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each request shall be in writing and shall set forth all pertinent facts and the nature of the relief sought, and shall state the justification therefor.

SEC. 13. Communications. All communications concerning this order shall be addressed to the National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: M–60.

SEC. 14. Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provision of this order, or who furnishes false information or conceals any material fact in the course of operation under it, is guilty of a crime and, upon conviction, may be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

NOTE: All record-keeping and reporting requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This order shall take effect on May 14, 1951.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 14 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105, 3 CFR, 1950 Supp.; sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this order does. The purpose of this order is to provide a procedure whereby necessary materials and parts may be obtained for use in the manufacture of machine tools and related equipment so as to provide for increased production thereof during the third quarter of 1951 or until the NPA Controlled Materials Plan shall be effective as to such items. It provides a procedure to be used by producers of such items for the application of DO ratings to obtain materials and parts necessary for the manufacture by them, during the third quarter, of such items in quantities adequate to meet the current and anticipated demand.

SEC. 2. Definitions. For the purposes of this order:

(a) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of persons, and includes any agency of the United States or any other government.

(b) "Item" means those machine tools and related equipment which are included within any Product Class Code Number of list A attached hereto. Items listed in list A shall include all of the products contained under a single Product Code Classification Number as listed in the NPA Official CMP Class B Product List, except as otherwise expressly indicated in said list A.

(c) "Base period" means the 3-month period ending March 31, 1951.

(d) "Controlled Materials Plan" means the procedures now or hereafter established by regulations of the National Production Authority to provide for the quantitative control of the distribution and use of certain materials in short supply.

(e) "Third quarter" means the third calendar quarter of 1951.

(f) "Metal product" as used herein refers to any of the following: (1) Any iron and steel product listed in table I of NPA Order M-1, as amended, hereinafter referred to as an "iron and steel product." (2) Any aluminum form or product listed in section 3 of NPA Order M-7, as amended, hereinafter referred to as an "aluminum product." (3) Any copper form or product listed in section 3 of NPA Order M-12, as amended, hereinafter referred to as a "copper product".

SEC. 3. Application of this order. This order applies to any person who manufactures or assembles any product included as an item in list A during the third quarter.

SEC. 4. DO ratings assigned. Subject to the limitations contained in section 5, any person who schedules production of any item during the third quarter is hereby assigned the right to use a DO rating digit symbol DO-75 for the procurement of such quantities of materials and parts as are necessary for use in his scheduled production of such item during said period. Effective May 17, 1951, the procurement of materials and parts for use in the production of any item during the third quarter shall be made only pursuant to the DO rating specified above and no person shall otherwise procure any materials or parts for use in the production of any item during such period: Provided, however, That (a) no person shall be required to apply or extend said rating to any order already accepted by his supplier, and (b) any person may use any parts and materials already in inventory, and apply or extend said rating to replace such parts and materials, to the extent that his inventory is not, or by receipt of such parts and materials will not then become, in excess of that permitted by applicable orders of the National Production Authority, or by NPA Reg. 1, as amended, whichever applies.

SEC. 5. Procurement limitation. Unless otherwise authorized in writing by the National Production Authority, no person shall procure, whether pursuant to this order or otherwise, quantities of metal products and parts made wholly or partly therefrom for use in the production of any item during any month of the third quarter in excess of his average monthly consumption of such metal products by weight and of parts by dollar value during the base period, multiplied by the applicable percentage rate for metal product or metal product content of parts set forth in list A attached hereto. In applying such percentage rates to parts made from more than one type of metal product the lesser of the applicable percentages shall be used. In cases where production of any item during any month of the third quarter is confined exclusively to the filling of rated orders, said procurement limitation may be exceeded to the extent necessary to fill such orders. In cases where said procurement limitation will delay or prevent the filling of rated orders for any item, the producer thereof may request an adjustment or exception under section 12. For the purpose of this section, there shall be included, in computing quantities of metal products and parts procured, the quantities of metal products and parts taken from inventory for use in production during any month of the third quarter, and the quantities of metal products and parts heretofore procured in any manner for use in production in such month.

SEC. 6. Relation to other regulations and orders. (a) This order supplements NPA Reg. 2, as amended, which sets forth the basic rules of the priorities system, and the provisions of that regulation govern the use of the DO rating herein assigned, except to the extent that the provisions of this order are inconsistent with that regulation.

(b) The provisions of this order do not authorize the use of any materials where such use is prohibited by any other applicable order of the National Production Authority, but any producer of an item who uses the DO rating herein assigned may use any materials or parts so obtained regardless of the limitations on the rate of use of materials stated in any applicable order of the National Production Authority. However, the provisions of this order will be subject to the provisions of other applicable orders of the National Production Authority which limit the specifications of a product as to material content or which control the distribution of any material, part, or product by allocation. Nothing contained herein shall supersede any provision of any NPA CMP Regulation.

SEC. 7. Certification. The DO rating assigned in this order shall be applied and certified as provided in section 8 of NPA Reg. 2, except that such certification shall read as follows:

Certified under NPA Reg. 2 and Order M-61.

This certification shall constitute a representation to the supplier and to the National Production Authority that the person making it is authorized under the provisions of this order to use the rating to obtain the materials and parts covered by the order, and that he will use the materials and parts so obtained in the production of items pursuant to the terms of this order.

SEC. 8. NPA assistance in placing rated orders. Any person who is unable to place an order rated under the provisions of this order should apply to the National Production Authority. Ref: M-61. The National Production Authority will arrange to assist him in locating sources of supply.

SEC. 9. Records to be kept. Each person participating in any transaction covered by this order shall retain in his possession for at least 2 years records of receipts, deliveries, inventories, and use, in sufficient detail to permit an audit that determines for each transaction that the provisions of this order have been met. This does not specify any particular accounting method and does not require alteration of the system of records customarily maintained, provided such records supply an adequate basis for audit. Records may be retained in the form of microfilm or other photographic copies instead of originals.

SEC. 10. Audit and inspection. All records required by this order shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of NPA.

SEC. 11. Reports. Persons subject to this order shall make such records and submit such reports to NPA as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act of 1942 (5 U. S. C. 139-139F).

SEC. 12. Applications for adjustment or exception. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for an adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, that any provision otherwise works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry, or that its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of the national defense or in the public interest. In considering requests for adjustment claiming that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of the public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each request shall be in writing and shall set forth all pertinent facts and the nature of the relief sought, and shall state the justification therefor.

SEC. 13. Communications. All communications concerning this order shall be addressed to the National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: M-61.

SEC. 14. Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provision of this order, or who furnishes false information or conceals any material fact in the course of operation under it, is guilty of a crime and, upon conviction, may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

NOTE: All record-keeping and reporting requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This order shall take effect on May 14, 1951.

In the formulation of this order there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, only with respect to the provisions formerly in NPA Order M-29, and consideration has been given to their recommendations, but in the formulation of the remaining provisions of this order consultation with industry has been rendered impracticable due to the necessity for immediate action.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 12 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105, 3 CFR, 1950 Supp.; sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this order does. The purpose of this order is to conserve and to provide for an equitable distribution, through the normal channels of distribution, of the hides and skins affected hereby so as best to serve the interests of national defense. This order prohibits the tanning of horsehide fronts which are suitable for the production of military leather, except for the purpose of producing military leather. It also forbids the sale, delivery, acceptance of delivery, or commercial use by any person of leather made from horsehide fronts except for the purpose of filling DO rated orders, if such leather is capable of being used to fill such orders. The foregoing provisions respecting horsehide fronts have been transposed without substantive change from NPA Order M–29, as amended February 19, 1951. In addition, this order limits the number of horsehides, horsehide parts, goatskins (including kidskins), cabrettas, sheepskins (including lambskins), shearlings, and kangaroo skins which a tanner may put into process or a contractor may cause to be put into process. While percentage limitations are established for the period from May 1, 1951, to June 30, 1951, only, it is the present intention of NPA to establish percentage limitations for subsequent periods. This order also calls for reports on the number of hides and skins subject to such percentage limitations, which were put into the tanning process during the calendar year 1950

SEC. 2. Definitions. As used in this order:

(a) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of persons, and includes agencies of the United States or any other government.

(2) For purposes of sections 5 and 7 of this order, a person engaged in the business of tanning, dressing, or similarly processing hides or skins who, during the 12-month period commencing January 1, 1950, put into process 12,000 or more goatskins or sheepskins, or 1,200 or more horsehides, horsehide fronts, horsehide butts, horsehide shanks, cabrettas, shearlings, or kangaroo skins, or who, in any calendar month after the effective date of this order, puts into process any such hides or skins in quantities equal to one-twelfth or more of the amounts specified in this paragraph with respect to each type of hide or skin.

(c) "Contractor" means: (1) For purposes of section 3 of this order, a person engaged in the business of causing any number of horsehide fronts to be tanned, dressed, or similarly processed, for his account in any tannery not owned or controlled by him. (2) For purposes of sections 5 and 7 of this order, a person engaged in the business of causing hides and skins to be tanned, dressed, or similarly processed, for his account in any tannery not owned or controlled by him, who, during the 12-month period commencing January 1, 1950, caused to be put into process for his account 12,000 or more goatskins or sheepskins, or 1,200 or more horsehides, horsehide fronts, horsehide butts, horsehide shanks, cabrettas, shearlings, or kangaroo skins, or who, in any calendar month after the effective date of this order, causes to be put into process for his account any such hides or skins in quantities equal to one-twelfth or more of the amounts specified in this paragraph with respect to each type of hide or skin.

(d) "Horsehide" means the hide or skin of a horse, colt, mule, ass, donkey, or pony, except dry pony hides to be processed for furs.

(e) "Horsehide front" means the forepart of the hide or skin of a horse, colt, mule, ass, donkey, or pony commercially known in the trade as a "front", whether or not still attached to other parts of the hide or skin.

(f) "Horsehide butts" and "horsehide shanks" mean those parts of a horse commercially so known, whether or not still attached to other parts of the horsehide.

(g) "Goatskin" means the skin of a goat or kid in the raw or in the pickle, except when processed for fur purposes.

(h) "Cabretta" means the skin of a hair sheep in the raw or in the pickle.

(i) "Sheepskin" means the skin of a wool sheep or wool lamb, in the raw or in the pickle, and includes slats.

(j) "Slat" means a sheepskin imported into the continental United States in the dried, untanned condition, which has no wool or hair, or which has wool or hair less than one-fourth of an inch in length, such wool or hair lacking any commercial value.

(k) "Shearling" means any sheepskin which has been sheared shortly before slaughter, on which the wool remains, and which is to be used for leather or for fur purposes (including mouton).

(l) "Kangaroo skin" means the skin of an Australian or Tasmanian kangaroo or wallaby in the hair or in the pickle, except when processed for fur purposes.

(m) "Put into process" means: (1) In the case of raw skins or hides, the first step in the conversion of such skins or hides into leather at a tannery or in the conversion of mouton into fur. (2) In the case of semi-tanned skins, the first step in the conversion of such skins into leather. (3) In the case of pickled skins, the first step beyond the pickle in the conversion of such skins into leather.

(n) "Raw skins or hides" means skins or hides from which the hair or wool has not been removed.

(q) "Military leather" means leather meeting any military specifications in force at the time.

(r) "Base period" means the 12-month period ending December 31, 1950.

(s) "NPA" means National Production Authority.

SEC. 3. Restrictions on tanning horsehide fronts. Unless specifically directed by NPA, no tanner shall put into process or continue to process, and no contractor shall cause to be put into process, any horsehide front except for the purpose of processing it into military leather: Provided, however, That this restriction shall not apply to any horsehide front which is not capable of being processed into military leather.

SEC. 4. Restrictions on sale and use of horsehide front leather. Unless specifically directed by NPA, no person shall sell, deliver, accept delivery of, or incorporate into any product for commercial purposes, except for DO rated orders, any horsehide front leather suitable for military leather.

SEC. 5. Limitations on processing of hides and skins. (a) Unless specifically directed by NPA no tanner shall put into process and no contractor shall cause to be put into process during the period from May 1, 1951, to June 30, 1951, a total number of any of the following types of hides, parts, or skins in excess of 200 percent of the monthly average number of each such type put into process by him, or for his account, during the base period:

Horsehides	Cabrettas
Horsehide fronts	Sheepskins
Horsehide butts	Shearlings
Horsehide shanks	Kangaroo skins
Goatskins

In the case of each type of skin listed above, the ratio of raw, semi-tanned, and pickled skins, respectively, to the total number of skins of such type so put into process, shall be the same as the ratio of raw, semi-tanned, and pickled skins, respectively, to the total number of skins of such type put into process during the base period.

(b) Raw skins shall not be processed beyond the pickle stage, whether or not they are actually processed through the pickle stage, except in the same proportion as they were so processed during the base period.

SEC. 6. Exemption. The provisions of paragraph (a) of section 5 of this order shall not apply to the operations of a wool puller.

SEC. 7. Reports. (a) Every tanner and contractor must report the number of goatskins, horsehides, horsehide fronts, horsehide butts, horsehide shanks, cabrettas, sheepskins, shearlings, or kangaroo skins put into process by him or for his account, as the case may be, during the calendar year 1950, by completing and filing with NPA report Form NPAF–73 on or before the 10th day of June 1951.

(b) Every contractor shall report to NPA each month on Form NPAF–72 his wettings and raw stock, and every tanner shall report to NPA each month on such form, his wettings and raw stock, if any, and his leather production, for each calendar month commencing with the month of May 1951, as well as such other information as may be called for by such form. Such form shall be filed with NPA on or before June 10, 1951, and on or before the 10th day of each month thereafter.

(c) Persons subject to this order shall make such records and submit such other reports to NPA as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act of 1942 (5 U. S. C. 139–139F).

SEC. 8. Records. Each person participating in any transaction covered by this order shall retain in his possession for at least 2 years records of receipts, deliveries, inventories, and use, in sufficient detail to permit an audit that determines for each transaction that the provisions of this order have been met. This does not specify any particular accounting method and does not require alteration of the system of records customarily maintained, provided such records supply an adequate basis for audit. Records may be maintained in the form of microfilm or other photographic copies instead of the originals.

SEC. 9. Audit and inspection. All records required by this order shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of NPA.

SEC. 10. Applications for adjustment or exception. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file with NPA a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during the base period or prior to the effective date of this order, or because any such provision works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry, or that its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of national defense or in the public interest. In considering requests for adjustment which claim that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each such request shall be in writing, shall set forth all pertinent facts, the nature of the relief sought, and the justification therefor.

SEC. 11. Communications. All communications or reports concerning this order shall be addressed to the National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C. Ref: M–62.

SEC. 12. Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provision of this order or any other order or regulation of the NPA, or who wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information in the course of operation under this order, is guilty of a crime and, upon conviction, may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

NOTE: All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This order shall take effect on May 15, 1951.

TITLE 33—NAVIGATION AND NAVIGABLE WATERS

Chapter II—Corps of Engineers, Department of the Army

PART 208—FLOOD CONTROL REGULATIONS

MARSHALL FORD DAM AND RESERVOIR, COLORADO RIVER, TEXAS

Pursuant to the provisions of section 7 of the act of Congress approved December 22, 1944 (58 Stat. 890; 33 U. S. C. 709), the following regulations are hereby prescribed to govern the use of flood-control storage in the Marshall Ford Reservoir on the Colorado River, Texas, and the operation of the Marshall Ford Dam for flood-control purposes. The reservoir storage above elevation 681.0 feet m. s. l. is expressly reserved primarily for flood-control purposes and regulations for the use of this storage are provided herein.

§ 208.19 Marshall Ford Dam and Reservoir, Colorado River, Texas. The Secretary of the Interior through his agent, the Lower Colorado River Authority (hereinafter referred to as the Authority), charged with the operation of the Marshall Ford Dam, shall operate the dam and reservoir in the interest of flood control as follows:

(a) At all times reservoir releases shall be coordinated with downstream conditions so that the flow of the Colorado River at Columbus, Texas, does not exceed 50,000 cubic feet per second (equivalent to a stage of 21.0 feet on the official U. S. Geological Survey gage designated as Colorado River at Columbus, Texas) by virtue of controlled releases from the reservoir, except that no curtailment of normal power plant releases shall result thereby at any time.

(b) During periods when the reservoir level is above elevation 681 the minimum total release from the reservoir shall be at a rate of 5,000 cubic feet per second, or, subject to downstream conditions, at such greater rate as necessary, on a basis of known storage and estimated inflow, to provide for release of water stored between elevations 681 and 691 within 30 days.

(c) Regardless of reservoir levels, if forecasts indicate that the estimated inflow will result in the reservoir level rising above elevation 691, total release shall be increased, subject to downstream conditions, to the rate necessary to prevent the reservoir level from exceeding elevation 691, if possible, except that if the reservoir level is below elevation 681 drawdown below the initial level shall not be required and that such release shall not lower the reservoir level below elevation 681 at the close of the flood control operations.

(d) If excessive inflow unavoidably results in the reservoir level rising above elevation 691, the combined controlled and uncontrolled releases from the reservoir shall be made at the maximum rate possible without exceeding a discharge of 50,000 cubic feet per second in the Colorado River at Columbus, Texas, by virtue of controlled releases from the reservoir, until the reservoir level falls to elevation 691, except that no curtailment of normal power plant releases shall result thereby.

(e) Releases made in accordance with the regulations of this section are subject to the condition that releases shall not be made at rates or in a manner that would be inconsistent with requirements for protecting the dam and reservoir from major damage. Should the reservoir level exceed elevation 722 due to excessive rates of inflow, the Authority may utilize the capacity of the flood control outlets in increasing the rate of discharge to the extent considered necessary for protecting the dam and appurtenances from major damage.

(f) The Authority shall furnish the District Engineer, Corps of Engineers, Department of the Army, in charge of the locality, daily, on forms provided for this purpose, a report showing the elevation of the reservoir pool; uncontrolled spillway, flood-control conduit, and power releases; storage; reservoir inflow; and precipitation in inches and discharge in cubic feet per second, as shown by the pertinent gages in the Colorado River Basin.

(g) Whenever the reservoir level reaches elevation 681.0 at the Marshall Ford Dam and flood releases are necessary or appear imminent, the Authority shall report at once to the District Engineer, Corps of Engineers, Department of the Army, in charge of the Locality, by telephone, telegraph or radio, and unless otherwise instructed, once daily thereafter until the reservoir level falls to elevation 681.0. These daily reports shall reach the District Engineer by 9:00 a. m. each day.

(h) The regulation of this section for the operation of the flood control facilities at the Marshall Ford Dam and Reservoir are subject to temporary modification in time of flood by the District Engineer if found desirable on a basis of conditions at the time.

C., unless otherwise directed in published organizational, procedural, or regulatory statements pertaining to specific records or classes of records. Such requests shall set forth the interest of the applicant in the subject matter of the records sought to be inspected.

§ 1.102 Clinical information; disclosure. (a) For the purposes of this section—

(1) "Patient" shall mean any person who is receiving or has received medical care or treatment or an examination at facilities of the Public Health Service or at other facilities by, or under the direction of, personnel of the Service or at its expense.

(2) "Clinical information" shall mean any information received by personnel of the Service from patients or regarding patients and related to their examination, care, or treatment.

(b) Clinical information in the records or in the possession of the Service is confidential and shall be disclosed only as necessary for the performance of the functions of the Service, or as follows:

(1) Upon a reasonable showing of the need therefor, the officer in charge of a hospital, station or other facility of the Service may authorize disclosure to a patient or a person designated by a patient (or, in the case of a deceased patient, to his next of kin or an authorized representative of his estate) of such clinical information as such officer determines to be medically appropriate for disclosure. The information shall not be disclosed to a person other than the patient except on the condition that it shall not be further disclosed for any purpose other than that for which it was shown to be needed. If the patient's examination, treatment or care was requested or arranged for by a governmental agency, the information shall not in any event be disclosed without the consent of that agency.

(2) Any governmental agency which, in accordance with applicable statutes, has requested or arranged for the examination, treatment, or care of a patient by the Service may upon request be furnished clinical information regarding such examination, treatment, or care.

(3) At the direction of the Surgeon General or his designee, clinical information may be furnished State or other public health agencies engaged in collecting data regarding disease.

(4) Nothing in this section shall preclude the officer in charge of any facility of the Service from disclosing (i) information as to the presence of a patient in the facility, or as to his general condition and progress, or (ii) such information regarding the commission of crimes or the occurrence of communicable disease as may be required to be disclosed by hospitals generally by the law of the State in which the facility is located.

§ 1.103 Nonclinical information; disclosure. (a) Information in the records or possession of the Service obtained by the Service under an assurance of confidentiality which the Surgeon General or his authorized representative determines to be necessary for the purpose of any research, survey, investigation, or collection of statistical data may be disclosed only with the consent of the person, association, or agency to which such assurance was given, or whenever the Surgeon General specifically determines disclosure to be necessary (1) to prevent an epidemic or other grave danger to the public health or (2) to oppose any legal action related to the activities of the Service and brought against the United States or any of its officers or employees.

(b) Information in the records or in the possession of the Service concerning (1) the discussions of any councils or other bodies advisory to the Service or to the Surgeon General, or of any committees or panels of such councils or bodies, (2) reports made by such committees or panels to such councils or bodies, and (3) action taken or opinions expressed by individual members of such councils, bodies, committees or panels shall not be disclosed except as may be authorized by the Surgeon General with the assent of the council or advisory body involved. (1) Information concerning individuals, business enterprises, or public or private agencies obtained by the Service in connection with communicable disease control, water pollution control, licensing of biological products or the manufacture of such products, or with other regulatory functions of the Service may be disclosed to Federal, State or local authorities carrying on related governmental functions to the extent necessary to carry out such related functions.

(2) Information and data obtained and tentative and final conclusions reached in course of or in connection with the conduct of research projects, surveys and investigations may be disclosed at such times and to such extent as the Surgeon General or his designee may determine to be in the public interest.

(3) Information obtained in connection with applications for employment, fellowships, traineeships or commissions or for research or other grants and information obtained for similar purposes may be disclosed upon consent of the person concerned.

§ 1.104 Disclosure upon court or other official order. Notwithstanding any other provision of this part, information in the records or in the possession of the Service, except information described in paragraphs (a) and (b) of § 1.103 and information the disclosure of which the Surgeon General determines would impair national security, shall be disclosed upon the order of a judge of a court of competent jurisdiction or of a responsible officer of any agency or body having power to compel appearances before it. Provided, however, That (a) clinical information shall be disclosed only in accord with applicable local law regarding the confidentiality of communications to physicians as expressly determined by the court, agency or body, and (b) in the case of an order requiring production of records other than to the court, agency or body involved, the Surgeon General or his designee may determine, in the light of the need to assure the integrity and safety of the records or the efficient administration of the Service, that the records shall be made available for examination or copying at such place as may be designated by him.

§ 1.105 Disclosure to officers and employees of the Service. No provision of this part shall be deemed to forbid any officer or employee of the Service to disclose any information to any other officer or employee of the Service in the course of official business.

§ 1.106 Limitations on release of records. Records of the Service containing information described or referred to in § 1.102 or § 1.103 shall not be released to or deposited with anyone not an authorized officer or employee of the Service except insofar as may be temporarily necessary for purposes of examination or copying.

§ 1.107 Relation to other provisions of law. The provisions of this part are in addition to other applicable provisions of law or regulation and shall not be deemed to authorize or compel disclosure of information inconsistently with such other provisions.

§ 1.108 Response to subpoena or other compulsory process. If any officer or employee of the Service is sought to be required, by subpoena or other compulsory process, to produce records of the Service or to disclose any information described in § 1.102 or § 1.103, he shall respond, call attention to the provisions of this part, and respectfully decline to produce records or disclose information inconsistently with such provisions.

TITLE 45—PUBLIC WELFARE

Chapter II—Bureau of Public Assistance, Social Security Administration, Federal Security Agency

PART 201—ASSISTANCE TO STATES

Part 201 is hereby amended to read as follows:

SUBPART A—APPROVAL OF STATE PLANS FOR PUBLIC ASSISTANCE AND CERTIFICATION OF GRANTS

Sec.
201.1 General.
201.2 Approval of State plans and amendments.
201.3 Grants.
201.4 Withholding certification.

SUBPART B—REVIEW AND AUDITS

201.5 Continuing review of State and local administration.
201.6 Public assistance fiscal audits.

AUTHORITY: §§ 201.1 to 201.6 issued under Titles I, IV, X, 49 Stat. 620, 627, 645, as amended, Title XIV, Pub. Law 734, 81st Cong; 42 U. S. C. 301-306, 601-606, 1201-1206.

SUBPART A—APPROVAL OF STATE PLANS FOR PUBLIC ASSISTANCE AND CERTIFICATION OF GRANTS

§ 201.1 General. The State plan is a comprehensive statement prepared by the State public assistance agency describing all pertinent aspects of its operations necessary for the Social Security Administration to reach a determination as to conformity with the specific requirements stipulated in the Social Security Act. The State plan sets forth the basic State laws enabling and limiting the administration of public assistance; a description of the agency's organization and functions; its rules and regulations governing personnel administration; policies, instructions, and interpretations with regard to eligibility conditions and methods of determining the amount of assistance; fiscal operations and procedures; and reporting and research activities. Detailed instructions and suggestions for the content and submission of the documents comprising the State public assistance plan are contained in form PA-502, "Guide for Submitting Basic Material Pertaining to State Public Assistance Plans."

§ 201.2 Approval of State plans and amendments. The set of documents setting forth the State's plan may be submitted as one plan covering the four types of assistance where the programs have a common basis of administration, or a separate plan covering any one of the four assistance programs. After initial approval by the Commissioner, all relevant changes such as new statutes, rules, regulations, interpretations, and court decisions are required to be submitted currently so that the Commissioner may determine the status of State plans for purposes of certification of grants from time to time.

(a) Submission. The State public assistance plan and revised plan material is submitted to the Bureau through the regional office. The States are encouraged to obtain consultation of the regional staff if the plan is in process of preparation or revision.

(b) Review. The regional public assistance representatives are responsible for review of State plans, and they also initiate discussion with the State agency on clarification of significant aspects of the plan which come to their attention in the course of this review. State plan material on which the regional staff has questions concerning the application of Federal policy is referred with recommendations as required to the Washington office for decision. Comments and suggestions, including those of consultants in specialized areas of public assistance administration, may be prepared by the departmental office for use by the regional representatives in negotiations with the State agency.

(c) Approval. The Bureau of Public Assistance is delegated the authority of initial approval of the State plans or State laws as provided in Titles I, IV, X, and XIV of the Social Security Act. Final authority has been reserved by the Commissioner. The Bureau advises the State public assistance agency of the approval of State plans or revisions, or the need for clarifying information.

§ 201.3 Grants. To States with approved plans, grants are made each quarter for assistance and administration. The determination as to the amount of a grant to be made to a State public assistance agency is based upon three documents which contain the information required under the Social Security Act.

(a) Form and manner of submission—(1) Time and place. The estimates for public assistance grants for each quarterly period together with the State Fiscal Officer's certificate of available funds, are forwarded to the regional office 45 days prior to the period of the estimate. The State Fiscal Officer's certificates of available State funds usually submitted with the grant estimates may be submitted to cover a quarterly, semiannual, or annual period. The quarterly expenditures statement and any necessary supporting schedules are forwarded to the regional office within 20 days after the end of the quarter. Ordinarily, estimates for public assistance grants are submitted quarterly to the regional offices. However, States are permitted upon agreement with the Bureau of Public Assistance to submit estimates for grants at annual or semiannual rather than quarterly intervals.

(2) Description of forms. (i) "Report of Estimated Expenditures and Funds to be Available," PA-101, PA-102, PA-103, or PA-145 for old-age assistance, aid to dependent children, aid to the blind, and aid to the permanently and totally disabled, respectively, represents the State agency's estimate of the number of recipients to receive aid during each of the three months of the quarter. The forms also contain the estimated average assistance payment per recipient, and the estimated expenditures for assistance and administration, from which are computed the total funds to be advanced during the quarter. Estimated expenditures that exceed the Federal matching maxima for payments to individuals are not to be included in computing the Federal grant and are deducted from the total estimate. In addition, the report of the estimated expenditures indicates the amount of State and local funds appropriated and available for public assistance during the pertinent quarter.

(ii) In addition, the State agency must submit a certificate of the State Treasurer or other fiscal officer having custody or control of the State assistance funds, as to the amount of State funds (exclusive of any balance of assistance received from the Federal government) actually on hand and available for expenditure. If the amount of State funds, or State and local funds if localities participate in the program, shown as available for expenditures, is not sufficient to cover the State's proportionate share of the amount estimated to be expended, the certificate of the Fiscal Officer should contain a statement showing the source from which the amount of the deficiency is expected to be derived and the time when this amount is expected to be made available.

(iii) The third document submitted by the States is the quarterly statement of expenditures for each of the categories. This is an accounting statement of the disposition of the Federal funds granted for past periods, and reflects the adjustments necessary because the State's estimate for any prior quarter was greater or less than the amount which the State expended. The statement of expenditure also shows the share of the Federal government in any recovery of assistance from recipients and also expenditures not properly subject to Federal financial participation which are acknowledged by the State agency or have been revealed in the course of the fiscal audit.

(b) Review. The State's estimates are analyzed by the regional office staff and are forwarded with recommendations as required to the central office.

(c) Estimate of amount due and certification. Upon consideration and approval of the grant request, the Commissioner for Social Security estimates the amount to be paid to the States and certifies it to the Secretary of the Treasury for the ensuing quarter. Payment to the State is made by the Secretary of the Treasury at the beginning of each month of the quarter.

§ 201.4 Withholding certification—(a) When withheld. Certification of grants to States are withheld, after reasonable notice and opportunity for hearing, in the following circumstances:

(1) When the State has changed the plan so as to impose any requirement prohibited in the Social Security Act, or when in the administration of the plan any such prohibited requirement is imposed, with the knowledge of the State agency, in a substantial number of cases; or

(2) If in the administration of the plan there is a failure to comply substantially with any provision required by the act to be included in the plan.

(b) Informal discussions. Such hearings are generally not called, however, until after reasonable effort has been made by regional and central office representatives to resolve the questions involved by conference and discussion with State officials. Formal notification of the date and place of hearing does not foreclose further negotiations with State officials.

(c) Hearings. Hearings are held in accordance with the provisions of sections 4, 404, 1004, and 1404 of the Social Security Act. The requirements of sections 5 to 8 of the Administrative Procedure Act are observed in conducting the hearings.

(d) Notice of non-certification. If after such hearing it is found that funds should be withheld, the State agency is notified that further payment will not be made to the State until it is shown that such prohibited requirement is no longer imposed and that there is no longer any such failure to comply. Until then, further certification to the Secretary of the Treasury is not made with respect to such State plan. (Sections 4, 404, 1004, and 1404 of the Social Security Act.)

SUBPART B—REVIEW AND AUDITS

§ 201.5 Continuing review of State and local administration. (a) In order to provide a basis for determining that State welfare departments are adhering to Federal requirements and to the substantive legal and administrative provisions of their approved plans, the Bureau of Public Assistance conducts a continuing review of State and local administration.

(b) The administrative review includes analysis of procedures and policies of State and local agencies and review of records of individual recipients. A sample of case records is read, and schedules are filled out for various types of cases, such as for approved applications, for cases active a year or more, and for rejected applications. If the review reveals cases in which there appears to have been an improper claim for Federal funds, the State agency is given an opportunity to provide information to substantiate the payment, or to make an adjustment on its expenditure report.

§ 201.6 Public assistance fiscal audits. (a) Semiannually, or at other times as necessary, the State public assistance agency claims for Federal funds are audited by the Division of State Grant-in-Aid Audits of the Office of Federal-State Relations of the Federal Security Agency to determine that the agency has properly reported its accountability for grants of Federal funds for public assistance; the amounts granted for Federal funds for assistance payments where actually disbursed to individuals who had been determined by the agency to be entitled to public assistance under the appropriate category; administrative expenditures claimed for Federal financial participation are proper under the Federal act and State plan including State laws and regulations; amounts expended and used as the basis for claiming Federal funds under Titles I, IV, X, and XIV were not derived from other Federal sources or were not used as a basis for other Federal matching; and the share of the Federal government in any recovery was accurately and promptly adjusted with, or limited to, the Federal government.

(b) If the audit results in no exceptions, the public assistance agency is advised by letter of this result. The general course for the disposition of exceptions resulting from audits involves the submittal of details of these exceptions to the State public assistance agency which then has an opportunity to concur in the exceptions or to assemble and submit additional facts for purposes of clearance. Provision is made for the State agency to appeal audit exceptions in which it has not concurred and which have not been deleted on the basis of clearance material. After consideration of a State agency appeal, the Commissioner advises the State agency of any expenditures in which the Federal government may not participate and requests it to include the amount as adjustments in a subsequent statement of expenditures. Expenditures in which it is found the Federal government may not participate and which are not properly adjusted through the State's claim will be deducted from subsequent estimates made by the State agency.

Dated: May 11, 1951.

Commissioner for Social Security.

Approved: May 11, 1951.

ALLOTMENTS OF SEAMEN

The purpose of the following amendments is to effect editorial changes in the regulations and to revise the requirements to agree with Public Law 860, 81st Congress, 2d Session, approved September 29, 1950. The regulations in Part 132, regarding allotments of seamen, are transferred to Part 15 and the sections reprinted so that the requirements will be easy to identify. In accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003) notice of proposed rule making, public procedure thereon, and publication thirty days prior to its effective date are found impracticable and contrary to the public interest because the amendments are to revise the regulations to agree with Public Law 860, transfer regulations from one part to another to provide a better presentation of requirements, and to clarify certain requirements applicable to the public. Since Public Law 860 broadens the statutory requirements covering allotments of seamen, the changes in the regulations are relaxations from previous requirements.

By virtue of the authority vested in me as Commandant, United States Coast Guard, by Treasury Department Order No. 120, dated July 31, 1950 (15 F. R. 6521), to promulgate regulations in accordance with the statute cited with the regulations below, the following amendments to the regulations are prescribed and shall become effective on and after the date of publication of this document in the FEDERAL REGISTER:

Upon the receipt of such information, the employer should notify the person in whose favor the allotment is drawn.

SUBPART 15.10—COMPUTING ALLOTMENTS

§ 15.10-1 Wages upon which allotments may be based. Allotments may be made by seamen only upon the amount of the wages for which they are signed on.

§ 15.10-5 Limitation on amount of allotment. No allotment which calls for the payment of more than 90 percent of the wages upon which an allotment may be based (see § 15.10-1), after allowing for a deduction to cover the Federal withholding tax, shall be approved.

TITLE 47—TELECOMMUNICATION

Chapter I—Federal Communications Commission

[Docket No. 9518]

SEPARATE OPERATION OF AURAL AND VISUAL TRANSMITTERS OF TELEVISION STATIONS

1. The above-entitled proceeding was instituted by the issuance of the Commission's "Notice of Proposed Rule Making" (FCC 49-1621) (14 F. R. 7566) on December 8, 1949. Interested parties were afforded the opportunity of filing comments concerning the Commission's proposed amendment by January 9, 1950.[1] Pursuant to request therefor, oral argument was heard by the Commission en banc on June 2, 1950.[2]

2. Section 3.661 (b) of the Commission's rules and regulations governing television broadcast stations now provides: "The aural transmitter of a television broadcast station shall not be operated separately from the visual transmitter except for experimental or test purposes."

The Commission first proposed such a provision on February 27, 1941, in the following form: "The aural transmitter of a television broadcast station shall not be operated separately from the visual transmitter except for experimental or test purposes, and for purposes incidental to or connected with the operation of the visual transmitter." (Docket 5806.)

On April 30, 1941, the proposed rule was adopted without change as § 4.261 (b) of the first commercial television rules. Thereafter, on November 28, 1945, in promulgating the post-war television rules, the Commission substituted § 3.661 (b) for § 4.261 (b), without changing the wording thereof. On June 17, 1948, the Commission amended the rule (Docket 8966) to its present form by deleting the phrase "and for purposes incidental to or connected with the operation of the visual transmitter."

3. In an effort to clarify the meaning of the rule, the Commission issued an interpretation thereof in a public notice (FCC 49–842) on June 23, 1949.[3]

Subsequently, the Commission indicated that comments might be filed concerning this interpretation and such comments were filed by several interested parties. In light of these comments and as a result of its further study of the matter, the Commission on December 8, 1949, issued the notice of proposed rule making (FCC 49–1621) in this proceeding proposing to amend § 3.661 (b) as follows:

[3] The Commission interpreted § 3.661 (b) as follows:

(1) Duplication of AM or FM programs on the aural transmitter of a TV station

(a) While the same program is broadcast on the visual transmitter is consistent with § 3.661 (b).

(b) While a test pattern is broadcast on the visual transmitter is not consistent with § 3.661 (b);

(2) Broadcast on the aural transmitter of a TV station of transmissions originated by the TV station

(a) While a printed moving text is broadcast on the visual transmitter—is consistent with § 3.661 (b).

(b) While still pictures or slides are broadcast on the visual transmitter—is not consistent with § 3.661 (b) except for the purpose of necessary tests of station equipment, and except when the aural and visual transmissions are integral parts of a program and the visual transmissions have a substantial relationship to the aural transmissions. (An example of the latter type of program would be a travel lecture in which the words of the lecturer are broadcast simultaneously with still pictures or slides of scenes illustrating the lecture. Another example would be a newscast in which the words of the newscaster are broadcast simultaneously with still pictures or slides of the news events.)

(c) While a test pattern is broadcast on the visual transmitter is not consistent with § 3.661 (b) except for the purpose of necessary tests of station equipment, and except for the purpose of the actual demonstration of TV receivers to prospective purchasers. In such cases the aural transmissions shall not consist of any program material or musical composition but shall consist only of a single tone or a series of variable tones.

(1) The aural transmitter of a television station shall not be operated separately from the visual transmitter except for the following purposes:

(i) For actual tests of station equipment and for actual experimentation in accordance with § 3.662; and

(ii) For emergency "fills" in case of visual equipment failure or unscheduled and unavoidable delays in presenting visual programs.

(2) During periods of transmission of a test pattern on the visual transmitter of a television station, aural transmissions shall consist only of a single tone or series of variable tones. During periods when still pictures or slides are employed to produce visual transmissions which are accompanied by aural transmissions, the aural and visual transmissions shall be integral parts of a program or announcement and shall have a substantial relationship to each other: Provided, That nothing herein shall preclude the transmission of a test pattern, still pictures or slides for the following purposes and periods:

(i) To accompany aural announcements of the station's program schedule for a total period not to exceed 15 minutes in any broadcast day; and

(ii) To accompany aural news broadcasts or news commentaries not to exceed 5 minutes in length and for a total period not to exceed 15 minutes in any broadcast day.

It was further proposed that the following interpretations would accompany, and be a part of, the rule as amended:

Examples: (1) Duplication of AM or FM programs on the aural transmitter of a television station while the same program is broadcast on the visual transmitter (i. e., a "simulcast") is consistent with this paragraph.

(2) Duplication of AM or FM programs on the aural transmitter of a television station while a test pattern is broadcast on the visual transmitter is not consistent with this paragraph, except for the specific purposes and periods specified in paragraph (b) (2).

(3) A travel lecture in which the words of the lecturer are broadcast simultaneously with still pictures or slides of scenes illustrating the lecture, and a newscast in which the words of the newscaster are broadcast simultaneously with still pictures or slides of the news events, are examples of programs in which the aural and visual transmissions are integral parts of the same program having a substantial relationship to each other, within the meaning of paragraph (b) (2).

(4) The broadcast of a test pattern accompanied by a musical composition for the purpose of demonstration, sale, installation or orientation of television receivers or receiving antennas is not consistent with this paragraph.

(5) The broadcast of a test pattern upon which is visually imposed a moving text consisting of continuous program material, such as a running newscast or news commentary, is consistent with this paragraph.

(6) The broadcast of a test pattern upon which is visually imposed a clock indicating the time of day, or a text that is changed at spaced intervals, it is not consistent with this paragraph.

4. The Commission believes that amendment of § 3.661 (b) is necessary to confine the employment of television frequencies to actual television broadcasting. It is the Commission's opinion that the use of a television station authorized to operate on a 6-megacycle channel merely as an aural or quasi-television broadcast station would not serve the public interest. A license to operate a television station employing such a large proportion of spectrum space carries with it the responsibility of functioning as a television broadcast station, and the mere broadcasting of simultaneous aural and visual transmissions does not satisfy this duty. The aural and visual portions of the broadcast must have a substantial relationship to each other; anything less may meet the technical definition of television but is not television broadcasting, and would not be in the public interest.

5. The Commission believes that the utilization of television facilities merely for purposes of duplicating the sound portion of aural broadcasts of AM or FM stations, or for originating aural broadcasts without appropriately related visual accompaniment, would be an uneconomical use of radio frequencies. Similarly, the duplication of AM or FM aural programs while a test pattern is broadcast on the visual transmitter is not television broadcasting, and would not be in the public interest. The duplication of AM or FM programs while the same programs are broadcast on the visual transmitter, i. e., simulcasts, would not, of course, meet with the same objection and would constitute proper use of television channels.

6. It is the Commission's opinion, also, that the broadcast of a test pattern accompanied by musical compositions, while helpful for the purpose of demonstration, sale, installation or orientation of television receivers, would be improper use of a television frequency. During periods when still pictures or slides are employed to produce visual transmissions which are accompanied by aural transmissions, the Commission believes that such visual and aural transmissions should be integral parts of a program or announcement having a substantial relationship to each other. Obviously, a still picture fitting the mood of a musical transmission" is not consistent with the purposes of the rule. To permit otherwise would, in effect, authorize a new type of quasi-television service and would not be in the public interest. The Commission is providing, therefore, that during periods of test pattern transmissions, accompanying aural transmissions should consist only of a single tone or series of variable tones. However, the Commission believes that certain express exceptions should be made. For example, the Commission is providing that the transmission of a test pattern, still pictures or slides with musical accompaniment for 15 minutes immediately prior to the commencement of a programming schedule is permissible as a "warm-up" period for television stations. Such visual transmissions may also be utilized to accompany aural announcements of a station's program schedule, aural news broadcasts, or presentation by news commentators for a total period not exceeding one hour in any broadcast day.

7. The Commission recognizes that under certain circumstances the aural transmitter of a television station may properly be operated separately from the visual transmitter. For example, such operation would be appropriate for actual tests of station equipment and during periods of actual experimentation in accordance with § 3.662 of the rules. The Commission recognizes, similarly, that in case of visual equipment failure or unscheduled or unavoidable delays in presenting visual programs, emergency "fills" may be required and that the aural transmitter may properly be used to advise the audience of difficulties and to transmit, for a short period, program material of such nature that the audience will be enabled to remain tuned to the station. For example, in the event of cable difficulties or the failure of remote pickup equipment, news, or even music, accompanying a test pattern or other visual presentation would be proper under such circumstances.

8. The Commission has given careful consideration to the comments filed and oral arguments offered with respect to the notice of proposed rule making in this proceeding. Broadcasters have urged that the rule in question should expressly permit the aural transmitter of television stations to be used for purposes of advising the audience of difficulties encountered and to transmit, for a short period, program material of such nature that the audience will be enabled to remain tuned to the station. As noted above, the Commission agrees that the proposed rule should be revised expressly to permit such operation. It has been argued before the Commission, also, that the rule as proposed was too rigid and inflexible and that a more reasonable limit should be placed on the period when non-integrated aural programming is permitted. The rule as proposed specified a period "not to exceed 5 minutes in length and for a 15 minute period in any broadcast day" for test pattern, still pictures or slides accompanying aural news broadcasts or news commentaries. Such visual transmissions were also proposed to be permitted to accompany aural program schedule announcements for a 15 minute period in any broadcast day. The Commission at this time is making this provision more flexible and is increasing the period when such operation may be conducted to one hour in any broadcast day, to be used in the discretion of the broadcaster. The Commission has also been urged to permit music accompanying a test pattern for a period immediately prior to the commencement of the regular programming schedule for "warm-up" purposes. As noted above, the Commission is changing the rule to permit such operation for a 15 minute period prior to the commencement of a programming schedule. It has been submitted to the Commission that music accompanying a test pattern should be allowed in order to permit proper installation and orientation of television receivers and to facilitate the sale and demonstration of receivers. It is the Commission's belief, however, that a single tone or series of variable tones are adequate for proper installation and orientation of receivers and that such tone signals have not discouraged the purchase of sets. Furthermore, as television stations commence more and more programming during the daytime hours, this matter becomes moot. In any event, the Commission is of the opinion that the transmission of music accompanying a test pattern, except as specifically proposed in the rule, would not be in the public interest. With respect to other suggestions offered by interested parties and not incorporated in the attached rule, the Commission believes that their adoption would be inconsistent with the history and purposes of the rule as shown above and would not be in the public interest.

9. In view of the foregoing, therefore, It is ordered, this 3d day of May 1951, that, effective June 13, 1951, § 3.661 (b) of the Commission's rules and regulations is amended as set forth below.

(Sec. 4, 48 Stat. 1066, as amended; 47 U. S. C. 154. Interprets or applies sec. 303, 48 Stat. 1032, as amended; 47 U. S. C. 303)

[SEAL] T. J. SLOWIE,
Secretary.

Section 3.661 (b) is amended as follows:

(b) (1) The aural transmitter of a television station shall not be operated separately from the visual transmitter except for the following purposes:

(i) For actual tests of station equipment or actual experimentation in accordance with § 3.662; and

(ii) For emergency "fills" in case of visual equipment failure or unscheduled and unavoidable delays in presenting visual programs. In such situations the aural transmitter may be used to advise the audience of difficulties and to transmit for a short period program material of such nature that the audience will be enabled to remain tuned to the station; for example, music or news accompanying a test pattern or other visual presentation.

(2) During periods of transmission of a test pattern on the visual transmitter of a television station, aural transmission shall consist only of a single tone or series of variable tones. During periods when still pictures or slides are employed to produce visual transmissions which are accompanied by aural transmissions, the aural and visual transmissions shall be integral parts of a program or announcement and shall have a substantial relationship to each other: Provided, That nothing herein shall preclude the transmission of a test pattern, still pictures or slides for the following purposes and periods:

(i) To accompany aural announcements of the station's program schedule and aural news broadcasts or news commentaries, for a total period not to exceed one hour in any broadcast day.

(ii) To accompany aural transmissions for a period of time not to exceed fifteen minutes immediately prior to the commencement of a programming schedule.

Examples: (1) Duplication of AM or FM programs on the aural transmitter of a television station while the same program is broadcast on the visual transmitter (i. e. a "simulcast") is consistent with this paragraph.

(2) Duplication of AM or FM programs on the aural transmitter of a television station while a test pattern is broadcast on the visual transmitter is not consistent with this paragraph; except for the specific purposes and periods specified in paragraph (b) (2).

(3) A travel lecture in which the words of the lecturer are broadcast simultaneously with still pictures or slides of scenes illustrating the lecture, and a newscast in which the words of the newscaster are broadcast simultaneously with still pictures or slides of the news events, are examples of programs in which the aural and visual transmissions are integral parts of the same program having a substantial relationship to each other, within the meaning of paragraph (b) (2). Mood music—unrelated to the visual transmission is not consistent with this paragraph.

(4) The broadcast of a test pattern accompanied by a musical composition for the purpose of demonstration, sale, installation or orientation of television receivers, or receiving antennas is not consistent with this paragraph.

(5) Music accompanying the transmission of a test pattern upon which is visually imposed a moving text consisting of continuous program material, such as a running newscast or news commentary, is consistent with this paragraph.

(6) Music accompanying the transmission of a test pattern upon which is visually imposed a clock indicating the time of day, or a text that is changed at spaced intervals, is not consistent with this paragraph.

PROPOSED RULE MAKING

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Production and Marketing Administration

[7 CFR, Part 924]

HANDLING OF MILK IN DETROIT, MICH., MARKETING AREA

TENTATIVE DECISION WITH RESPECT TO PROPOSED MARKETING AGREEMENT AND PROPOSED ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was conducted at Highland Park, Michigan, June 5–16, 1950, pursuant to notice thereof which was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on May 29, 1950 (15 F. R. 3105, Doc. 50-4290).

Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at the hearing and the record thereof the Assistant Administrator, Production and Marketing Administration, on February 28, 1951, filed with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, his recommended decision in this proceeding. The notice of filing such recommended decision and opportunity to file written exceptions thereto was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on March 6, 1951 (16 F. R. 2084, Doc. 51-2942).

Upon the basis of the exceptions filed with respect to the size of the marketing area and a re-examination of the evidence with respect thereto, it is tentatively concluded that the marketing area should be larger than that proposed in the recommended decision. This tentative conclusion may possibly bring within the scope of the marketing agreement and order several handlers who would not otherwise have been subject thereto. In order to afford such handlers and other interested persons an opportunity to file exceptions which they may not have filed because of the recommendation for a more restrictive area, the issuance of a tentative decision has been decided upon as a means of affording such opportunity. Any person wishing to file exceptions to this tentative decision in any findings and conclusions contained therein with respect to the size of the marketing area or any other issue may do so by filing the same, in quadruplicate, with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., not later than 5 days after the publication of this tentative decision in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Preliminary statement. The major issues developed at the hearing were concerned with the following matters:

(1) Whether the handling of milk produced for the Detroit, Michigan, marketing area is in the current of interstate commerce or directly burdens, obstructs, or affects interstate commerce in milk or its products;

(2) Whether marketing conditions justify the issuance of a milk marketing agreement or order;

(3) The extent of the marketing area;

(4) What milk should be covered for pricing purposes;

(5) The classification of milk;

(6) The level of class prices to be paid and the methods for determining such prices;

Findings and conclusions. Upon the basis of the evidence adduced at the hearing and on the record thereof, it is hereby found and concluded that:

(1) Character of commerce. The handling of milk in the Detroit, Michigan, marketing area is in the current of interstate commerce and directly burdens, obstructs or affects interstate commerce in the handling of milk and its products.

A total of 64 dairy farms located outside the State of Michigan regularly supply milk to the Detroit market. During the month of April 1950, 45 of these farms located in Ohio and Indiana delivered over a half million pounds of milk to Detroit receiving plants, or at the rate of over six million pounds per year. Three dairy plants in Indiana and one in Ohio hold permits from the Detroit Department of Health to furnish sweet cream for consumption in Detroit.

During the months of high production, large quantities of Detroit inspected milk produced on dairy farms which supply milk for city consumption in other seasons of the year are diverted to manufacturing plants in Ohio and Indiana. One cooperative in the year of 1948 delivered over 4½ million pounds of such milk to a plant in Indiana. In 1949 movements of milk from the Detroit market to plants in Ohio totaled about 10 million pounds and in the first 5 months of 1950 amounted to over 5 million pounds. There are 36 dairy manufacturing plants located within the Detroit milkshed and purchasing milk from dairy farmers in competition with Detroit milk distributors. Several of these plants also handle surplus milk from the Detroit market. All of these plants manufacture dairy products, and a substantial portion of these products are disposed of in other states. Large quantities of Detroit inspected milk, exceeding 60 million pounds in 1949 and 30 million pounds in the first 5 months of 1950, were moved to certain of these manufacturing plants by one cooperative. Additional large amounts of milk are manufactured in plants operated by milk distributors. This milk is manufactured into evaporated milk, cheese, butter, and nonfat dry milk solids, a large proportion of which is disposed of outside of the State of Michigan.

Milk is distributed on routes operated from Detroit plants in direct competition with milk distributed from Toledo, Ohio, plants in the City of Monroe and at other points. The milksheds of the Detroit and Toledo markets overlap over an area of 4 counties and dairy farmers frequently shift from one market to the other. The Detroit milkshed also overlaps that of Fort Wayne, Indiana, and Cleveland, Ohio.

Milk, cream and dairy products processed in Detroit plants are furnished to interstate carriers for consumption in various states and in Canada. Seven Detroit milk distributing plants have been certified by the U. S. Public Health Service for processing milk and milk products for sale for consumption outside the state at the request of interstate carriers. These carriers include two railroads, the Pullman Company, four airlines and nine steamship companies.

From the foregoing it is evident that substantial volume of milk in the Detroit, Michigan, market is moved physically in interstate commerce in the form of milk and milk products and that the handling of milk in the market directly burdens, obstructs, or affects interstate commerce in milk or its products.

(2) Need for an order. An order regulating the handling of milk in the Detroit, Michigan, marketing area should be issued.

A large proportion of the milk consumed in the Detroit area is marketed by a cooperative association of dairy farmers. A price for milk marketed by the cooperative and used for fluid sales is arrived at for each month by bargaining. A lower price then applies to a small amount of milk in addition to that used for fluid sales and the remainder is sold at the average price paid by certain dairy manufacturing plants.

A number of Detroit milk distributors buy milk from dairy farmers who are not members of a cooperative. The record indicates that this milk is paid for at the average price paid for all milk to cooperative members, or a lower price. By purchasing close to needs for fluid sales, it is possible for these distributors to buy milk at a considerably lower cost on a utilization basis than that of distributors who buy from the cooperative. This is true because the cooperative and certain distributors assume the responsibility of carrying sufficient milk to supply the market in the periods of lowest production. Distributors who do not assume this responsibility are able to buy milk used largely for bottled milk sales at the average price paid to cooperative producers, which average price reflects a large volume of milk at the manufacturing price in the months of high production. This buying advantage has led to lower resale prices, the loss of business by distributors who buy higher cost milk, and demands that the price of milk for fluid use be lowered to cooperative buyers to permit competition with distributors who buy without regard to utilization.

This unstabilizing influence has been greatly aggravated by a widening of the spread between the price of milk for fluid use and the average producer price for all milk. In April 1948 the cooperative price to distributors for milk for fluid use was $4.90 and the average price paid producers for all milk was $4.76, a difference of 14 cents. In April 1950 the corresponding prices were $4.20 and $3.72 or an advantage of 48 cents to a buyer able to buy milk for fluid sales at the cooperative average price and an even greater advantage in case less than this average price was paid.

The price paid for milk used for manufacturing by cooperative buyers was $4.11 in April 1948, and $2.86 in April 1950, an increase in the spread between fluid and manufacturing milk prices from 60 cents to $1.32. This price trend greatly increased the advantage of distributors who may buy some milk for fluid use at the manufacturing price.

Statements of payments to producers for milk by buyers who do not buy through the cooperative covering several months in 1950 were submitted. One distributor had paid one producer from 35 to 38 cents per hundredweight less than the cooperative average price, another distributor paid from 19 to 34 cents less and a third paid from 34 to 38 cents less. Fall purchases of additional milk by one of these distributors to supplement his supply from producers indicate a fluid milk usage of producer milk above the average of the market.

The price advantage of buyers who do not purchase milk through a cooperative not only has forced cooperative buyers to exert continual pressure for lower prices, but also has encouraged buyers to sever business relations with the cooperative and take advantage of the lower cost milk available by direct purchase from dairy farmers at the cooperative average price or lower. One handler of a substantial volume of milk has recently taken this step after buying through a cooperative for many years. This trend, if continued, will supplement the pressure for lower prices in bringing about demoralization of the market.

The effect of these conditions in causing market instability is shown in the record of prices and milk supply over the last 3 years. In the 8-month period of June 1947 through February 1948, the Class I price negotiated by the cooperative dropped from $1.62 above the price paid by manufacturing plants to 71½ cents above. Under pressure of a shortage of milk, this negotiated price then increased to a high of $2.32 above the manufacturing price in March 1949. Then as the supply of milk in relation to market needs increased steadily, the negotiated price fell to $1.05 above the manufacturing milk price in May, 1950. While those wide price variations were occurring, the supply of milk was first so reduced that an average of 92 percent of producer milk was used in Class I in the months of November 1947 through January 1948 compared with 84 percent in the corresponding period a year earlier. This shortage was followed by relatively high prices and increasing production until during the corresponding months of 1949–50, less than 71 percent of producer milk was disposed of as Class I.

The cooperative has not been able to sell milk even to regular buyers on a complete utilization basis. Only milk used for fluid sales is priced on the basis of utilization and additional milk is classified on a bargained percentage basis without regard to utilization. This lack of complete pricing according to utilization results in differences in costs to the various distributors for milk for uses other than fluid sales which also contributes to market instability.

In the Ann Arbor portion of the area, producers have been unable to sell milk on any utilization plan. A certain price is set by bargaining for milk deliveries up to a "base" established for each producer, and additional deliveries are paid for at the manufacturing milk price. The record indicates that this method of buying results in a lower cost to these distributors for milk for fluid sales than the cost to distributors in other parts of the Detroit area.

Dairy farmers supplying the Detroit area who are not cooperative members, over 2,000 in number, have no facilities for regularly checking the accuracy of weights or butterfat tests of milk sold.

No complete statistics are available as to total sales of milk and milk products in the Detroit market or as to total receipts of milk in the market. Negotiated prices must be fixed without full knowledge of the needs of the market or of the supply of milk available. A marketing order would make available complete and accurate market statistics, provide for payment for milk according to use and for verification by audit of all handlers' utilization of milk, and for the checking of weights and butterfat tests.

A milk marketing order is needed in the Detroit area to establish and maintain orderly marketing and a level of prices which will insure an adequate supply of pure and wholesome milk, and to prevent the development of disorderly and chaotic conditions.

(3) Extent of the marketing area. The marketing area should include the cities of Detroit, Dearborn, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Pontiac, Mount Clemens, Marine City, St. Clair and Fort Huron and adjacent areas of high population density. This area would cover the territory within the boundaries of 15 townships in St. Clair County, 7 townships in Macomb County, 12 townships in Oakland County, 3 townships in Washtenaw County, 2 townships in Monroe County, and all of Wayne County.

Proponents of the order proposed a considerably larger marketing area covering a number of rural townships and a few additional small towns. Certain milk distributors proposed an extension of the area to the north along the Lake Huron shore to include Worth and Lexington townships in Sanilac County. Certain distributors objected to including the cities of Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor.

The townships of Lexington and Worth in Sanilac County should not be included in the marketing area. There are no thickly populated areas in these townships except the Lake Huron shore line in the summer season and the small city of Croswell and the village of Lexington. It was not shown that a marketing order is needed to promote orderly marketing in this area. There was no showing that orderly marketing of milk in the Detroit area is influenced by milk distribution in these townships. No request was made by dairy farmers supplying milk to distributors in this area that it be included in the marketing area.

The cities of Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti and surrounding territory should be included in the marketing area. Milk is distributed from plants in or near these cities, which are located near the thickly populated suburban area west of Detroit, in competition with routes operated from Detroit plants. Because of the wide seasonal variations in milk consumption in these cities due to the large student population, distributors are dependent upon the Detroit market for much of their milk supply. Over 6½ million pounds of milk from Detroit receiving stations was supplied to Ann Arbor distributors in the two years of 1948 and 1949. Milk is purchased by Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti distributors from producers without regard to use and apparently at lower prices than if bought on a use basis at the class prices prevailing in the Detroit market. Attempts by the cooperative to have such purchases made on a use basis have failed. The need for a marketing order to bring about orderly milk marketing seems greater in the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area than in other parts of the proposed marketing area.

Rural areas and small towns not near to the large cities should not be included in the marketing area. Thirty-one additional townships in St. Clair, Macomb, Oakland, Washtenaw, and Monroe Counties, which are relatively thinly populated and include some 16 small towns and villages, were within the marketing area as proposed. Health regulations with respect to milk in effect in the cities are not applicable in much of this area. It is not considered necessary to include these 31 rural townships in the marketing area to promote orderly marketing of milk in Detroit and nearby cities.

The marketing area as outlined above embraces a contiguous, heavily populated territory served by milk distributors whose routes overlap and interminle and which constitutes a single milk market, all parts of which are subject to substantially the same conditions and influences. Health regulations with regard to milk are substantially the same in all major municipalities in the area and milk produced on farms approved by the Detroit Health Department is permitted to be sold in all parts of the area. Differences in seasonal consumption in various parts of the area tend to make all of the area dependent on milk produced under Detroit inspection, which is diverted to any part of the area where needed. Failure to include any part of this territory in the marketing area would tend to disrupt orderly milk marketing in the whole area.

(4) Milk to be priced. All milk approved by health authorities for regular sale in the marketing area should be priced under the order. A "handler" is defined as the operator of a plant in which milk is processed and from which such milk is disposed of on a route in the marketing area as Class I milk, or a plant which is approved by health authorities of marketing area cities for handling milk for fluid consumption. To avoid including in the pool a plant which never supplies milk to the marketing area a country plant must move to a bottling plant at least 10 percent of its dairy farm supply of milk in the two short supply months of November and December. The handler definition describes the kinds of plants to which farmers deliver milk for fluid uses in the greater Detroit market.

A number of plants disposing of Class I milk on routes in the marketing area receive milk directly from dairy farms. The larger part of the supply, however, is received at country plants and reshipped to city bottling plants. The country plant may be owned and operated by the operator of the city bottling plant or by another person. All of these country plants receive milk only from dairy farms approved by the Detroit Health Department. Receipt of milk from any other source at one of these plants disqualifies the entire plant supply for use in Detroit and other marketing area cities which accept Detroit inspection. By defining a handler as the operator of either an approved country plant or a bottling plant, the handling of all milk regularly approved for consumption in the marketing area is made subject to regulations by the order.

The land boundary of the marketing area extends over 185 miles. A few small milk plants located outside the marketing area dispose of some milk on routes extending into the area. If the amount of such milk is not large, its sale has little or no effect on the marketing of milk in the area. Application of order pricing and payment provisions of these distributors would entail effort and expense and would not contribute to orderly marketing in the area. Prices appropriate in the marketing area might not be appropriate in the localities where most of the sales of these distributors be made. It was proposed that handlers operating bottling plants outside the marketing area and disposing of not more than an average of 600 pounds of Class I milk per day in the area in any month be exempt for that month from all except the reporting and auditing provisions of the order. Limitation of the exemption to handlers disposing of not more than 600 pounds of Class I milk in the marketing area daily, less than one economical route, and transferring no milk to other handlers would furnish adequate protection from unfair competition to fully regulated handlers and guard against any threat to orderly milk marketing in the area. It is concluded that such an exemption should be provided.

A cooperative which operates a number of country plants receiving Detroit inspected milk has also arranged by contract for the receiving, weighing and cooling of member milk at certain plants not owned or operated by the cooperative. In each case the contracting plant handles no milk except that handled for the cooperative, and the disposition of such milk is entirely under the direction of the cooperative, in most cases being moved from the receiving plant in trucks owned and operated by the cooperative. Payments to producers for this milk are made at a blend price computed on uses of this and other milk marketed by the cooperative. It was proposed that in such cases the order provide that the milk be considered as received at a plant operated by the cooperative and the cooperative thus be made the handler for such milk.

The order provides for the verification of weights and butterfat tests of producer milk, for auditing of producer payrolls, and for determination of the disposition of producer milk. When producer milk is moved in bulk from the plant to which it is delivered by the producers, the identity of each producer's milk is lost. The person operating the plant where the milk is first received must therefore be responsible for weighing and testing the milk, maintaining records of such weights and tests and also records of the disposition of milk received, and usually records of payments to producers. If such person is not a handler under the order he cannot be held responsible for performing the functions listed above. He need not give the market administrator access to the plant or make available to him records of receipts and disposition of milk or facilities for verifying weights and tests. It appears that the person operating each plant which receives milk from producers must be made a handler if the provisions of the order are to be carried out. If the arrangement between a cooperative and the owner of a plant does not make the cooperative the operator of the plant, then the operator of the plant cannot be relieved of his handler status because of the arrangement. On the other hand, if the arrangement is of such a character as to make the cooperative the operator of the plant, or the part of the plant in which producer milk is received, then no special provision of the order is needed to make the cooperative the handler with respect to this milk.

Special provision is made for handlers who produce milk and receive no milk from other producers or cooperative associations. Defined as "producer-handlers," such handlers are exempted from all provisions of the order except reporting and auditing.

A "producer" is defined as any dairy farmer who produces milk which is delivered to a plant operated by a handler. This definition will identify all of the dairy farmers whose milk deliveries are regarded as a part of the normal Detroit area fluid milk supply. Although most producers will hold permits from a health authority in one of the major cities in the marketing area, there may be some small sections of the marketing area under the jurisdiction of health authorities which do not issue dairy farm permits. A health authority permit is therefore not specified for determining producer status. It is provided that a dairy farmer delivering milk to a plant not operated by a handler may retain producer status if such milk has been diverted from a handler plant. This would permit milk to be diverted to nonhandler manufacturing plants during the surplus season and still be priced and pooled under the order.

Definitions of "producer milk" and "other source milk" are included to distinguish between the regular supply for the fluid market and occasional receipts from other sources. Other source milk may be surplus from another fluid milk market or milk from a plant which is primarily a manufacturing plant. If such other source milk is disposed of as Class I milk in the marketing area a payment on that quantity at the difference between the manufacturing milk price and the Class I price should be required in order to curb any incentive for handlers to drop regular producer supplies of milk to purchase manufacturing milk at a price advantage.

"Route" is defined as a delivery, including a sale from a store, of a Class I product to a wholesale or retail stop or stops, except to a handler. The handler exception avoids qualifying a plant as a handler when deliveries are only made to other handlers. This would prevent a plant from qualifying as a handler and participating in the market pool merely by delivering some milk to a handler plant inside the marketing area.

The provisions of a base and excess plan of payment requires a definition of "base," "base milk," and "excess milk." Other standard terms are defined for the purpose of facilitating subsequent provisions of the order.

(5) Classification of milk. Milk should be classified in two classes reflecting the principal differences in the value of milk for different uses.

(a) Classes. Class I should include all skim milk and butterfat disposed of for consumption as milk, skim milk, buttermilk, or flavored milk, plant loss of producer milk in excess of 2 percent, and skim milk and butterfat not accounted for in Class II utilization. Class II should include skim milk and butterfat (1) disposed of for consumption as fluid cream (2) used to produce cottage cheese, ice cream or ice cream mix, or (3) contained in dried whole milk, nonfat dry milk solids, whole or skimmed evaporated or condensed milk, sweetened or unsweetened, butter, cheese, or livestock feed, or in milk dumped or in plant loss of producer milk not in excess of 2 percent of all producer milk and all plant loss of other source milk.

All classification proposals included milk and flavored milk for fluid consumption in Class I. Producers proposed that skim milk and buttermilk for fluid consumption be in Class I and handlers proposed that these products be in Class II. Representatives of health departments of the larger cities involved testified that such skim milk and buttermilk are required to be made from milk approved for fluid uses. It is concluded that milk required to meet the sanitary standards for fluid consumption and the products required to be made from such milk (flavored milk, and skim milk and buttermilk for fluid consumption) should be in Class I.

Testimony indicated that there are no farm inspection requirements for milk disposed of in most of the marketing area in any form other than as milk, flavored milk, skim milk, and buttermilk for fluid consumption. Cottage cheese, and cream used for fluid consumption or for ice cream in Detroit must be made in approved plants but the farms producing the milk used in these products are not inspected by city health authorities. There was no showing of any specific difference in the quality of milk used to produce cream and cottage cheese for use in the marketing area and the quality of milk manufactured into evaporated milk, cheese and other products in the various manufacturing plants in the milkshed. Handlers proposed that all products other than those requiring farm inspected milk to be included in one class. There does not appear to be justification, on the basis of the quality of milk required for their production, for different classification for milk used to produce cream and the various manufactured products. Butterfat and skim milk used in cream and all manufactured dairy products and in livestock feed and plant loss are therefore classified as Class II.

Both producers and distributors proposed a separate classification for so-called "distress" milk resulting from production in excess of market needs, which often must be disposed of at lower prices than received for milk for general manufacturing uses. A large amount of the milk not needed for fluid sales is handled by a cooperative which has limited manufacturing facilities. A substantial volume is also received by distributors who have no manufacturing facilities. The disposition of this milk in the spring months of heavy production has been a serious problem. Since manufacturing plants are operating at close to capacity at that time, disposition of this milk may require these plants to operate in excess of normal capacity, involving high cost overtime rates. In some cases it must be transported to distant plants. The choice of plants to which this milk may be diverted may be limited and sometimes it is accepted only at prices lower than those paid for milk from regular supply sources.

The problem of disposing of surplus milk has been met in recent years by providing a class (Class II–B) for all milk received by a distributor in excess of a certain amount, at a price lower than Class II–A, which includes all manufactured milk. Distributors proposed to continue this practice by an order provision that in any month when total market receipts of producer milk exceed 147 percent of market Class I utilization, all producer milk received by any handler in excess of 125 percent of his Class I utilization (provided the handlers' Class I utilization was 60 percent or more of his producer milk receipts in the preceding October, November and December) be Class IV milk, to be priced lower than Class III milk. Producers, however, proposed to meet the problem by providing a Class III made up of plant loss, dumped milk and all manufactured products other than ice cream and cottage cheese to be priced relatively low but somewhat higher than the Class IV proposed by the distributors.

The distributors' proposal does not provide that milk be classified in accordance with the form in which or the purpose for which it is used, but would base classification in part upon the amount of milk received and the amount used in another class. The producer proposal would place a large proportion of the milk used for manufacturing in the lowest price class although there may be no disposal problem with respect to much of this milk.

The record indicates that while the so-called "distress milk" price was in effect for several months in 1949, it was discontinued at the end of October of that year and had not again been used up to the time of the hearing (June, 1950). Also no such lower price was used in 1948 or 1946 and was in effect only 3 months in 1947. For six months prior to June, 1950, the supply of producer milk in relation to Class I utilization had decreased each month as compared with the corresponding month of the preceding year. The problem of surplus milk disposal normally occurs only in the spring months of heavy production. These facts indicate that at least for several months after the order may become effective, a price lower than the Class II price will not be needed to permit disposal of excess milk. It is concluded that a special class for "distress milk" at a price lower than the Class II price should not be provided and no provision should be made for a lower Class II price under certain supply conditions.

Producers proposed that plant loss up to 2 percent of producer milk received be allowed in the lowest price class, any in excess of this amount to be in Class I. Handlers proposed that all plant loss be in the lowest class, claiming that loss of the milk is sufficient incentive to keep such losses at a minimum and that the penalty of Class I pricing of any in excess of 2 percent is not justified. Data submitted indicate that with plant operation of average efficiency, the loss normally does not exceed 2 percent. Unlimited allocation of plant loss to Class II would place a premium on unaccounted for milk and encourage incomplete records of Class I utilization. Plant losses of producer milk in excess of 2 percent should be included in Class I.

It was proposed that in the case of milk moved from a country plant operated by a cooperative to a bottling plant, the 2 percent plant loss be allowed at the bottling plant. No reasons were given for limiting this provision to plants operated by a cooperative. It would seem that since part of the plant loss may be incurred at each plant, the allowance might more logically be divided between the plants. However, the proposed method avoids the problem of determining a fixed allocation of plant loss between the two handlers. The country plant operator may recover any receiving loss in his handling charge, and present charges probably cover this cost. It is concluded that the proposed provision, without the cooperative limitations, as well as the standard provisions for prorating loss between producer and other source milk, and allowing loss on diverted producer milk at the plant where actually received, should be included in the order.

(b) Milk transfers. Provision is made for classification of milk transferred between handlers, handlers and persons not handlers, and between cooperative plants and handlers. In the case of transfers between handlers not involving a cooperative plant, transfer is permitted in any agreed class in which the transferee plant has utilization in an amount equal to or greater than the amount so transferred, after allocating any other source milk to the lowest value use, since under a market-wide pool the classification of milk transferred between handlers may represent any agreed producer milk use without affecting the payment to producers. Each handler involved in a transfer is required to report the agreed classification, otherwise milk transfers are classified as Class I and cream transfers as Class II.

In the case of transfers from a handler plant to a plant not operated by a handler, a requirement that producer milk be allocated to the highest value uses in the transferee plant might increase the difficulty of disposing of surplus milk. Operators of some such non-handler plants have Class I uses and might refuse to handle surplus milk from the Detroit market if such milk would be allocated to their highest value uses. It is concluded that, as proposed, transfers from a handler plant to a plant not operated by a handler in the form of milk or skim milk be in Class I and in the form of cream be in Class II, but that such transfers shall be classified as mutually agreed by the transferor and transferee if the handler reports the transfer in such class, the transferee has use in the agreed class in an amount at least equal to the amount transferred or disposes of butterfat and skim milk to another plant which has such uses in the month. Books and records must be maintained at the plant at which the classification is made adequate to permit the market administrator to verify the reported utilization. In case the agreed utilization in the transferee plant exceeds the total of such utilization in the plant, the excess should be applied to the next higher priced class.

A number of country plants receiving Detroit inspected milk are operated by a cooperative association. Milk is transferred from these plants by tank truck to a large number of handler bottling plants. This milk is now classified for purposes of pricing at the pro rata classification of all producer milk in the bottling plant. Although classification has been on a relatively simple two class, hundredweight basis, market experience has shown that about a month is required to get the utilization reports from all the various buyers and to prorate the transferred milk to each class. Final settlement has not been made until the second month after delivery of the milk.

It is recommended herein that utilization of all handlers, including cooperatives, be reported not later than the 5th working day of the month following receipt of the milk, and that a uniform price based on these utilization reports be computed and announced not later than the 11th. It was considered improbable that the cooperative could collect utilization reports from the large number of handlers involved, compute other source milk allocation, prorate cooperative transfers of producer milk over remaining utilization, combine the results into a utilization report for the cooperative and submit it to the administrator in the 5 days allowed. Furthermore, any audit adjustments in classification for each handler involved would require an adjustment between the handler and the cooperative and a second adjustment between the cooperative and the equalization fund of the market-wide pool.

To simplify the procedure of accounting for such transfers, and to facilitate the reporting of utilization by the date specified, it was proposed that handlers operating bottling plants be required to pay the cooperative association a minimum of the base price for the month for such milk. In computing the cooperative equalization account the value of such bulk milk transferred to bottling plants at the base price would be added to the class values of other utilization.

This proposal would not affect the final cost of milk to handlers or the return to producers, and differs from settlement between the cooperative and transferee handlers at a pro rata or an agreed classification only in the method of handling a relatively small difference between the value of the transferred milk at the pro rata or agreed classification and such value at the base price. This difference would be reflected in the handler's payment made to or received from the equalization account. The recommended procedure would provide the same assurance of payment for milk marketed to handlers through a cooperative plant as for milk delivered directly by producers, and would result in payment for milk by each handler at his utilization value with a minimum of accounting requirements. The use of the base price in computing the equalization account charges and credits for such transferred milk is recommended because it would result in initially charging each handler at the approximate utilization value of the milk and, therefore, relatively small settlements with the equalization fund would be required.

It was proposed that a cooperative not be a handler with respect to milk transferred in bulk to a handler operating a bottling plant. A cooperative operating a plant which first receives milk from producers must be responsible for all records of milk receipts and of payments and therefore should be a handler with respect to all producer milk received at such plant.

Since some handlers combine operations which utilize other source milk and producer milk in the same plant, it is necessary to provide a method for allocating such other source milk to the various classes of utilization. Since producer milk includes all milk which is regularly available for fluid disposition in the marketing area, the method of allocating provides that such producer milk shall be allocated to the higher value uses to the extent that such uses are available.

(6) Class prices. Since the Detroit fluid milk market supply is obtained from a region in which large quantities of milk are delivered to plants which manufacture various milk products, it is necessary that the price for the fluid market be closely related to the level of prices being paid at competing manufacturing plants. There are some differences from time to time between the prices paid at plants manufacturing different products. Therefore, the Class I price should be related to that particular manufacturing milk price which represents the best outlet for manufacturing milk at any particular time. The method of accomplishing this has been to relate the Class I price to a series of basic formula prices which represent different kinds of manufacturing milk prices. Special differentials should be added to the highest of the prices determined by 4 separate alternate price formulas to determine the Class I price for each month.

(a) Basic formula price. Producers proposed 4 alternate basic formulas for use in determining the Class I price based on prices of butter and powder, butter and cheese, prices paid dairy farmers by 18 midwest dairy manufacturing plants and by 5 Michigan dairy manufacturing plants. Distributors made the same proposal and also proposed use of the same basic formulas in slightly modified form, and the 18 midwest plant price only.

The first 3 of the price formulas included in the producer proposal are widely used for determining Class I prices in milk markets under Federal regulation. The use in this order of these price formulas with appropriate Class I price differentials would correlate the Detroit Class I price with Class I prices in other markets such as Toledo and Cleveland. No objection was made to the use of the average of prices paid by certain Michigan manufacturing plants as an alternate basic formula, but there was disagreement as to which specific plants should be used. A number of different plants were proposed for inclusion, and the use of 7 plants instead of 5 was suggested. The following considerations should govern the selection of these plants so far as possible:

(1) Cooperative plants should not be included since their pay price to farmers usually includes only part of the return for milk, the remainder being paid as a patronage dividend which is not reflected in the reported pay price.

(2) Plants operated by a handler under the order should not be included because prices should be determined wholly independent of the actions of any handler.

(3) The plants selected should represent as wide a variety of manufactured products as possible.

(4) The plants should be so located as to represent all parts of the milkshed.

The use of 7 plants involves the possible difficulty of getting prompt payments reports, and it is improbable that the added quotations would influence the average price appreciably or make it more representative of manufacturing milk values in the area. The reporting of pay prices by the plants selected is voluntary and the use of any plant pay price in this formula will depend on consent of the plant operator to report his average pay price.

The following 5 Michigan plants appear to most nearly meet the requirements set forth above and should be used in determining the basic formula price.

Company	Location	Products
Fairmont Foods Co.	Bad Axe	Butter, condensed milk, ice cream mix.
Ford Cheese Co.	Clare	Cheese.
Carnation Milk Co.	Sheridan	Evaporated milk.
Grand Ledge Milk Co.	Grand Ledge	Nonfat dry milk solids, sweet cream.
Pet Milk Co.	Hudson	Evaporated milk.

Use of the highest formula price as the basic formula price would base the Class I price on the most favorable manufacturing use for milk in each month. In an area where all important dairy products are manufactured, fluid milk markets must compete for milk with plants making the highest value products. The Class I price should therefore be based on the formula representing the highest value for milk for manufacturing.

(b) Class I price. The Class I price should be determined by adding $1.35 to the basic formula price. This added differential should be increased 15 cents when a shortage of producer milk for Class I utilization is indicated by the ratio of receipts of producer milk to Class I utilization in the second 2 preceding months and decreased by 15 cents when an excess supply of milk is so indicated. An additional 15 cents should be added or subtracted for each additional full five percentage points decrease or increase in the ratio of producer milk receipts to Class I utilization.

Producers proposed a Class I price differential of $1.40 to be added to the basic formula price each month. Distributors proposed various differentials varying seasonally, which would average about $1.10 over the year, and one to be determined each month by a supply-demand formula. It was testified that a large proportion of the milk supply for the Detroit area is received at country stations and reshipped to bottling plants. The country station location differentials proposed by producers average 17 cents per hundredweight so that the Class I price reflected in the price to most producers at the point of milk delivery would average 17 cents below the marketing area price. This must be taken into account in setting the Class I differential.

Data covering an estimated 80 percent of the market value of milk deliveries indicate that the average number of producers supplying the market increased 1.5 percent from 1946 to 1949, while the average milk deliveries per producer increased 2 percent. In the same period, however, average daily Class I sales increased 5 percent. For the three years 1947 through 1949 producer milk deliveries averaged 135 percent of total Class I sales. The Class I price negotiated by the cooperative during this 3 year period averaged $1.39 over the proposed basic formula price. For the year 1947 the Class I price in Detroit averaged $1.23 above manufacturing milk prices as represented by the recommended basic formula price, and for the first 8 months of 1948 averaged only 86 cents above. These relatively low prices were associated with a decline in milk receipts in relation to sales. For the 12 month period ending with July 1948 Class I sales averaged 81 percent of producer milk receipts and during the period from November 1947 through February 1948 the market was short of milk.

Deliveries of milk to the Detroit market seem to respond readily to changes in the relationship of Detroit prices to prices for manufacturing milk. When the differential between the two prices has been large deliveries to Detroit have increased. When the price differential has narrowed deliveries have fallen off. Manufacturing milk prices dropped sharply after August, 1948, and the Class I price was increased, with the result that for the 9 month period from September 1948 through May 1949, the differential between Detroit Class I prices and manufacturing prices averaged $2.05 per hundredweight. This period of relatively high Class I prices brought about a reversal of the downward trend of milk receipts in relation to sales. For the year of 1949 Class I sales averaged 69 percent of producer milk receipts compared with 80 percent for 1948, and the supply each month exceeded that in the corresponding month of 1948. In the 12 month period of June 1949 through May 1950, the Class I price averaged $1.41 above the proposed basic formula price. During the first 7 months of this period, producer milk receipts increased in relation to Class I sales to a high point in December 1949 in which month only 70 percent of producer milk was sold as Class I compared with over 84 percent in December 1948. The maximum effect of the high differential between Detroit prices and manufacturing prices from October 1948 through May 1949 and of other factors such as favorable weather and ample feed supplies seems to have been reached by the end of 1949.

During the first 5 months of 1950 the excess of milk receipts over the corresponding months of 1949 decreased and receipts in May 1950 were below May 1949. During this period the Class I price was at approximately the level above manufacturing milk prices which producers proposed be fixed by the order. The record of milk receipts and Class I sales would seem to indicate that a Class I differential as high or higher than that proposed would be necessary to insure an adequate supply of milk. However, a number of provisions of the order other than the Class I price would have the effect of increasing the average return to producers. Distributors not in the present pool but who would be handlers under an order have a higher average Class I utilization than those now pooled. A higher butterfat differential would increase the return somewhat for Class I milk. The Class II order price recommended would probably return somewhat more for milk for these uses than was realized in 1949. Payment for all milk on a complete classified use basis would probably increase the average price to producers for all milk somewhat, and an audit verification of all handlers' uses would tend to have the same result.

Considering all of the factors discussed above, it is concluded that a Class I price differential of $1.35, subject to a supply-demand adjustment as recommended below, will attract to the Detroit market area an adequate supply of milk meeting the applicable health standards.

A proposal was made that the Class I price differential be adjusted monthly in relation to changes in the ratio of producer milk receipts to Class I utilization. Such a provision appears desirable but the proposal made should be modified somewhat. There are objections, for instance, to relating a current period to a 1947–48–49 base period, as proposed, as a measure of the time and amount of price changes desirable. During this 3 year period producer milk deliveries were 135 percent of Class I utilization, a larger supply than necessary to insure sufficient milk for Class I utilization in the short supply months. The 3 year period was one of wide variations both in prices and in production. The Class I price ranged from 58 cents above the proposed basic formula price to $2.32 above and producer milk receipts ranged from 107 percent of Class I utilization in December 1947 to 143 percent in December 1949. For these reasons the 1947–49 period does not seem to be suitable either as an indication of an appropriate Class I price differential, or as a guide to the normal seasonal variations in the ratio of receipts to Class I utilization.

The object of a supply-demand price adjustment in this market is to bring about an automatic price increase when the supply of producer milk is at such a level in relation to Class I utilization that a shortage in the months of seasonally low production is indicated, and a price decrease when the supply may be expected to be substantially above Class I needs in the low production months. These price changes should be made as soon as possible after an oversupply or shortage is indicated, as a lag of a few months may result in increased prices in the spring months of high production as a result of a shortage the previous winter. A minimum lag of 2 months appears necessary, allowing computation in the current month of the market supply-demand relationship in the preceding month to be applied to the Class I price in the next following month.

It was testified that a minimum milk supply for the market of 115 percent of Class I utilization is needed in any one month to provide adequate milk for Class I uses because of unequal distribution among handlers and daily and weekly variations in receipts and sales. A supply of more than 130 percent of Class I utilization in the shortest supply month would indicate a supply larger than needed. An upward price adjustment would be indicated if the market supply of producer milk in the shortest supply month might be expected to fall below 115 percent of Class I utilization and a downward adjustment indicated if this supply might be expected to exceed 130 percent of Class I utilization. Monthly data on daily average deliveries per farm indicate a fairly uniform seasonal variation in production each year. The supply-demand ratio for other months which would correspond to 122.5 percent, the midpoint of the 115 percent—130 percent range, in the shortest supply month may therefore be computed by adjusting this ratio by a standard seasonal variation in producer milk deliveries computed as an average of the seasonal variation of the most recent 5 years. A Class I price increase is then indicated at a full 7.5 percentage points below the adjusted ratio and a decrease at a full 7.5 percentage points above the adjusted ratio, as computed for each month. It may be necessary to revise the standard seasonal adjustment after data becomes available on the seasonal production of all producers supplying the market. If the seasonal variation in the production of all producers shows a wide divergence from that indicated by the data now available, it may be necessary to postpone the effective date of the supply-demand adjustment until complete data is available. The possibility of erratic price movements due to temporary influence may be largely removed by use of a 2-month period instead of one month, and is so provided.

Producer milk receipts in relation to sales and to producer prices over the last 4 years indicate that the proposed 3 cents per percentage point is a desirable rate of supply-demand adjustment of the Class I price differential after providing a 15-cent change for the first full 7.5 percentage point variation. A period of 9 months during which the Class I price averaged about 82 cents above the recommended basic formula price coincided with and was followed for several months by an oversupply of milk. These data indicate that a range of Class I price differentials somewhat less than these extremes is desirable. A price change of 15 cents for the first 7.5 percentage points variation in the ratio, and an additional 15 cents for each 5 percentage points, when applied to the supply-demand ratios of the last 4 years gives a top differential of $1.80 (in 3 months only) and a low (in 3 months only) of 90 cents. It is unlikely that either of these extremes would have been reached had the recommended pricing plan been in effect during these years, since the computed range of 90 cents to $1.80 is based on production responses to Class I price differentials ranging from a low of 58 cents to a high of $2.32. The range which might be expected from the use of a 15-cent adjustment for each 5 percentage points probably would not exceed $1.05 to $1.65 which appears appropriate to stimulate an ample supply of producer milk and at the same time avoid a large surplus.

To remove the possibility of a succession of increases and decreases if the ratio should fluctuate slightly above and below the level at which a price change is effected, it is provided that after a price change occurs a change in the ratio of an additional ½ percentage point is required to bring about a succeeding change in the opposite direction.

(c) Class II price. The Class II price should reflect the value of milk for general manufacturing uses in the Detroit milkshed. The average of the prices paid by 5 Michigan dairy manufacturing plants, as recommended for use as an alternate basic formula price, will normally reflect the value of milk in the Detroit area which is not used for fluid milk sales. Much of this milk is diverted to manufacturing uses in the various plants in the milkshed, and the 5 plant average price will usually be representative of the prices received for this milk, because of the selection of the plants as discussed in connection with the basic formula price.

It is possible, however, that due to the limited number of plants which it is practical to use, and the limited area represented, that prices paid by these plants may be lower at times than the market prices of manufactured dairy products would justify. As a safeguard against temporarily depressed prices in the local area, an alternate Class II price based on the market prices of butter and nonfat dry milk solids should be provided. A formula used in many milk markets under Federal regulation for pricing milk for manufacturing uses is recommended. This formula determines butterfat values at the average price of 92-score butter at Chicago plus 20 percent and skim milk values at the average price of spray and roller process nonfat dry milk solids at Chicago area plants less a manufacturing cost allowance of 5.5 cents per pound and converted to skim milk equivalent by use of a yield factor of 8.5 pounds of powder per hundredweight. Use of this formula price as an alternate Class II price would insure a price in line with national values of manufactured dairy products during any periods when the price paid by the particular local plants selected might be abnormally low for any reason.

(d) Method of pricing. Producers proposed that butterfat and skim milk be classified and priced separately. Distributors objected to butterfat and skim milk pricing, and proposed that the utilization in each class in hundredweight be priced at a 3.5 percent hundredweight price, adjusted to average test of the class by use of the producer butterfat differential, which averages about 112 percent of the Chicago 92-score butter price. They contended that resale prices of the various products marketed are adjusted to this method of pricing milk, which has been in use in the market for many years. This method of pricing tends to encourage consumption of butterfat, they claimed, by fixing a relatively low cost for high butterfat content products. Producers claimed that all handlers should pay the same price for all butterfat and skim milk used in any one class and that the relative values of butterfat and skim milk in each class should be the relative values in the open market as shown by market prices of butter and nonfat dry milk solids. These relative values should change from month to month as market values change. The additional cost of producing milk of the quality required for Class I products should be allocated to Class I butterfat and skim milk in proportion to the market values of butterfat and skim milk for manufacturing uses. They pointed out that the distributors' proposal allocated all of this additional cost to the skim milk.

Computing the proposed prices by the method suggested by distributors, for the month of April 1950, skim milk in Class I would have cost $1.99, 3.2 percent milk $4.03 and 5.0 percent milk $5.24. The added fat would cost less than the price proposed for butterfat in the Class II formula. In Class II, 100 pounds of 40 percent cream would have cost $26.71 while the 40 pounds of butterfat in this cream would be worth $28.70 at the butterfat value in the proposed Class II formula (Chicago 92–score butter plus 20 percent). Under the pricing method proposed by producers, the corresponding prices would have been 74 cents for skim milk, $3.96 for 3.2 percent milk, $5.78 for 5 percent milk and $29.01 for 40 percent cream.

The proposed methods of pricing milk on a hundredweight basis or a butterfat and skim milk basis represent alternate accounting methods and do not determine the cost of milk to handlers or the return to producers. In view of the market custom of hundredweight accounting and pricing, it appears that a continuation of this method of pricing by the terms of the order is desirable. Class prices should be expressed as hundredweight prices, and the price for each class should be adjusted to the actual butterfat test of the class by use of the butterfat differentials recommended below.

The classification and allocation of producer milk should be on a skim milk and butterfat basis. Because of the wide variation in the butterfat test of the various products, it is probable that the skim milk from producer milk will frequently be utilized in a different class than the butterfat from the same milk. Classification of skim milk and butterfat separately is necessary to accomplish complete classification according to use. It is also necessary to allocate producer skim milk and butterfat separately in order to give producer milk preference over other source milk in the higher value uses.

(e) Handler butterfat differential. The Class I butterfat differential proposed by distributors places a low value on butterfat in Class I milk relative to the hundredweight value of the milk. On the other hand, the producer proposal would price such butterfat relatively high, particularly in view of pricing practices prevailing in the market. The proposed Class I and Class II price formulas would have resulted in the last 3 years in a Class I price for 3.5 percent milk ranging from 23 percent to 32 percent above the Class II price. A Class I butterfat differential set at 20 cents per pound of butterfat above the producer butterfat differential recommended herein would result in a Class I differential ranging between 20 and 30 percent above the Class II butterfat differential, depending on the level of butter prices. A differential so determined would range from 25 to 35 cents above the Chicago 92-score butter price. At price levels of April 1950 this would provide a Class I butterfat differential of 85 cents per pound compared with 65 cents proposed by distributors and $1.015 proposed by producers. It is concluded that the addition of 2 cents to the one-tenth pound producer butterfat differential, which is based on the price of 92-score butter at Chicago, will provide an appropriate Class I butterfat differential.

Since formulas are provided for determining the butterfat and skim milk values in one of the alternate Class II prices, the butterfat differentials in this case should be the butterfat value determined by the formula. In the event the 5 plant average pay price is the effective Class II price, an equivalent butterfat differential may be determined by assigning to the butterfat, as proposed, the percentage represented by the butter portion of the butter-powder formula in the same month. This may be accomplished by dividing the butter formula by the hundredweight butter-powder price, multiplying the 5 plant price by the resulting percentage and dividing by 35.

(b) Location adjustments. Adjustments for delivery location are provided with respect to payments to producers for milk delivered (1) at country plants (i. e. plants from which no route deliveries are made into the marketing area) located more than 34 miles from the Detroit City Hall and (2) at plants from which route deliveries are made into the marketing area if such plants are located more than 34 miles from the nearest point on the periphery of the marketing area. A credit to handlers at the same rate is provided on milk moved from a country plant to plants operating routes in the marketing area not in excess of Class I disposition of such milk at the receiving plant, and on milk disposed of as Class I milk from the country plant other than to a handler. No location adjustments are provided for plants operating routes in the marketing area and located inside or less than 34 miles outside the marketing area, on payments to producers for milk received or as credits on milk disposed of as Class I or moved to bottling plants.

It was proposed that producer and handler location adjustment rates now in effect be incorporated in the order. For more than 30 years a location adjustment has been applied to milk received at country plants for re-shipment to city bottling plants in the Detroit area. This adjustment, based on the distance of the country plant from some point in the marketing area, has been deducted from the marketing area delivery price in making payments to farmers delivering milk to country plants, and a credit at the same rate has been allowed to country plant operators on milk moved to city plants.

In the earlier years these location adjustment rates were increased several times, reaching a high in 1930 when they ranged from 24 cents per hundredweight at 25 miles or less to 81 cents at 90 miles from the basing point. During the following 9 years the rates were lowered 4 times, to a low which ranged from 12 cents at 45 miles or less to 19 cents at points over 94 miles from the basing point, which rates prevailed for the two years following September 1, 1939.

The slightly higher schedule proposed, equivalent to that which has been in effect since October 1, 1947, provides an adjustment of 15 cents on milk received at or moved from a plant located in a zone 34 miles to 49 miles from the Detroit City Hall by shortest road distance, and an additional 1 cent per hundredweight for each 8 mile zone with a limit of 22 cents, which applies to any location beyond 97 miles. While no data were given on milk hauling costs, the proposed rates were considered adequate to cover cost of transporting the milk by tank truck from the receiving plant to city bottling plants. No allowance was proposed for the zone within 34 miles of the city hall as milk produced within this zone may be delivered more economically directly to city bottling plants.

The location allowance is limited to a maximum of 22 cents which is the allowance applicable to the zone starting at 97 miles from the Detroit City Hall. Ample milk for the market is available within the area included in the 8 zones for which mileage rates are provided and very little milk is moved from beyond 97 miles. The movement of milk for unnecessarily long distances at the producers' expense would not be economical. The proposed maximum rate of 22 cents would not discourage the movement of milk from reasonable distances beyond 97 miles as the economics of the long haul would to some extent offset the lower rate per mile.

Both the Grand Boulevard and the city hall in Detroit were proposed as basing points for location adjustments. Mileage may be determined more readily from a single point than from a street extending many miles. The Detroit City Hall is therefore specified as the basing point for all distance differentials. Zone distances 4 miles greater than now in use based on the Grand Boulevard are provided to allow for the distance of between 3 and 4 miles between the two basing points. The shortest road distance as determined by the market administrator was proposed for fixing the zone location of country plants and appears satisfactory for this purpose. The location adjustments as proposed would apply to all producer milk delivered to qualifying country plants in each zone and it appears would result in a fair value for such milk in relation to the value of milk delivered at city bottling plants.

It was proposed by producers that handlers operating receiving plants in the location adjustment area receive a credit computed by applying the applicable zone route to all milk moved to marketing area bottling plants regardless of the use classification of the milk so moved. Handlers proposed that the customary method of pricing milk be continued and this method, in effect, allows the location adjustment credit on 107 percent of Class I utilization. This results from adjusting the city price of Class II–B milk, which includes all producer milk in excess of 107 percent of Class I milk, by adding the average location adjustment of 17 cents to the Class II–B price formula. While the location adjustment credit is allowed on all milk moved to city bottling plants, it is in effect removed from Class II–B milk by increasing the marketing area price by the average location adjustment. This method of pricing manufacturing milk is not recommended.

Producers should not be required to bear the cost of transporting manufacturing milk from country plants to city plants. Milk may usually be manufactured more economically in country plants, and if a handler chooses to transport milk into the city for manufacture he should pay the cost of transportation. The handler location adjustment should apply therefore only to milk moved to bottling plants for Class I use. The use of milk moved from country plants would be determined by pro-rating to such milk the classification of all producer milk in the bottling plant (after first allocating other source milk to the lowest value uses).

In most cases some milk in excess of Class I uses must be moved to a city bottling plant from country plants since plants cannot regulate their supply to exactly Class I needs. Limiting the handler credit to Class I milk only results in a small reduction in the credit now being allowed, which all interested parties testified was satisfactory. To allow for the small amount of Class II milk which must be transported at no credit, the differential rates should be increased one cent. This is an average increase of 6 percent and will result in approximately the same allowance as has been in effect since 1947.

Because of the large size of the marketing area, some bottling plants located in the marketing area would also be in a zone to which a location adjustment would apply. It was proposed that the producer location adjustment apply to milk delivered to such plants as well as that delivered to country receiving plants. It was further proposed by distributors that handlers disposing of Class I or Class II producer milk from plants located in a location adjustment zone, including bottling plants in the marketing area, receive a credit on such milk at the rate of the handler location adjustment applicable to the zone. Producers also proposed such a credit, but that it be applicable only at plants located more than 65 miles from the Detroit City Hall.

The portion of the marketing area including the city of Ann Arbor would be in the first location adjustment zone (34 to 49 miles from the Detroit City Hall) and that including Port Huron and nearby cities would lie in the first 3 zones (34 to 65 miles from the Detroit City Hall). As proposed, producers delivering milk to Ann Arbor bottling plants would receive 14 cents less than for milk delivered within the 34 mile zone, and those delivering to plants in Port Huron and nearby areas would receive 14 to 16 cents less. As proposed by handlers, a handler credit of like amount would be allowed on Class I and Class II disposition from these plants. Under the producers' proposal, however, no credit on Class I and Class II disposition would be allowed within the 65-mile zone, which would exclude all plants within the marketing area.

All parts of the marketing area are dependent upon the entire production area for a year around supply of milk. While part of the milk for the Ann Arbor and Port Huron areas is supplied by nearby farms, both areas depend for a large amount of milk on country plants which are part of the supply system for the entire marketing area. The prices necessary to attract an adequate supply of milk for the entire area should apply therefore to all parts of the area.

Location adjustments to producers are provided to adjust the amount paid for milk which is not delivered to city bottling plants to allow for the additional cost of moving such milk from the plant where it is delivered by the producer to the area where it is to be distributed and should not apply to milk delivered by a producer to a bottling plant distributing milk in or near the marketing area unless the bottling plant is located an appreciable distance from the marketing area. No location differentials are recommended at points nearer than 34 miles to the Detroit City Hall. The same distance is appropriate for determining the application of a location differential to plants operating routes in the marketing area, except the distance should apply to the nearest point by highway to the boundary of the marketing area. It is provided that location adjustments, both producer and handler, apply to milk delivered to plants more than 34 miles from the Detroit City Hall, and in the case of plants operating routes in the marketing area, also located more than 34 miles from the boundary of the marketing area by shortest highway distance.

Handler plants receiving milk approved for sale in the marketing area may dispose of Class I milk in localities outside the marketing area. It was testified that the Detroit market is the dominant factor in the determination of prices in the entire milkshed. Hence, the Detroit marketing area Class I price, less the applicable location adjustment, would represent approximately the value of Class I milk disposed of from any plant in the Detroit milkshed. It is provided that a handler shall receive a credit with respect to Class I milk disposed of, other than to another handler, from a plant outside the marketing area from which a route is not operated in the marketing area at the rate of the location adjustment for the zone in which the plant is located. This credit is made applicable only at plants located more than 34 miles from the nearest point by highway to the boundary of the marketing area in the case of plants disposing of milk on routes in the marketing area. No allowance is provided for Class II milk since this milk would be mostly used in manufactured products and its value would not decrease at locations more distant from Detroit.

(g) Transportation credits. No transportation credits in addition to the zone location adjustment should be allowed to handlers on Class I milk disposed of, or on Class II milk moved for manufacturing.

It was proposed that a credit be allowed to a handler on any bulk, unpasteurized milk moved to a person other than a handler at a location 65 miles or more from the Detroit City Hall for Class I utilization computed at a rate of 17 cents for the 65 to 73 mile zone from the Detroit City Hall and increased one cent for each additional 8-mile zone. It was testified that the proposal was intended to permit disposal of milk during the summer season to milk distributors in distant resort areas at a price not in excess of the Detroit Class I price at the handler's receiving plant.

This proposal conflicts with the proposal discussed above to allow a credit on any Class I disposition other than to another handler from certain plants at the rate of the location differential applicable to the plant. This proposal, in effect, would require producers to pay the transportation cost to any point more than 64 miles from Detroit where a handler might choose to dispose of bulk Class I milk. If Class I milk from the Detroit area is needed in a distant market, it appears that the cost of transporting the needed milk should be borne by the market which is short of milk and not by the milk producers of the area from which the milk is supplied.

It was also proposed that a credit be allowed to handlers on milk transported from the plant where it is received from producers to another plant for manufacture at a rate of 6 cents per hundredweight for distances of ½ mile to 5 miles between the receiving plant and the manufacturing plant and at the rate of 1 cent for each additional 6 miles or fraction thereof with a maximum allowance of 18 cents per hundredweight.

In the Detroit market some milk distributors receive all of their milk needs from producers, either at a city bottling plant or at country plants, and manufacture the receipts in excess of their fluid milk needs into dairy products, generally at the plant where the milk is received from producers. If it is necessary to move any of the milk to another plant for manufacture, the transportation cost is paid by the distributor. Other distributors buy part or all of their milk from a producers cooperative association and assume no responsibility for disposing of milk in excess of their needs for fluid sales. The cooperative must arrange for converting the surplus milk which these distributors would otherwise be required to handle into manufactured products and in doing so must move substantial quantities from the country plants where it is received from producers to other plants for manufacture. It is expected, therefore, that the cooperative would be the main recipient of the transportation credits under this proposal.

If the proposed credits were provided for in the order, some of the costs which the cooperative must bear in the disposal of surplus milk would be defrayed out of the equalization pool and ultimately reflected in a lower return to all producers. A number of handlers have arranged to dispose of all surplus milk incident to their operations without the necessity of transporting milk at the expense of producers. The level of surplus milk prices which is provided is designed to cover the cost of converting surplus milk into manufactured dairy products. Any extra costs which the cooperative must bear appear to be due to additional services performed for certain distributors such as furnishing milk in the exact amounts needed for Class I uses, maintaining country receiving plants, keeping an adequate supply of milk available at all times and handling the disposal of any milk not needed by these distributors. It appears that these extra costs should be reflected in the cost of milk to the distributors who receive the additional services rather than be charged to producers through pool credits. The charge for manufacturing milk should be the same for all handlers, including cooperatives, without special allowances or credits applicable to particular methods of handling this milk.

(7) Payments to producers—(a) Type of pool. Market-wide pooling of all proceeds of producer milk was proposed and no objection was made to this type of pool. The nature of the market requires a uniform price to all producers representing the value of all market utilization to fairly compensate producers for their contribution to the market supply. Some distributors buy as closely as possible to their needs and carry little or no surplus in the high production months. A cooperative handles a large portion of the spring surplus production and supplies many distributors with milk as needed. Distributors in the Ann Arbor area buy from producers less milk than needed for a large portion of the year, and depend on additional purchases of milk in bulk from a cooperative. Some country plants supply milk for fluid distribution only in a few months of low production but maintain an available supply at all times. Producers supplying these various handler plants contribute equally to making available a year around supply of milk but would receive widely varying returns under an individual handler pool method of payment.

Handlers are required to make payments for all producer milk received at the uniform base price for base milk and the excess price for excess milk, as explained below, either to producers directly or to a cooperative association for milk delivered by member producers. In the case of producers for whom a cooperative acts as marketing agent, payments may be made to the producer or to the cooperative, as agreed between the cooperative and the handler. Payments to a cooperative for producer milk delivered in bulk are required to be made at the uniform base price for the reasons set forth in the discussion of transfers.

(b) Base-excess plan. A "base plan" for returning the proceeds of milk sales to producers in a way which will encourage more uniform seasonal production is provided. Milk is to be paid for on the basis of deliveries during the August–December period.

A base plan has been in use in the Detroit market since 1930 and a proposal was made to incorporate this plan in the order in substantially the form now in use. It was shown that at the time the base plan of payment was introduced 20 years ago, milk deliveries to the market in the highest production month were 175 percent of deliveries in the lowest month. After 10 years of operation of the plan (1940), milk receipts in the highest production month were only 126 percent of the lowest month. During the next 5 years wartime demand and higher prices apparently somewhat offset the base plan incentive for even seasonal production. By 1945 the seasonal variation in milk receipts as measured by the percentage relationship of the highest month to the lowest month had increased to 146 percent. In the following 4 years seasonal variation in production improved and in 1949 the high month was down to 134 percent of the low month. If the seasonal variation of 1930 had prevailed in 1949, and November deliveries had been only adequate for market needs (115 percent of Class I utilization), deliveries in June would have been over 201 percent of Class I and in volume over 60 million pounds of milk in excess of Class I needs. It was stated that in view of the difficulty experienced in disposing of the actual market surplus in 1949 when June receipts exceeded Class I utilization by only 30 million pounds, a completely demoralized market might have resulted without the influence of the base plan on seasonal production.

Basically, the plan provides that each producer will receive approximately the marketing area Class II price for milk delivered each month in excess of a daily average amount, the producer's "base", which base is the daily average of shipments of the producer for the period of August through December of the previous year, the "base period." For milk deliveries not in excess of base, a "base price" is paid which is computed by dividing total market base milk deliveries into the remaining returns for all producer milk marketed during the month after deducting the value of the excess milk. The plan as proposed by the cooperative differed from the simplified outline above in two major respects: (1) in the case of a daily average of base period deliveries lower than the base already held by a producer, the new base would be the previous base less any amount by which 90 percent of the previous base exceeds the average daily base period deliveries, and (2) once during each year a producer may elect to give up his base and to establish a new base under the method proposed for establishing the base of a new producer.

It was proposed that a new producer entering the market, or a producer electing to give up his base, be paid for a certain percentage of his milk during each of the first three full months of delivery at the base price and the remainder at the excess price. These percentages are fixed for each month at a somewhat lower percentage of base and higher percentage of excess than the normal market average of all producers for the month. The average daily amount of milk paid for as base milk over the three-month period would determine the producer's daily base until a new base is established. The percentages proposed are now in use in the market and reflect the difference in seasonal production patterns of old producers and new producers as determined from market experience. The low spring percentages are necessary if producers are to be given the option of establishing a new base in order to prevent producers having a wide seasonal variation from receiving higher payments than justified by establishing two bases each year. The recommended percentages of milk deliveries to be paid for at the base price, 75 percent for February, 70 percent for March, 80 percent for April and July and 40 percent for May and June, are appropriate for making payments in these months to new producers and to producers who elect to establish new bases. Payments during the base period, however, should be at the market blend price as discussed below. Base should be established on deliveries during the base period at 80 percent of deliveries. This would give old shippers the option of establishing a new base on 100 percent of daily average deliveries in the 5 months of August through December or 80 percent of deliveries in the 3 months of October, November and December.

In the Detroit market the months of lowest production in relation to fluid milk sales are normally October, November, December and January. The base period proposed includes August and September which are usually months of more plentiful supply than are January and February, and does not include January. These months appear to have been selected to offset the lag in production responses which requires the stimulas to fall and winter production to become effective some months in advance of the period of shortest production in relation to market needs. A base period extending through January and February would tend to result in higher production in the spring months of oversupply. Deliveries of base milk in the 5 months of the base period averaged over 87 percent of Class I sales in the last 4 years, and over 91 percent in 1946 and 1947, which indicates the desirability of shifting production to those months. It is concluded that the proposed base forming period should be adopted except that deliveries for only 122 days during the period be required. This would allow for a producer starting delivery not later than September 1, and for limited lapses in delivery during the period.

Continuation of producer payments on the base and excess plan during the base forming months was proposed. The base-excess plan was proposed as an incentive for more even seasonal production, the objective being to encourage each producer to produce more of his total year supply of milk in the late summer and fall months and less in the spring months. The plan, therefore, should not discourage increased fall production by requiring payment for all or part of higher production at the excess price. It was proposed that a new producer, or an old producer desiring to establish a new base, be paid during the base forming months at the base price for 80 percent of his milk deliveries and at the excess price for 20 percent. However, no penalty should be imposed during these months when the supply of milk is shortest in relation to demand, either on new shippers entering the market or on old shippers who desire to increase the level of their milk deliveries. It is concluded, therefore, that during the base forming months a new shipper, or an old shipper who relinquishes his base, should be paid the market blend price for all milk delivered during up to 3 of these months, and a base then be established at 80 percent of the average daily deliveries during 3 months. If deliveries are made for 4 or 5 of the base forming months, a new base of 100 percent of such average deliveries would become effective February 1. Only 80 percent of a producer's deliveries are allowed as base when the base is established on three months deliveries. Such deliveries are made at the uniform price. Deliveries of milk for two of the base forming months in the case of old shippers and one or two months in the case of new shippers are made under the previous base or the newly established 80 percent base in establishing a base on 100 percent of his deliveries. These provisions will require re-examination after data are available on the results of their operation to determine the possible restrictive tendencies.

The proposal that bases be reduced by the difference between the average base period deliveries, and 90 percent of the previous base was the result of long experience in the market which has shown that such an adjustment eliminates most cases of inequity and dissatisfaction because of reductions in base due to accident, disease, weather, feed quality and other conditions more or less beyond the control of the producer.

A producer may desire to change his level of production and should not be required to receive payment for the higher production at the excess price until the next February 1st. It was proposed that producers be permitted to re-establish a base in line with their normal production level by allowing any producer to relinquish his base and to establish a base as a new producer once during each year. This would make the plan more flexible and would take care of cases of abnormally low production during the base period due to unsual circumstances.

A period of one month is allowed following the end of the base period to compute new bases. Every producer (except those who have been on the market less than 3 months) receives a new base on February 1 computed as the average of daily deliveries during the base forming months, or 80 percent of average daily deliveries in 3 months.

It was proposed that bases in use on the effective date of the order be applicable, subject to the approval of the market administrator, until the next February 1. However, the record indicates that there are some 2,000 producers who would have no base. It was proposed that the market administrator collect data on deliveries of these producers for the previous base forming months, or the first 3 months of delivery, and compute bases as if the order had been in effect during the base forming months of the previous year. Aside from the difficulties of collecting the data and making the computations in the brief period allowed, and the probable lack of some necessary records, which make the proposal impractical if not impossible to carry out, the proposal, in effect, would make certain provisions of the order retroactive to periods several months before the order would become effective. The last objection also applies to requiring payments on bases already established previous to the effective date of the order.

It is provided that all milk be paid for at a uniform price until bases have been established by deliveries during the first base period after the order becomes effective. This, of course, would not prevent a cooperative from re-pooling the returns for milk of its members and making payments on such base and excess plan as it may elect.

Rules have been provided for the handling of bases under certain circumstances. It is provided that any producer who fails to deliver milk to a handler for 45 consecutive days shall lose his base.

(c) Producer butterfat differential. Payments to producers must be adjusted for butterfat content. The proposed butterfat differential, based on the market price of 92-score butter at Chicago, has been in use in the market since 1941. This differential appears to have resulted in a supply of producer milk of satisfactory butterfat test for the needs of the market, and it is recommended as a provision of the order. Order prices are set for 3.5 percent milk as prices have always been announced for milk of this test in the market, and the basic test of 3. 5 percent apparently requires a minimum of adjustment to arrive at prices for actual tests of producer milk.

(8) Administrative provisions. (a) Administrative assessments. The act provides that the cost of administering a milk marketing order shall be financed by assessments on handlers subject to the order. An assessment of 2 cents per hundredweight of milk received from producers was proposed for the purpose. Although a considerable volume of cream from sources other than producers is received, testimony indicates that a fair apportionment of the administrative costs among handlers may be arrived at by basing the assessment on receipts of producer milk only. Normally, little or no other source milk is received as milk at handler plants. Should the rate of 2 cents per hundredweight prove more than adequate to cover costs of administering the order, it is provided that the Secretary may prescribe a lesser amount.

(b) Marketing services. To verify payments to producers at required rates, it is necessary to determine that butterfat tests and weights are accurate. To promote orderly marketing and encourage the production of an adequate supply of milk of satisfactory quality, it is necessary to furnish information regarding the market to individual producers. The cost of these market services should be paid by the producers who receive the benefits. Cooperative associations may be performing these services for members. It is provided, therefore, that in making payments to producers who are members of cooperatives determined by the Secretary to be performing such services, handlers shall deduct and pay to the cooperative such deductions as are authorized by the members of the cooperative. In the case of producers who are not receiving such services from their cooperative, the service should be performed by the market administrator with funds provided by a deduction from payments to such producers. It was proposed that a deduction of 5 cents per hundredweight be provided for this purpose. No testimony opposed such a deduction or indicated that a different rate should be provided.

Data on costs of furnishing these services to producers not serviced by cooperatives indicate that such costs would be relatively high. These producers deliver milk to 89 plants which are scattered over a wide area. It was estimated that butterfat check-testing costs under these conditions would be over 60 cents per test. It is provided that a deduction of 5 cents per hundredweight be made from payments to producers not receiving market services from a cooperative of which they are members and paid to the market administrator to be used for performing such services, and that this rate of 5 cents may be lowered by the Secretary if experience proves a lesser amount to be sufficient.

(c) Other administrative provisions. The other provisions cover administrative procedures necessary to carry out the pricing and payment requirements of the order, and for the liquidation of accounts in the event of suspension or termination of the order. Appointment of a market administrator is provided for and his powers and duties are prescribed. The computations to be made by the market administrator in determining class prices and the uniform and base price are set forth. A producer-equalization account is provided and the method of determining payments due to and from this account outlined so that each handler's payments to or receipts from this account, together with his payments to producers or cooperatives for milk will equal the value of his producer milk at the class prices. Handlers are required to permit verification by audit of all utilization of milk and milk products. Handlers are required to preserve all necessary records to show receipts, utilization and payments for a period of three years. This is considered long enough to allow for all necessary verification and at the same time not burden handlers with an unreasonable volume of old records. Records involved in any litigation, however, must be retained until released by the market administrator.

The termination of any obligation of a handler regarding any payment required by the order or of the market administrator to pay any handler is provided at the end of two years. Exceptions in the case of handler obligations are made in cases of notification of the obligation by the market administrator, failure or refusal of a handler to submit records, or transactions involving fraud or willful concealment of facts. A definite date for terminating obligations prevents the filing of claims which might extend back many years and involve substantial amounts. The resulting uncertainty could cause serious inequities and endanger the stability of the market. Handlers cannot be forewarned as to contingent liabilities and it is extremely difficult and burdensome for them to make adequate provision therefor by setting up reserves or by taking other precautionary measures. It is concluded that in general a period of two years is a reasonable time in which the market administrator should complete his audits and render billings for money due under the order.

Payments to producers have customarily been made on the 15th of the month following that in which the milk was received. It is considered desirable to continue this practice, as a shorter time is impractical considering the necessary reports and computations to be made. Producers should not be required to wait longer than 15 days when payment can be made within that time. Dates specified for announcement of class prices, submission of handler reports, announcement of uniform prices and equalization fund obligations are so set as to permit payments to producers by the 15th of the following month.

General findings. (a) The proposed marketing agreement and the order and all of the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, the available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which effect market supply and demand, for milk in the marketing area and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk and be in the public interest; and

(c) The proposed order will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

The following order is tentatively approved as the appropriate means by which the foregoing conclusions may be carried out. The recommended marketing agreement is not included in this tentative decision because the regulatory provisions thereof would be identical with those contained in the order.

AUTHORITY: §§ 924.1 to 924.102 issued under sec. 5, 49 Stat. 753, as amended; 7 U. S. C. and Sup. 608c.

§ 924.0 Findings and determinations—(a) Findings upon the basis of the hearing record. Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held upon a proposed marketing agreement and a proposed order regulating the handling of milk in the Detroit, Michigan, marketing area. Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at such hearing and the record thereof, it is found that:

(1) The said order and all of the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(2) The parity prices of milk produced for sale in the said marketing area as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the order are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk and be in the public interest; and

(3) The said order regulates the handling of milk in the same manner as and is applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

(4) All milk and milk products, handled by handlers, as defined in this order, are in the current of interstate commerce or directly burden, obstruct, or affect interstate commerce in milk or its products; and

(5) It is hereby found that the necessary expenses of the market administrator for the maintenance and functioning of such agency will require the payment by each handler, as his pro rata share of such expenses, 2 cents per hundredweight or such amount not exceeding 2 cents per hundredweight as the Secretary may prescribe, with respect to all producer milk (including such handler's own production) received during the month.

Order relative to handling. It is therefore ordered that on and after the effective date hereof, the handling of milk in the Detroit, Michigan, marketing area shall be in conformity to and in compliance with the following terms and conditions:

ments to producers and cooperative associations.

The market administrator shall give further written notification to the handler promptly upon the termination of the litigation or when the records are no longer necessary in connection therewith.

CLASSIFICATION

§ 924.40 Skim milk and butterfat to be classified. All skim milk and butterfat received at a handler plant (a) in milk from producers or from a cooperative association (except as provided in § 924.43 (c)), (b) in any form from other handlers and (c) in other source milk required to be reported pursuant to § 924.30 shall be classified (separately as skim milk and butterfat) in the classes set forth in § 924.41.

§ 924.41 Classes of utilization. Subject to the conditions set forth in §§ 924.42 and 924.43 the classes of utilization shall be:

(a) Class I utilization shall be all skim milk and butterfat (1) disposed of for consumption in fluid form as milk, flavored milk, skim milk or buttermilk; and (2) not accounted for as Class II utilization.

(b) Class II utilization shall be all skim milk and butterfat (1) disposed of for fluid consumption as sweet or sour cream; or (2) used to produce ice cream or ice cream mix, cheese (including cottage cheese), dried whole milk, nonfat dry milk solids, evaporated or condensed whole or skim milk, sweetened or unsweetened disposed of in bulk or in hermetically sealed cans, butter, or livestock feed, or dumped; or (3) in shrinkage of producer milk up to 2 percent of receipts from producers; or (4) in shrinkage of other source milk.

§ 924.42 Shrinkage. (a) If producer milk is utilized in conjunction with other source milk, the shrinkage shall be allocated pro rata between the receipts of skim milk and butterfat in producer milk and other source milk.

(b) Producer milk transferred by a handler to another handler without first having been received for the purpose of weighing and testing in the transferrer handler's plant shall be included in the receipts at the plant of the transferee handler for the purpose of computing his shrinkage and shall be excluded at the plant of the transferrer handler in computing his shrinkage.

(c) Producer milk received at a plant from which a route is not operated in the marketing area and transferred in bulk from such plant to a plant from which a route is operated in the marketing area shall be subtracted from the producer milk receipts at the first plant and added to the producer milk receipts at the second plant in computing shrinkage.

§ 924.43 Transfers. (a) Skim milk and butterfat disposed of by a handler to another handler (except as provided in paragraph (c) of this section, other than a handler described in § 924.101, in the form of milk or skim milk shall be Class I utilization, unless Class II utilization is indicated by both handlers in their reports submitted pursuant to § 924.30: Provided, That in no event shall the amount so classified in Class II be greater than the amount of producer milk used in such class by the transferee handler after allocating other source milk in his plant in series beginning with the lowest priced utilization.

(b) Skim milk and butterfat moved in the form of milk or skim milk by a handler to a person not a handler or to a handler described in § 924.101 shall be Class I utilization unless all of the following conditions are met:

(1) Class II utilization is indicated by the handler in his report submitted pursuant to § 924.30, and a statement certifying to such Class II utilization is received by the market administrator from the operator of the plant to which such milk or skim milk is moved not later than the last day of the month following the month of such movement.

(2) The operator of such plant had actually used in the month of such movement an equivalent amount of skim milk and butterfat in Class II, or moved such amount to another plant not operated by a handler which meets the requirements of subparagraph (3) of this paragraph and utilized in the month an equivalent amount of skim milk and butterfat in Class II.

(3) The operator of the transferee plant maintains books and records which are made available if requested by the market administrator and which are adequate for the verification of such Class II utilization.

(c) Producer milk transferred in bulk from a plant operated by a cooperative association from which no milk is disposed of on a route(s) in the marketing area to a plant as described in § 924.6 (a), except a plant as described in § 924.101, shall be deducted before classification of producer milk at the plant of the transferor cooperative and shall be included in producer milk classified at the plant of the transferee handler.

§ 924.44 Responsibility of handlers and reclassification. All skim milk and butterfat shall be classified as Class I utilization unless the handler who first receives such skim milk or butterfat proves to the market administrator that such skim milk or butterfat should be classified otherwise.

§ 924.45 Computation of skim milk and butterfat in each class. For each month the market administrator shall correct for mathematical and obvious errors the monthly report submitted by each handler and compute the total pounds of skim milk and butterfat, respectively, in Class I and Class II utilization for such handler.

§ 924.46 Allocation of butterfat classified. The pounds of butterfat remaining after making the following computations shall be the pounds in each class allocated to milk received from producers.

(a) Subtract from the total pounds of butterfat in Class II utilization, the pounds of butterfat shrinkage allowed pursuant to § 924.41 (c) (3);

(b) Subtract from the pounds of butterfat remaining in each class, in series beginning with the lowest-priced utilization, the pounds of butterfat in other source milk;

(c) Subtract from the remaining pounds of butterfat in each class, the pounds of butterfat received from other handlers (except from a cooperative as set forth in § 924.43 (c)) in such classes pursuant to § 924.43 (a); and

(d) Add to the remaining pounds of butterfat in Class II utilization the pounds subtracted pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section;

(e) If the remaining pounds of butterfat in all classes exceed the pounds of butterfat in milk received from producers, subtract such excess from the remaining pounds of butterfat in each class in series, beginning with the lowest-priced utilization.

§ 924.47 Allocation of skim milk classified. Allocate the pounds of skim milk in each class to milk received from producers in a manner similar to that prescribed for butterfat in § 924.46.

S. D. A. during the month; subtract 3 cents, add 20 percent thereof and multiply by 3.5.

S. D. A., deduct 5.5 cents and then multiply by 8.2.

(c) The price per hundredweight resulting from the following formula:

(1) Multiply by 6 the simple average as computed by the market administrator of the daily average wholesale selling prices per pound of Grade A (92-score) bulk creamery butter (using the midpoint of any price range as one price) at Chicago as reported by the U. S. D. A. for the month;

DETERMINATION OF PRICE TO PRODUCERS

§ 924.60 Computation of value of milk for each handler. (a) Subject to paragraph (c) of this section, the value of producer milk received during the month by each handler shall be a sum of money computed by the market administrator by multiplying by the applicable class price adjusted pursuant to § 924.53 the total combined hundredweight of skim milk and butterfat received in producer milk allocated to each class pursuant to §§ 924.46 and 924.47, adding together the resulting amounts, and if such handler has a utilization greater than has been accounted for as received from all sources, add an amount computed by multiplying any such excess utilization classified pursuant to § 924.46 (c) and § 924.47 by the applicable class prices.

(b) Each handler who has other source milk allocated to Class I pursuant to § 924.46 and § 924.47 shall pay to the producer equalization fund each month an amount computed by multiplying the hundredweight of milk so allocated by the difference between the Class I and Class II prices for the month adjusted by the butterfat differentials provided in § 924.53 to the butterfat test of such other source milk.

(c) A handler who receives milk from producers (1) at a plant located outside the marketing area and more than 34 miles by shortest highway distance from the Detroit City Hall and from which no milk is disposed of on a route in the marketing area or (2) at a plant which is located outside the marketing area and more than 34 miles by shortest highway distance from the boundary of the marketing area and from which milk is disposed of on a route in the marketing area shall receive a credit with respect to producer milk disposed of as Class I utilization other than to a handler, and with respect to producer milk moved in bulk from such plant to a plant from which milk is disposed of on a route in the marketing area, computed on the weight of milk so moved which is not in excess of the amount of such milk classified as Class I utilization in the plant to which such milk is moved (pro rating to such milk the utilization of all producer milk received at such plant) at the rate for the applicable zone as determined by the market administrator, as follows:

Zone No.	Shortest road distance from Detroit City Hall	Rate per hundredweight
1	More than 34 miles but not more than 49 miles	$0.15
2	More than 49 miles but not more than 57 miles	.16
3	More than 57 miles but not more than 65 miles	.17
4	More than 65 miles but not more than 73 miles	.18
5	More than 73 miles but not more than 81 miles	.19
6	More than 81 miles but not more than 89 miles	.20
7	More than 89 miles but not more than 97 miles	.21
8	More than 97 miles	.22

§ 924.61 Computation of the 3.5 percent value of all producer milk. For each month, the market administrator shall compute the 3.5 percent value of producer milk by:

(a) Combining into one total the individual values of milk of all handlers, computed pursuant to paragraph (a) of § 924.60;

(b) Adding the aggregate value of all allowable producer location adjustments computed at the rates for the appropriate zones as provided in § 924.81;

(c) Adding or subtracting any charges or credits pursuant to § 924.90 (a) or (b);

(d) Adding, if the weighted average butterfat test of all producer milk represented in paragraph (a) of this section is less than 3.5 percent, or subtracting if the weighted average butterfat test of such milk is more than 3.5 percent, an amount computed by multiplying the total pounds of butterfat represented by the difference of such average butterfat test from 3.5 percent by the butterfat differential provided in § 924.82 multiplied by 10;

(e) Adding not less than one-half of the unobligated balance in the producer-equalization fund.

§ 924.62 Uniform price. For each month the uniform price shall be computed by:

(a) Dividing the amount computed pursuant to § 924.61 by the hundredweight of milk received from producers represented by the values included in § 937.61 (a); and

(b) Subtracting not less than 4 cents or more than 5 cents.

§ 924.63 Excess milk price. For each month the excess milk price shall be determined pursuant to § 924.52.

§ 924.64 Computation of uniform price for base milk. (a) Multiply the total pounds of excess milk and milk to be paid for at the excess milk price pursuant to § 924.70 (b) for the month by the excess milk price.

(b) Multiply the total amount of milk to be paid for at the uniform price pursuant to § 924.70 (b) by the uniform price for the month.

(c) Subtract the total values arrived at in paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section from the total 3.5 percent value of all producer milk arrived at in § 924.61;

(d) Divide the resultant value by the total hundredweight of base milk and milk to be paid for at the base price pursuant to § 924.70 (b); and

(e) Subtract not less than four cents nor more than five cents. The resultant hundredweight price shall be the uniform price of base milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content received at plants described in § 924.6.

§ 924.65 Notification. On or before the 11th day after the end of each month the market administrator shall notify each handler of:

(a) The amounts and values of his milk in each class and the total of such amounts and values;

(b) The base of any producer delivering milk to the handler which was not used in making payments for the previous month;

(c) The amount due such handler from the producer-equalization fund or the amount to be paid by such handler to the producer-equalization fund, as the case may be; and

(d) The totals of the minimum amounts to be paid by such handler pursuant to §§ 924.80, 924.84, 924.86, 924.87, and 924.90.

BASE RULES

§ 924.70 Determination of base. (a) A producer who delivered milk on at least 122 days during the period August 1 through December 31, inclusive, of any year after 1950 shall have a base computed by the market administrator to be applicable, subject to § 924.72, for the 12 months' period beginning the following February 1, equal to his daily average milk deliveries from the date on which milk was first delivered in the period to the end of such August 1–December 31 period: Provided, That a producer who had a base previous to August 1 and whose average of daily deliveries for the August 1–December 31 period is less than such base shall have a base computed by subtracting from his previous base any amount by which 90 percent of his previous base exceeds such average of daily deliveries.

(b) A producer who has no base shall be paid during the first three full months he is a producer the uniform price in each of the months of August through December and in other months, in the price applicable to base milk for the following percentages of his milk deliveries and the price applicable to excess milk for the remainder of his deliveries: 75 percent for January and February, 70 percent for March, 60 percent for April and July and 40 percent for May and June. At the conclusion of the first three full months' delivery, a base shall be established in the following manner: Multiply the total deliveries in the months of August through December by .8, in January and February by .75, in March by .7, in April and July by .6, and in May and June by .4. Add the amounts so computed and divide by the number of days in which milk was delivered during the three months.

(c) From the effective date of this order until bases are established pursuant to this section, producers and cooperative associations shall be paid the uniform price for all milk delivered.

§ 924.71 Application of bases. (a) A base shall apply to deliveries of milk by the producer for whose account that milk was delivered during the base period;

(b) Bases may be transferred only under the following conditions upon written notice by the holder of the base to the market administrator on or before the last day of the month that such base is to be transferred:

(1) Upon the death, retirement or entry into military service of a producer, the entire base may be transferred to a member or members of his immediate family.

(2) If a base is held jointly and such joint holding is terminated, the entire base may be transferred to one of the joint holders or to another person.

(c) A producer who does not deliver milk to a handler for 45 consecutive days shall forfeit his base.

§ 924.72 Establishing a new base. A producer with a base, by notifying the market administrator that he relinquishes such base, may establish a new base pursuant to § 924.70 (b) once during the 12-month period ending December 31, the period for establishing a new base to begin the first day of the month in which such notification is received by the market administrator.

PAYMENT FOR MILK

§ 924.80 Time and method of payment. On or before the 15th day after the end of each month each handler who received milk from producers or from a cooperative association shall pay for milk received during such month to each producer, or to a cooperative association for milk received from such association or from producers for the account of such association, the uniform price as provided in § 924.70 (b) and (c) or the base price for base milk and for milk to be paid for at the base price pursuant to § 924.70 (b) and milk transferred pursuant to § 924.43 (c), and the excess price for excess milk and milk to be paid for at the excess price pursuant to § 924.70 (b), adjusted by the butterfat differential pursuant to § 921.82 and any location adjustment pursuant to § 924.81: Provided, That if by such date such handler has not received full payment for such month pursuant to § 924.85, he shall not be deemed to be in violation of this section if he reduces uniformly to all producers and cooperative associations his payments per hundredweight by a total amount not in excess of the reduction in payments due from the market administrator; however, the handler shall make such balance of payment uniformly to those producers to whom it is due on or before the date for making payments pursuant to this section next following that on which such balance of payment is received from the market administrator.

§ 924.81 Location adjustments to producers. In making payments to producers or cooperative associations pursuant to § 924.80 a handler may deduct with respect to all milk received by him from producers at a plant located outside the marketing area and more than 34 miles by shortest highway distance from the Detroit City Hall, as determined by the market administrator, and if milk is distributed from such plant on a route(s) in the marketing area, also located more than 34 miles by the shortest highway distance from the boundary of the marketing area, the amount per hundredweight applicable to the zone in which such plant is located as set forth in § 924.60 (c).

§ 924.82 Producer butterfat differential. In making payments pursuant to § 924.80 the base price and excess price or the uniform price shall be increased or decreased for each one-tenth of one percent of butterfat content in the milk received from each producer or a cooperative association above or below 3.5 percent, as the case may be, by a butterfat differential of 7 cents when the average price of butter as described in § 924.50 (b) (1) is 60 cents, which differential shall be increased one-half cent for each full 5 cents variance in such price of butter above 60 cents and decreased one-half cent for each full 5-cent variance in such price of butter below 64.99 cents.

§ 924.83 Producer equalization fund. The market administrator shall establish and maintain a separate fund, known as the "producer-equalization fund" into which he shall deposit all payments received pursuant to § 924.84 and out of which he shall make all payments pursuant to § 924.85.

§ 924.84 Payments to the producer-equalization fund. On or before the 13th day after the end of each month, each handler

(a) whose value of milk is required to be computed pursuant to § 924.60 (a) shall pay to the market administrator any amount by which such value for such month (in the case of a cooperative association which is a handler plus the value of any milk transferred as provided in § 924.43 (c) at the price for base milk for the month adjusted pursuant to § 924.82) is greater than the minimum amount required to be paid by him pursuant to § 924.80, and

(b) who is required to make payment pursuant to § 924.60 (b) shall pay such amount to the market administrator.

§ 924.85 Payment out of the producer-equalization fund. On or before the 14th day after the end of each month, the market administrator shall pay to each handler any amount by which the value of milk for such handler for the month pursuant to § 924.60 (a) (in the case of a cooperative association which is a handler plus the value of any milk transferred as provided in § 924.43 (c) at the price for base milk for the month adjusted pursuant to § 924.82) is less than the total minimum amount required to be paid by him pursuant to § 924.80, less any unpaid obligations of such handler to the market administrator pursuant to § 924.84; Provided, That if the balance in the producer-equalization fund is insufficient to make all payments to all such handlers pursuant to this paragraph, the market administrator shall reduce uniformly such payments and shall complete such payments as soon as the necessary funds become available.

§ 924.86 Expense of administration. As his pro rata share of the expense of administration hereof, each handler shall pay to the market administrator on or before the 13th day after the end of each month two cents per hundredweight, or such amount not exceeding two cents per hundredweight as the Secretary may prescribe, with respect to all receipts within the month of milk from producers, including milk of such handler's own production.

§ 924.87 Marketing services. (a) Except as set forth in paragraph (b) of this section, each handler, in making payments pursuant to § 924.80 for milk received from each producer (including milk of such handler's own production) at a plant not operated by a cooperative association of which such producer is a member, shall deduct five cents per hundredweight, or such amount not exceeding five cents per hundredweight as the Secretary may prescribe, and, on or before the 13th day after the end of each month, shall pay such deductions to the market administrator. Such moneys shall be used by the market administrator to verify weights, samples, and tests of milk received from producers and to provide producers with market information, such services to be performed by the market administrator or by an agent engaged by and responsible to him.

(b) In the case of producers whose milk is received at a plant not operated by a cooperative association of which such producers are members, and for whom a cooperative association is actually performing the services described in paragraph (a) of this section, as determined by the Secretary, each handler shall make, in lieu of the deductions specified in paragraph (a) of this section, such deductions from payments required pursuant to § 924.80 as may be authorized by such producers, and pay such deductions on or before the 15th day after the end of the month to the cooperative association rendering such services of which such producers are members.

ADJUSTMENT OF ACCOUNTS

§ 924.90 Payments. Whenever audit by the market administrator of any handler's reports, books, records, or accounts discloses adjustments to be made, for any reason, which result in moneys due:

(a) To the market administrator from such handler,

(b) To such handler from the market administrator, or

(c) To any producer or cooperative association from such handler,

the market administrator shall promptly notify such handler of any such amount due; and payment thereof shall be made on or before the next date for making payment set forth in the provision under which such error occurred, following the 5th day after such notice.

§ 924.91 Overdue accounts. Any unpaid obligation of a handler or of the market administrator pursuant to §§ 924.84, 924.85, 924.86, 924.87, and 924.90 shall be increased one-half of one percent on the first day of the month next following the due date of such obligation and on the first day of each month thereafter until such obligation is paid.

APPLICATION OF PROVISIONS

§ 924.100 Milk caused to be delivered by cooperative associations. Milk referred to herein as received from producers by a handler shall include milk of producers caused to be delivered to such handler by a cooperative association.

§ 924.101 Handler exemption. A handler who operates a plant located outside the marketing area from which class I milk is disposed of on a route(s) within the marketing area but from which the disposition of Class I milk on all routes operating wholly or partly within the marketing area averages less than 600 pounds per day for the month, and from which no milk is transferred to other handlers, shall be exempt for such month from all provisions of this order except §§ 924.31, 924.32 and 924.33.

§ 924.102 Producer-handler exemption. A producer-handler shall be exempt from all provisions of this order except §§ 924.31, 924.32, 924.33 and 924.60 (b).

TERMINATION OF OBLIGATIONS

§ 924.110 Termination of obligations. (a) The obligation of any handler to pay money required to be paid under the terms of this order shall, except as provided in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, terminate two years after the last day of the month during which the market administrator receives the handler's report of utilization of the milk involved in such obligation, unless within such two-year period the market administrator notifies the handler in writing that such money is due and payable. Service of such notice shall be complete upon mailing to the handler's last known address, and it shall contain, but need not be limited to, the following information:

(1) The amount of the obligation;

(2) The month(s) during which the milk, with respect to which the obligation exists, was received or handled; and

(3) If the obligation is payable to one or more producers or to a cooperative association, the name of such producers or association, or, if the obligation is payable to the market administrator, the account for which it is to be paid.

(b) If a handler fails or refuses, with respect to any obligation under this order, to make available to the market administrator or his representatives all books or records required by this order to be made available, the market administrator may, within the two-year period provided for in paragraph (a) of this section, notify the handler in writing of such failure or refusal. If the market administrator so notifies a handler, the said two-year period with respect to such obligation shall not begin to run until the first day of the month following the month during which such books and records pertaining to such obligation are made available to the market administrator or his representative.

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, a handler's obligation under this order to pay money shall not be terminated with respect to any transaction involving fraud or wilful concealment of a fact, material to the obligation, on the part of the handler against whom the obligation is sought to be imposed.

(d) Any obligation on the part of the market administrator to pay a handler any money which such handler claims to be due him under the terms of this order shall terminate two years after the end of the month during which the milk involved in the claim was received if an underpayment is claimed, or two years after the end of the month during which the payment (including deduction or setoff by the market administrator) was made by the handler if a refund on such payment is claimed, unless such handler, within the applicable period of time, files, pursuant to section 8c (15) (A) of the act, a petition claiming such money.

§ 924.123 Liquidation. Under the suspension or termination of the provisions hereof, except this section, the market administrator, or such other liquidating agent as the Secretary may designate, shall, if so directed by the Secretary, liquidate the business of the market administrator's office, dispose of all property in his possession or control, including accounts receivable, and execute and deliver all assignments or other instruments necessary or appropriate to effectuate any such disposition. If a liquidating agent is so designated all assets, books, and records of the market administrator shall be transferred promptly to such liquidating agent. If, upon such liquidation, the funds on hand exceed the amounts required to pay outstanding obligations of the office of the market administrator and to pay necessary expenses of liquidation and distribution, such excess shall be distributed to contributing handlers and producers, in an equitable manner.

Preliminary statement. A public hearing, on the record of which the proposed marketing agreements and orders were formulated, was called by the Production Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, following receipt of a petition and proposed order filed by the North Texas Producers Association, Arlington, Texas, and a petition and proposal to extend the marketing area of such proposed order filed by the Wichita Falls Area Milk Producers Association, Inc., Wichita Falls, Texas. The public hearing was held in Dallas, Texas, on January 31 to February 20, 1951, inclusive, pursuant to a notice duly published in the FEDERAL REGISTER December 30, 1950 (15 F. R. 9522).

The material issues of record related to

1. Whether the handling of milk produced for the marketing area(s) is in the current of interstate commerce or directly burdens, obstructs or affects interstate commerce in milk or its products;

2. Whether marketing conditions justify the issuance of milk marketing agreement(s) or order(s);

3. The extent of the marketing area(s);

4. The proper scope of regulation;

5. The classification and allocation of milk;

6. The determination and level of class prices;

7. Payments to producers; and

8. Administrative provisions.

Findings and conclusions. The following findings and conclusions on the material issues decided herein are hereby made on the basis of the record of the hearing. In view of the findings and conclusions with respect to the extent of the marketing area and the evidence in the record, findings and conclusions with respect to other issues are included herein concerning a separate marketing agreement and order for the Wichita Falls, Texas, marketing area.

Upon the evidence adduced at the hearing and on the record thereof it is found and concluded that:

1. Character of commerce. The handling of milk in the North Texas marketing area is in the current of interstate commerce and directly burdens, obstructs or affects interstate commerce in the handling of milk and its products.

Substantial quantities of milk produced in other states are imported regularly each fall and winter to supply the needs of handlers in the North Texas marketing area, since local production has not for several years been sufficient at this season of the year. Shipments from Wisconsin and Missouri to Dallas and Fort Worth handlers totaled almost 5 million pounds of whole milk during 1949 and approximately 3.5 million pounds in 1950. Additional quantities of milk were received by handlers in other cities of the marketing area. In addition substantial quantities of condensed skim milk and cream are transported to the area from points outside of Texas and used in reconstitution of buttermilk and the manufacture of ice cream.

During the spring and summer flush production season milk produced for the North Texas marketing area which is surplus to the needs for fluid distribution is used in the manufacture of ice cream, butter, cheese, condensed milk and non-fat dry milk solids. The products made from thus surplus milk are sold in competition with similar products manufactured in other states. Cream, condensed skim milk and non-fat dry milk solids imported from other states are also used in the production of ice cream.

Twenty-three producers whose farms are located in the State of Oklahoma supply milk to a handler whose plant is located in Paris, Texas, which is a part of the North Texas marketing area. This handler distributes fluid milk in competition with other handlers in the North Texas marketing area and also distributes fluid milk in the State of Oklahoma. In addition, this handler operates a manufacturing plant to which seasonal surpluses of milk produced for fluid distribution is transferred from his own operation and those of numerous other North Texas handlers. Ice cream mix made in part from such surplus milk is distributed in Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Louisiana, as well as Texas.

The handling of milk produced for the Wichita Falls, Texas, marketing area is also in the current of interstate commerce and directly burdens, obstructs or affects interstate commerce in the handling of milk and its products.

Milk produced in other states is imported regularly during the short production season to supplement local supplies. For reasons indicated elsewhere such imports in 1950 were less than usual, amounting to approximately 156,000 pounds. Seasonal surpluses of inspected milk are used in the manufacture of dairy products particularly as ingredients of ice cream. Ice cream made from such surplus milk is sold regularly in Oklahoma. In addition milk surplus to local needs is marketed in bulk to other Texas markets in competition with supplementary supplies from northern states.

2. Need for an order. Marketing conditions in the North Texas marketing area justify the issuance of a marketing agreement and order.

During and since World War II the North Texas marketing area, of which the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth represent the largest centers of urban population, has experienced a marked growth in population. As a consequence the demand for milk for fluid consumption has also increased materially. While the production of milk for fluid consumption has also increased rapidly, there is not yet sufficient locally approved milk to supply the needs of the market for fluid consumption in fall and winter months when production is seasonally low. In an effort to increase supplies of locally inspected milk Dallas and Fort Worth handlers have since 1947 expanded the area from which they buy milk. In this period they have likewise expanded their sales areas. In this period of expansion of production and sales no organized plan for the marketing of the milk supply and no satisfactory plan for establishing the prices which milk producers receive for their milk have been developed.

Milk, because of its perishability, must be delivered daily to the market as it is produced. Farmers cannot hold milk on their farms to await favorable price conditions. Because of the breeding characteristics of cows, difference in the availability of fresh feeds and changes in the weather there is a marked seasonal variation in milk production in the supply areas for the North Texas and Wichita Falls, Texas, marketing areas. Sales of milk in fluid form on the other hand are subject to much less seasonable variation than milk production. Thus even though the milk supply were inadequate to supply the market needs at some seasons of the year there would be a surplus of milk at other seasons. Such surpluses must find their way into manufactured dairy products which do not return as high a price to producers as milk disposed of in fluid form. Production of milk for fluid use in conformity with rigid sanitary requirements prevailing in the North Texas marketing area and especially to maintain a satisfactory level of supply in the fall and winter months requires substantial investment and heavy operating costs.

Orderly marketing of the milk produced for fluid consumption in a metropolitan market supplied by numerous producers requires regular and dependable methods for determining prices of milk for various uses, equality of prices for each handler according to the use made of the milk, and means whereby the price reductions resulting from any surpluses may be borne equitably among producers. There is no plan operating in the North Texas market whereby prices of milk produced for fluid consumption are established in accordance with these objectives. Practically all handlers in the market operate on some form of "base and surplus" plan. Under each of the plans the individual handler determines the prices of butterfat differentials to be paid for "base" and "surplus" milk and the means of determining what milk shall be paid for as "base milk" and as "surplus milk." Milk producers do not participate in the price making process.

The base plans of different handlers differ from each other in several material respects. Moreover, several handlers have varied the application of their own plans from year to year and even within a single year with little or no advance notice to producers. Under all of these plans the average deliveries of a producer during some of the short production months affects at some seasons of the year the quantity of milk for which he is paid "base price." The months used by different handlers for establishing bases have varied. Some handlers have failed to notify producers in advance what months were to be the "base-setting" period or have eliminated a part of a previously announced period. The most significant differences in the buying plans of handlers have, however, been in the application of their base plans to the quantity of each producer's milk that should be paid for at the "base" or higher price and the quantity to be paid for at a lower or "surplus" price. For some handlers this has been determined solely by the base established by each producer; each producer has been paid a "base" price for all deliveries which do not exceed his established base, and a "surplus" price for all deliveries in excess of this base. For other handlers the ratio of sales to the established bases of producers has been used to increase or decrease the quantity of "base milk" for which each producer was paid. These handlers do not all use sales of the same products in determining this ratio. Some include sales of all Grade A fluid products, while others include only sales of fluid milk, and at least one handler includes less than his total sales of fluid milk because he considers that he has additional costs for certain sales.

In spite of the fact that it has been necessary for practically all handlers, particularly those located in Dallas, to import substantial quantities of milk during the base forming months, producers have frequently been paid base prices for less milk than their established bases during the succeeding spring and summer months. The extent to which this results from failure to include all sales of Grade A products as base milk, from inclusion of bases for producers who did not establish bases with the handler during the base forming months, or variations in sales by the individual handler, cannot be determined from the evidence in the record. The record does indicate, however, that the expanding character of the market has generally resulted in higher total sales by all handlers during the succeeding spring and summer months than during the base forming months. In any event, producers have no means of determining the utilization of milk by the handlers they supply, and must accept payment on whatever basis the handlers used. Payments at substantially reduced "surplus" prices by handlers for milk which producers suspect was needed for such handlers' fluid sales is one of the great sources of producer dissatisfaction in the market.

There have also been variations in the prices different handlers have paid for base milk and for surplus milk. Except that price changes are not made simultaneously by all handlers the prices that handlers of each city of the marketing area pay for base milk tend to be rather uniform, but the prices Dallas handlers pay often differ from those paid by Fort Worth handlers. Differences in base prices were particularly pronounced after February 1950. For six of the twelve months ending in February 1951 the base price paid by Fort Worth handlers exceeded that paid by Dallas handlers by amounts ranging from 25 to 45 cents per hundredweight; for five of these months the Dallas base price exceeded that of Fort Worth by amounts of 5 or 10 cents per hundredweight, and in only one month do the base prices paid by handlers of the two cities appear to have been the same. Somewhat similar comparisons may be made for prices paid by handlers in other portions of the marketing area. These handlers generally follow more closely the prices paid by Dallas handlers than those paid by Fort Worth handlers. Different butterfat differentials are also used by different handlers in paying producers.

These buying practices of handlers result in a situation where producers with identical production delivering to different handlers with identical volumes of receipts and sales receive substantial differences in their returns. The costs of milk for the same use to individual handlers have likewise differed substantially.

These buying practices are factors of inherent instability in the marketing of milk in the area. The expanding nature of the demand for milk and the lack of an adequate year-round supply of locally inspected milk have generally prevented the lack of an organized plan for equalizing costs to handlers and returns to producers from demoralizing the market. In early 1950, however, chaotic conditions occurred in the pricing of producer milk. With some prospects of an adequate year-round supply of milk following a winter season in which deficits of supply were less severe than formerly, individual Dallas handlers engaged in aggressive price competition in the resale market. Handlers changed producer prices and conditions of their base plans frequently and without advance notice to producers. One handler mailed three letters to his producers within a period of four days notifying them of changes in buying plans and prices. As a result of this "price war" Dallas producers received a reduction of $1.00 per hundredweight for their base milk. Since the net reduction in consumer prices was 2 cents per quart or approximately 93 cents per hundredweight, it is evident that price cuts at resale were largely passed back to producers in reduced returns. Fort Worth handlers did not reduce their producer prices so severely and they were at a competitive disadvantage, relative to Dallas handlers at the numerous places where both sold milk.

The conditions that occurred in the spring of 1950 are indicative of conditions that are likely to occur under present buying practices whenever an adequate supply of locally produced milk is available for the market. These conditions thus militate against achieving a continually adequate supply of milk since the disparities in costs to handlers and returns to producers inherent in the system widen as the level of the milk supply approaches the needs of the market. The pressures on individual handlers and producers associated with these disparities may be expected to result in conditions which will reduce the level of returns to some producers drastically and to all producers generally and the production of a sufficient supply of inspected milk will be hindered.

Despite the elements of instability in the market, handlers have resisted the efforts of a cooperative association representing more than 1,750 of the approximately 2,500 producers of the market to negotiate uniform buying plans for the market. The handlers have failed or refused to negotiate with the association concerning the prices and marketing conditions which should apply to milk received from members of the association and they have not permitted the association to check the weights and tests of milk delivered by its members. In some cases producers have been threatened with loss of a market for their milk if they joined the association and some association members actually have been "cut off" by handlers without explanation. Handlers have offered producers individual contracts which conflict with association membership, and in some cases have conducted systematic campaigns urging these contracts on their producers. These contracts generally continue the buying plans of the handlers, and are written to expire in the surplus season when the producer would have difficulty in finding another handler who would buy his milk. One handler who apparently did not oppose the objectives of the association testified that he is now buying the milk at about half of the board of directors of the association because of the difficulties these producers encountered with other handlers. This fact strongly suggests that association members and officials have been subject to coercion and intimidation by handlers.

There is considerable and well justified dissatisfaction among producers with the butterfat tests on which they are paid for their milk. While the State of Texas does some checking of the tests upon which dairy farmers in the state receive payment, it appears that only about 3500 individual tests are made annually in the entire state. The protection thus afforded cannot substitute for the regular checks which association producers desire and are willing to pay for through their association membership. Similar systematic checks by an impartial market administrator should be afforded producers who do not belong to a cooperative association.

There is need for market-wide information concerning production and sales in order that producers may plan their production and marketing programs intelligently and upon which price-making determinations may be made. Neither producers nor handlers were able to present at the hearing data which showed both production and sales for the entire market over any period of time.

The adoption of a classified price plan based on the audited utilization of handlers and market-wide pooling of returns among producers will provide respectively equal costs to handlers for milk used for like purposes and a fair division among all producers of the returns from Class I sales in the market. The inherent instability in the present buying plans operated by individual handlers will be reduced.

The issuance of a marketing agreement and order for the North Texas marketing area is needed to establish and maintain orderly marketing in the area and provide an adequate supply of milk for the area.

In view of the conclusion contained herein with reference to the extent of the North Texas marketing area and the separate and extensive evidence concerning marketing conditions in the area including Wichita Falls, Texas, which was proposed for inclusion in the North Texas marketing area, consideration has been given to the need for separate regulation for the Wichita Falls marketing area. It is concluded that marketing conditions in the Wichita Falls, Texas, marketing area justify the issuance of a marketing agreement or order.

The history and marketing relationships of the North Texas market are similar to the history and marketing relationships in the Wichita Falls market. Buying practices of handlers have been on "base" plans which provide differing returns to producers similarly situated. With fewer handlers these differences have not been quite so marked. The trend of events has however been more rapid. Milk production increased nearly 69 percent from 1947 to 1950. Deficits were still in prospect, however, when producers were establishing bases in the fall of 1949. Thereafter the situation changed from deficit to surplus very quickly. An Army Air Force Base, Sheppard Field, lies adjacent to Wichita Falls, and the volume of milk involved in the contract for supplying this base is substantial in relation to the quantity of milk producer for the Wichita Falls market. A Dallas handler was the successful bidder for the contract to supply this base beginning January 1, 1950. As a result producers were paid surplus prices for some of their milk during their base forming periods, followed shortly by reductions in base prices to producers, which were, however, not so drastic as those that occurred in Dallas. Following this event a cooperative association of producers was formed with a membership representing a substantial majority of the approximately 175 producers of the market. The cooperative's attempt to negotiate with handlers was principally directed toward handling surplus milk so as to realize the most advantageous market and insure that no milk paid for at surplus prices was needed for fluid use. When no satisfactory agreement on these matters was reached in early May 1950 the association called a "milk strike" and its members withdrew all of their milk. At this period of flush production handlers were able to supply their needs from other sources, and milk deliveries were resumed on a verbal agreement that association producers would be restored to the same status as before the incident. This, however, did not materialize; handlers reserved for producers who continued deliveries during the "strike" period bases equal to their deliveries during this period of flush production and as a result the association producers bore the entire burden of surplus milk until September 1950. Since September 1950 this discrimination in payments to producers has ceased but the association has been unable to obtain any definite assurance that cooperative members were to receive bases on an equal footing with nonmember producers. To some extent these negotiations have been complicated by the acquisition by the association of a receiving station which it now operates for some of its members and from which milk is currently sold to one handler.

Negotiations were continuing concerning these problems at the date of the hearing. The fact remains that no uniform buying plan for the market has evolved therefrom and it is unlikely that one will result from any continuation of the negotiations. The adoption of a uniform classified price plan and a market-wide pool will provide a fair division among all producers of the fluid sales of the market. The issuance of a marketing agreement and order for the Wichita Falls, Texas, marketing area is needed to establish and maintain orderly marketing in the area.

3. Extent of the marketing areas. The North Texas marketing area should be defined to include all territory within the counties of Cooke, Collin, Dallas, Delta, Denton, Ellis, Fannin, Grayson, Hopkins, Hunt, Johnson, Kaufman, Lamar, Parker, Rockwall and Tarrant, all in the State of Texas. All municipal corporations, Federal military reservations, facilities and installations and State institutions located in these counties should be included.

The major fluid milk markets in the North Texas marketing area are the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth. Dallas and Fort Worth handlers sell milk over a wide area beyond the limits of these cities. In recent years, they have expanded their sales areas to include most of the smaller cities and towns within a considerable distance of Dallas and Fort Worth. The advent of the paper milk carton has accelerated this distribution of milk.

As Dallas and Fort Worth handlers have reached further from Dallas and Fort Worth for milk supplies, they have extended their distribution routes to cover smaller cities and towns in the expanded production area. As a consequence they compete actively for both milk supplies and milk sales with each other and with handlers in smaller cities and towns over much of the production area. Some handlers located in the smaller cities also distribute milk in other cities in competition with Dallas and Fort Worth handlers. A handler in Paris, Lamar County, Texas, in which a Fort Worth handler also sells milk, competes with Dallas and Fort Worth handlers for milk sales in Grayson, Fannin, Hunt, Hopkins, Delta and Red River Counties. This handler also had operated routes in Dallas for several months in 1949 and 1950. A handler at Sherman in Grayson County who bought milk from approximately 100 producers in several counties and competed with Dallas and Fort Worth handlers for sales in the same area, has recently sold his business to a Fort Worth handler. At the time of the hearing these producers were in the process of transfer to this handler's Fort Worth plant. Similarly a Dallas handler was at the time of the hearing incorporating with his Dallas business the operations of a handler of Bonham in Fannin County.

The fact that much of Texas, particularly to the west and south of Dallas and Fort Worth, is an area with more pronounced deficits in milk production than North Texas has resulted in some North Texas handlers establishing substantial distribution of milk at considerable distances beyond the limits of the production area. Milk bottled by one Dallas handler is sold regularly in Wichita Falls, 135 miles northwest of Dallas, Lubbock, 340 miles west of Dallas, El Paso, 640 miles southwest of Dallas, and in Harlingen and Corpus Christi, each more than 500 miles south of Dallas. No other handler extends his distributions to such extreme distances in so many directions, but other handlers distribute in Waco, Temple and other Texas points.

Eight proposals to define the marketing area were included in the notice of hearing. The North Texas Producers Association proposed that the marketing area be confined to the corporate limits of the cities of Dallas in Dallas County, Fort Worth in Tarrant County, Paris in Lamar County, Dublin in Erath County, Terrell in Kaufman County, Denison and Sherman in Grayson County, Gainesville in Cooke County, Tyler in Smith County, Decatur in Wise County, Denton in Denton County, McKinney in Collin County, Cleburne in Johnson County, Longview in Gregg County, and Waxahachie and one precinct in Ellis County, all in Texas. Several handlers proposed that the marketing area be defined by county boundaries. These proposals as a group included all the counties in which the cities proposed by the association are located plus some additional counties. The Paris handler proposed the addition of three counties in Texas and four in Oklahoma. One handler proposed that in addition to twenty-seven counties in North Texas the marketing area include thirteen cities in what is generally referred to as West Texas. The Wichita Falls Area Milk Producers Association proposed that the city of Wichita Falls be included. Handlers of Wichita Falls proposed that if Wichita Falls were included in the marketing area 18 counties also be included. In all forty counties in Texas, four counties in Oklahoma, and twenty-nine cities and towns in Texas were proposed for inclusion in the marketing area.

It appears that practically all milk sold for fluid consumption in the North Texas area is sold as Grade A milk. To be labeled "Grade A", milk must be produced and handled under the supervision of local health officers in accordance with standards established by the Texas State Department of Health. The standards that have been so established are those of the 1939 Edition of the U. S. Public Health Service Milk Ordinance. These standards are also contained in the milk ordinances of the principal cities of the area. While there may be minor differences in the degree of effectiveness of enforcement of these uniform standards by the various health authorities of the area, the movement of milk from one health jurisdiction to another indicates that the quality milk is generally uniform throughout the various portions of the area. While no route distribution from Dallas plants is made in Fort Worth, or vice-versa, Fort Worth approved milk is frequently used as an emergency supply by a Dallas plant.

In view of the uniformity of health regulations throughout the area the marketing area should so far as possible be contiguous and be defined by county boundaries. While this will result in the inclusion of much rural area, it does not appear that any considerable administrative difficulties will thereby be incurred. It is proposed that only handlers who distribute Grade A milk in the marketing area shall be regulated. Such handlers are readily identifiable under the health regulations, and it does not appear that there will be any substantial number of them who will confine their activities to the more rural portions of the area without selling milk in such North Texas cities as are appropriate for inclusion in the marketing area.

The sixteen counties to be defined as the marketing area include within their boundaries ten of the fourteen cities proposed by the proponents of the order. Decatur and Dublin, two of the cities not included in the area as defined, have less population than the other cities proposed; the distribution of Dallas and Fort Worth milk in these cities or the counties in which they are located does not appear very substantial, so that it is concluded that no substantial purpose would be served by including them in the marketing area. Tyler and Longview, the other cities thus proposed which are not located in the named counties, are of larger size and one Dallas handler estimates that more than 30 percent of all sales are by Dallas handlers. Local handlers in these cities, on the other hand, indicate that only 11 of 63 routes in the Tyler-Longview section are operated by Dallas handlers. Tyler and Longview are somewhat further removed from Dallas and Fort Worth than the other cities included. Handlers located in these cities compete not only with North Texas handlers for their milk supply but also with those of Houston and Shreveport, Louisiana, which are metropolitan markets. These handlers do not compete extensively with Dallas and Fort Worth handlers in other portions of the marketing area. Inclusion of the cities of Tyler and Longview in a contiguous marketing area defined by county boundaries would require naming some six or eight additional counties in the defined area. In view of the factors stated above, it is concluded that their significance is not sufficient to warrant their inclusion at this time.

The proposal that thirteen West Texas cities at distances varying from 120 to 430 miles from Dallas be included in the marketing area was made by a Dallas handler whose milk is distributed in these cities by a vendor. In support of the proposal it was shown that the volume of such distribution is sufficient to employ more than 80 people and to require an investment of $400,000. The vendor estimated that of the total sales of milk in each of these cities his sales represented percentages varying by cities from 15 percent to 75 percent. These percentages were contested by a handler with plants located in some of these West Texas cities. It was contended that an order which would price the milk received by the Dallas handler must also price the milk in competition with which it is sold in these West Texas cities. The distribution of North Texas milk in this area was represented as a disposition of milk which would otherwise be priced as surplus milk to North Texas producers. A cooperative association representing a substantial number of the producers supplying plants located in these cities opposed their inclusion in the North Texas marketing area on the basis that production conditions differed materially in that area and indicated that it had proposed a separate order with a marketing area that would include several of these cities and some others.

It is obviously impracticable to define a marketing area so that a handler may sell milk anywhere without competition from milk not priced under the order defining such marketing area. The West Texas cities here proposed for inclusion in the North Texas marketing area are in an area in which local production of milk is inadequate and prices for locally produced milk have historically been higher than in the North Texas area. As a result of the demand for more milk than was locally available a substantial distribution of North Texas milk has been built up in the past three and one-half years, much of it at resale prices higher than those of local handlers in these cities. While a West Texas handler purchases some milk at a receiving station at Springtown in Parker County in the North Texas area, and there is some further overlap of the production areas in Erath County, it does not appear that the competition for supply is extensive. There is serious question as to whether inclusion of the cities proposed would price as producer milk a substantial quantity of milk from the Brownwood area which is moved to Abilene. The inclusion of the cities proposed might result in including in the marketwide pool milk of producers far removed from North Texas should some other handler from a distant point market milk under a system comparable to that now used by the Dallas handler. The record indicates the need for higher prices which would apply to the milk received at plants in West Texas and that these prices should not be uniform for all such plants, but fails to provide enough evidence upon which to base such location differentials. For these reasons it is concluded that the proposal to include West Texas cities in the North Texas marketing area should not be adopted.

The proposals that Wichita Falls and counties in that general vicinity be included in the North Texas marketing area should not be adopted. With one notable exception, there is little competition for sales between Wichita Falls handlers and handlers of the defined North Texas marketing area. There is a minor overlap of the production areas of Wichita Falls and North Texas in Wise County, but little evidence of shifting of producers from one market to another. The competition for sales is with respect to the Sheppard Air Force Base at Wichita Falls. This is a large outlet for Grade A milk for which a Dallas handler currently holds the contract. While this volume of sales is of considerable importance in the Wichita Falls area, these sales of Dallas milk under a contract periodically open for competitive bids are not considered adequate reason for inclusion of Wichita Falls in the marketing area. As indicated elsewhere, a separate order for the Wichita Falls area is considered appropriate on the records of this hearing.

The Wichita Falls marketing area should be defined to include all territory within the County of Wichita, State of Texas. While Wichita Falls handlers market milk in a number of smaller towns in other counties, it does not appear that such distribution in any one locality is a substantial portion of the total business. Neither does it appear that any of the smaller handlers occasionally located in such towns has a wide area of distribution within which he competes with Wichita Falls handlers. There is no evidence that the producers supplying these handlers are so located that there is much competition for supplies of milk between these handlers and those of Wichita Falls. The record fails to indicate conclusively that the health requirements of such towns are equivalent to the Grade A regulations which apply in Wichita Falls and Wichita County. For these reasons the proposal of handlers that additional counties be included is denied.

4. Scope of regulation. The minimum class prices of the orders should apply only to milk which is produced under the inspection of the appropriate health authorities of the marketing areas and which is regularly received at a milk plant approved by such authorities for the receiving or processing of Grade A milk or milk products for distribution on routes in the marketing areas.

As indicated in the findings concerning the extent of the marketing areas, milk sold for fluid consumption in the marketing areas is almost exclusively Grade A milk. Specifications and requirements promulgated under the Texas Milk Grading and Labeling Law, together with municipal ordinances, prescribe the conditions under which such milk may be produced and distributed. The minimum class prices and the uniform prices computed under the market-wide pools should apply only to milk which is received directly from farmers at a locally approved Grade A plant.

In order to designate clearly what milk is to be subject to the pricing provisions of the orders, which processors and distributors are to be subject to regulation and which dairy farmers will participate in the market pools, it is necessary to include in each order definitions of "approved plant," "handler," "producer," and "other source milk."

"Approved plant" should be defined as a milk plant approved by any health authority having jurisdiction in the marketing area for distribution of Grade A milk and milk products, from which milk, skim milk, buttermilk, flavored milk, flavored milk drinks or cream are disposed of for fluid consumption in the marketing area on wholesale or retail routes (including plant stores). The definition should also include a receiving station which, with the approval and under the direct supervision of the appropriate health authorities, receives milk from producers and commingles such milk for movement to the plants previously described. The approved plant definition should not include plants not under the routine inspection of the health authorities of the marketing area to which the order applies, but which may furnish milk to handlers during periods of emergency or shortage. Inclusion of such plants would be beyond the intended scope of the orders, and would involve pricing milk not primarily produced for the North Texas market or the Wichita Falls market.

"Handler" to whom the regulatory provisions of the order are applicable, should be defined as the operator of an "approved plant" in his capacity as such, or a cooperative association with respect to producer milk which is diverted to an unapproved plant for the account of the association. During periods of high production proprietary handlers may not always accept milk from all regular producers, or arrange for the diversion of such milk, even though the production of all producers may be needed to supply the market at other seasons. The provision that a cooperative association may be a handler, even though it does not operate a plant, will enable such a cooperative association to retain in the market-pool milk of its members which it may have to divert for temporary periods to unapproved plants.

"Producer" should be defined as any person, other than a producer-handler, who produces milk which is received at an approved plant or which is diverted from an approved plant to an unapproved plant for the account of a handler or cooperative association. In case ungraded milk is regularly received at the premises of an approved plant provision should be made to restrict the producer definition to those dairy farmers delivering to such plant who have Grade A permits or ratings issued by the appropriate health authority. Likewise provision should be made that upon proper notice from the appropriate health authority farmers will lose their status as producers during periods in which they are degraded. In order to eliminate possible conflict between the order and other orders that may regulate the handling of milk in nearby areas it is provided that the term "producer" shall not include a person with respect to milk produced by him which is received by a handler who does a greater percentage of his Class I business under another Federal marketing order.

The orders do not propose to pool the Class I sales of producer-handlers, who distribute milk of their own production and buy no milk from producers. Any milk they sell to handlers who purchase milk from producers is normally surplus to their own operations. To pool such milk would result in a preferential market for producer-handlers as compared with regular producers. Producer-handlers should therefore not be defined as producers whose milk is pooled. Their exclusion from the producer definition will result in any milk produced from a producer-handler being treated as other source milk.

"Other source milk" should be defined to include all skim milk and butterfat received at an approved plant from a source other than producers, but not including that first received from producers at another approved plant. Other source milk is not normally available for the market either because it does not meet Grade "A" quality requirements or because it is produced primarily for other markets under the supervision of the health authorities of such markets. It is not priced under the terms of the order, but is allocated to the lowest use in a handler's plant in order to prevent its displacing from Class I milk of producers which constitutes the regular supply of the market.

5. Classification of milk. Two classes of milk should be established in each order. Class I milk should include skim milk or butterfat disposed of (except as livestock feed and by transfer or diversion as milk, skim milk, or cream to other milk plants) in the form of milk, skim milk, buttermilk, flavored milk, flavored milk drinks, cream, cultured sour cream, any mixture (except eggnog and bulk ice cream mix) of cream and milk or skim milk used to produce concentrated milk or milk drinks disposed of for fluid consumption, and all other skim milk and butterfat not specifically accounted for as Class II milk. Class II milk should include all skim milk and butterfat used to produce any product other than those specified in Class I milk, disposed of for livestock feed, in shrinkage of producer milk not in excess of 2 percent of receipts, in shrinkage of other source milk, and in inventory variations in Class I products.

The products included in Class I milk are those usually associated with the distribution of fluid milk, and with minor exceptions noted hereafter are required to be made from Grade A milk. The additional expense necessary to produce milk for these purposes warrants their inclusion as Class I milk. Handlers proposed that only fluid milk be included in Class I and that a separate class be provided for the other products here specifically included; they failed, however, to propose any basis for pricing this class of milk. These items are all disposed of in the respective marketing areas in fluid form through the same retail and wholesale channels as fluid milk. Their physical characteristics, purposes, values and uses are similar to those of fluid milk. The milk used for these products is subject to the same transportation costs in movement from farm to market. The separate accounting for skim milk and butterfat herein proposed results in handlers being charged for only the exact volume of skim milk or butterfat actually disposed of in any particular use. While it was indicated that in Dallas flavored milk drinks containing less than 3.25 percent butterfat are not required to be made from Grade A milk, testimony of the health officer indicates that under his requirements with respect to the materials that may be handled in Grade A bottling plants only Grade A ingredients are used.

Provision is made for the inclusion in Class I milk of fresh concentrated milk for fluid consumption, a new product which has appeared in several milk markets in recent months. While this product had not appeared in the North Texas or Wichita Falls markets at the time of the hearing it is desirable that provision be made at the time for its classification should it appear. This product is promoted as a direct and acceptable substitute for fresh whole milk, indistinguishable from regular fluid milk when water is added.

A proposal that aerated cream products be included in Class I milk should not be adopted. Such products are not now required by health authorities to be from Grade A milk. Their distribution is not necessarily limited to the handlers of Grade A fluid milk. A further proposal that products which may hereafter be required by health authorities to be made from Grade A milk is not adopted because it is unlikely that the separate health authorities involved will all institute such requirements simultaneously.

The products included in Class II milk are not required to be from Grade A milk. Such products, although they may contain Grade A milk, must be disposed of in the same competitive field as products made from non-Grade A milk. It is considered necessary to classify certain products as Class II milk in order to permit the free movement of any excess milk into manufacturing channels without burdensome competitive disadvantage to handlers when producer receipts are in excess of the market needs for Grade A milk for fluid uses. Unaccounted for shrinkage of producer milk in excess of a reasonable allowance for shrinkage (plant loss) should be Class I milk in order to require full accounting by handlers for the use of their receipts.

No limit need be placed on shrinkage of other source milk as Class II milk, since such milk is deducted from the lowest use class under the allocation provisions. It is, however, not feasible to segregate shrinkage of producer milk from shrinkage of other source milk in the same plant. Accordingly, in such case, the shrinkage of skim milk and butterfat, respectively, allocated to producer milk and to other source milk should be computed pro rata to the volumes of skim milk and butterfat, respectively, received from such sources.

The allocation provisions should provide that other source milk, which is unpriced, be allocated to the lowest use in the handler's plant. This is done to prevent other source milk from displacing from Class I the milk of producers which constitutes the regular supply of the market. While there may be a few occasions in which variations in producer receipts or Class I sales within the monthly accounting period for which such allocation is provided do not permit full use of the producer receipts for the available Class I sales, these are not so frequent or so substantial as to require a more frequent accounting for purposes of allocation.

In establishing the classification of milk the responsibility should be placed upon the handler who first receives milk from producers to account for all skim milk and butterfat received at his approved plant and to prove to the market administrator that such skim milk and butterfat should be classified as other than Class I. The handler who first receives milk from producers is responsible for reporting the proper utilization of such milk and making full payment for it. He must, therefore, maintain records to furnish adequate proof of utilization to the market administrator.

Provision should be made in each order to cover the classification of skim milk and butterfat transferred from an approved plant to another approved plant or to an unapproved plant. In the case of transfers between approved plants whose receipts are priced by the same order, classification should be on the basis of written agreement between the affected handlers to the extent of utilization in the agreed use in the transferee plant. This provision affords suitable flexibility in the pricing, classification, and accounting for milk transferred. It does not affect producer returns because all of the milk is accounted for in the same pool computation in any event. In order to assure adequate protection of producers in the classification of their milk it should be provided that in case other source milk is received in either or both plants the classification of milk in each plant shall be made in such a manner as will return the higher class utilization to producer milk.

Transfers to a producer-handler should be classified as Class I milk. Producer-handlers ordinarily carry on only fluid operations and any milk which they purchase from a handler would normally be for fluid uses. Accordingly, it is unnecessary to provide for the classification of such a transfer in a lower use class.
